D. C. Woman Found Raped, Slain; Police Seek Friend

Body Discovered By Morning Stroller In Rock Creek Park; Victim Was 57

By John Singerhoff
Post Staff Writer.

A 57-year-old stenographer was found raped and murdered in Rock Creek Park near Pierce Mill yesterday and detectives were seeking a man friend with whom she left home about 10 p. m. Saturday.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Grace Grubbs Groome of 1361 Irving st. nw., and her body was discovered under a picnic table in a secluded grove, 150 yards from the mill and 60 feet from Rock Creek. It was found by Edgar O. Bowles, 32, a geologist, of 5000 Massachusetts ave. nw., wno was taking a before-breakfast walk along the bank of the creek.

Evidences of Struggle

The woman's skull had been broken, her nose crushed, her lips cut to ribbons by repeated blows, and her body bore multiple cuts and bruises. She was found about 8:50 a.m. and Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg set time of death as between 10 p.m. and midnight, Saturday night.

The death scene evidenced a terrible struggle. Several whisky bottles were broken and the fragments of one were bloodstained; a man's patented wrinkle-proof collar attachment was about 5 feet from the body; a paling had been ripped from a bench and a 4-inch board was torn loose from the table; the earth was scarred by heel marks.

Mrs. Groome, a thrice-married divorcee, apparently had been shoved under the wooden table between an attached bench. Her left arm was pinned under her body and her right arm was across her breast. Her legs were bent and her neck twisted unnaturally.

Hit by Blunt Instrument

Her green jacket dress with white polka dots had been ripped from her shoulders, she wore one white high-heeled shoe and another was lying 6 feet away; her beige-colored hose were pulled down below her knees and her skirt, slip and underclothing were bunched round her waist.

Dr. Rosenberg said she had been struck on the left temple with a blunt instrument and stated either

Jewels Stolen From Plane Found In Texas Junk Yard

A cache in a Texas junk yard, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said yesterday, had yielded the rest of the some $92,000 worth of jewels reported stolen from a grounded transport plane at Amarillo, Tex., November 22, 1942.

Director J. Edgar Hoover said FBI agents and Amarillo policemen were led to the hiding place by Elmer Hawkins, 52-year-old itinerant cattle and mule trader, who is the uncle of Lewis Caudill, one of two men whose arrest on charges of theft was announced Thursday.

Hawkins himself is to be arraigned today at Amarillo, Hoover said, on charges of receiving and concealing property stolen while in interstate shipment.

The jewels were described as the property of Princess Farid of Morristown, N. J., identified at the Justice Department as the divorced wife of Persian Prince Farid Khan.

Larger Gas Allotment Will o' Wisp

By the Associated Press

Gasoline rations in the East definitely will not be increased September 1, the Government director of motor fuel rationing said yesterday.

The bigger allotment is still hopefully planned, he added, "but it may take weeks—it may even be months."

He said he could not answer a question whether the prohibition against pleasure driving would be lifted, but by specifying that his inability to reply was a matter of "today" he lent implied support to expectations that the ban would be raised Wednesday.

The information came from Richmond C. Harrison, chief of the gasoline rationing section of the Office of Price Administration, in a broadcast interview on the Blue network.

He said the two-week-old cut from 4 to 3 gallons per ration coupon in the Middle West and Southwest was saving 50,000 barrels of fuel a day and "as the decrease of gas consumption in those States creates a surplus of gasoline stocks, which can at last

19 Die, 25 Hurt In Alabama Mine Blast

State Inspector Among Victims of Two Pit Explosions

By the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 29.—Nineteen men, coal miners and members of volunteer rescue crews, were killed and 25 others injured last night and early today when two terrific gas explosions blasted the Republic Steel Corporation's Sayreton No. 2 slope here.

The dead included E. J. McCrossin, chief State mine inspector, George Ferguson, Sayreton superintendent, and John Frame, assistant superintendent, who headed rescue groups in desperate and partly successful efforts to save the men trapped approximately 2 miles from the opening.

A Republic spokesman said he believed all the men were now out of the mine. He estimated that more than 100 of the regular night shift of 135 men made their way to safety unhurt before the second blast, at 1 a. m. The first blast occurred about 10:30 p. m.

The 25 injured men were burned and several were in critical condition.

The dead, in addition to McCrossin, Ferguson and Frame, were:

William Goodwin, rescue crew member; J. V. Sharit, S. C. Oldacre, W.E. Faucett, William Pennington, John W. Guthrie, Bud Jones, Jim McCombs, Henry Hann, George Sellers, Tom McAlpin, W. H. Abel, Herbert Gilley, Amos McGruder, Joe Davenport and Will Giles.

Frank Loggins, one of the injured, described the first blast as a "long sheet of flame."

"I was stunned and burned," he said. "I began to stumble in the dark toward the mouth of the slope. My light was out and I stepped on several bodies. When the rescue crew reached me, I was all in."

Berle Delineates Refugee Policy

Repeated rumors that the State Department has been dealing with discredited political leaders of Axis and occupied countries were officially denied last night by Adolf A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, who called them "certain wild yarns which are hardly worth the trouble of denying" and "ruthless trifles which circulate in wartime, borne on currents of factional dispute or European propaganda."

Ciano Reported in Germany Following Flight From Rome

By the Associated Press

London (Monday), Aug. 30.—Former Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano has arrived in Germany after escaping from Rome, two London morning newspapers said today, quoting the German underground radio station Atlantik.

The Daily Telegraph and Daily Express quoted the station as saying that Mussolini's son-in-law had arrived at Innsbruck and continued by car to Munich.

The German overseas radio in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said yesterday that Ciano, his wife and three children had eluded a police guard at his Rome home, and fled to an unknown haven.

The house had been closely guarded day and night by eight detectives and Ciano had not left home since July 26, the broadcast asserted, adding that his wife, the former Edda Mussolini, had left home every day for walks with her children and had also received friends.

"On Friday morning Count Ciano was seen for the last time at a window of his residence. At 8:45 a. m. Saturday Countess Ciano left her home with her children. After waiting at the end of the street for some time she returned to her home.

"Shortly afterward she left her home once more with her children for an unknown destination from which she did not return.

"At 11 a. m. it was discovered that Count Ciano had likewise left the mansion. Since the only exits had been closely guarded by detectives it is a complete mystery how Count Ciano managed to leave the mansion unobserved.

"According to the Corriere Della Sera it appears that Count Ciano left the house in a clever disguise so that the police patrol failed to notice his departure."

Mad Scramble for Power Seen As Sequel to Death of Boris

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 29.—A mad scramble for power sufficient to set the Balkans ablaze following the mysterious death of King Boris of Bulgaria was predicted today by London morning newspapers as Germany faced collaboration problems 1100 miles apart across subjugated Europe.

In addition to keeping sharp watch on Bulgaria, bomb-shaken Germany had to crush a "people's revolt" in Denmark, thereby ending the fiction that the little Scandinavian country was a cheerful, willing collaborator and a happy example of the model Nazi vassal state.

Axis Capitals Mourn

The Moscow radio asserted that Hitler had called a conference of the heads of all satellite states "in order to discuss the international situation" possibly as a result of the Danish-Balkan manifestations.

(The British radio said crowds had demonstrated for peace on the streets of Sofia and that the Nazi embassy in the Bulgarian capital had been stoned.

(The broadcast declared the death of Boris had precipitated a crisis in Bulgaria and that all communication with foreign countries had been suspended. The peace demonstrators were reported to have shouted demands for the resignation of Premier Bogdan Philov.)

Mourning was displayed in Axis capitals for Boris, but radio France reported there were anti-Fascist demonstrations when the King's death was announced in Sofia.

Three Possibilities

Balkan dispatches to the Stockholm newspaper Svenka Dagbladet reported that a drastic switch in Bulgarian foreign policy from collaboration with Germany to friendship with Russia was expected.

King Boris' death raised the question of whether there was anyone in the Bulgar royal family who would be able to hold the nation together, and whether Premier Philov or the royal council were strong enough to keep the country's German policy going.

King Boris, once described by Prime Minister Winston Churchill as the "traitor King," had followed a policy of double dealing with the Germans, yielding troops to fight Yugoslav guerillas and Greeks but not to fight Russia. He was able to keep the war-weary country in the Axis camp, however, despite the feelings of the people, who always have looked up to "Mother Russia" for the role played by the Czars in the struggles for Bulgarian independence.

Boris never had dared, however, to lead his country into formal war with Russia, although he had declared war on Britain and the

Army Show to Demonstrate Signal Corps' Service in War

Actual "play-by-play" news of our soldiers on the battle-fronts overseas will be furnished visitors at the huge Army show "Back the Attack," through teletypes of the communications section of the Signal Corps, it was learned last night.

Wirephotos also will be made in the Signal Corps field labratories on the grounds.

The Signal Corps exhibit will be complete and will present to the residents of Washington in detail the activities of this branch of the service.

The huge "Back the Attack" show is sponsored by the Washington Post, presented by the Army in conjunction with the Treasury Department's third war loan drive, and will be the greatest exhibition of its kind ever attempted in Washington or elsewhere. It will last from September 9 to 26.

Trained Men Arrive

Trained personnel, from nearby posts and stations, to operate the hundreds of exhibits during the 18 days, today were gathering on the Washington Monument Grounds where the show will be held.

Ten officers and 90 men of the Corps of Engineers were to report to headquarters on the Washington Monument grounds during the day as was part of the personnel for the Signal Corps.

Many Quartermaster Corps soldiers already are on the grounds.

There will be a Signal Corps detachment of 120 WAC's, civilian technicians, enlisted men and officers to operate its exhibits, which will be housed in three huge Army tents, one 155 by 35 feet and two 117 by 35 feet.

The tents were being erected late yesterday by Army personnel, although carpenters and laborers under the direction of Col. Clarence Renshaw of the United States District Engineer's office, were taking the day off.

Residents Take Peek

Approximately 135 civilians, electricians, carpenters and laborers, had worked continuously since construction work on the Monument Grounds was started 10 days ago.

Unperturbed by lowering clouds and the threat of rain, hundreds of civilian residents of Washington, taking advantage of the moderate temperature milled around the edges of the huge exhibit area on the Monument Grounds throughout Sunday afternoon.

Missions Called to Project Christianity in Era of Peace

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post Church Editor

Representing a united Protestant approach to postwar peace issues, a mission will be held here and in 93 other cities and 39 States in November, designed to "support a world order founded on Christian ideals."

Seen as the most ambitious Nation-wide religious enterprise since the National Christian Mission in 1940-41, the Christian Mission on World Order aims "to stimulate local study and action and development now of a body of public opinion to assure full American participation with other nations in establishing and maintaining order."

According to word from the Federal Council, the mission will demonstrate the "church's concern that solid foundations—spiritual, moral, political, racial and economic—will be laid now for the postwar world." It will stress the bearing of the Christian Gospel and show how the faith of the Christian can be translated into his acts as a citizen.

The mission "will call the church to a scrutiny of its own program and practices as they relate to issues involved in a Christian world order, bring to a general knowledge the studies of world order by Christian groups throughout the world, stimulate every church and community to inaugurate an effective program of study and action on these issues and develop local

Nazis Blowing Up Their Supplies As Reds Gain On All Fronts

By the Associated Press

London (Monday), Aug. 30.—Russia's southern armies plunging toward the Dnieper River killed 6000 Germans and captured nearly 100 villages yesterday in gains of 4 to 9 miles, Moscow announced early today, amid strong indications that Axis lines were cracking in the huge Donets Basin.

Soviet airmen reported the Germans were blowing up ammunition dumps and stores southwest of Voroshilovgrad in the Donets Basin preparatory to retreat. A communique also announced one Russian formation alone had killed 2000 Germans and was "forging ahead, crushing enemy manpower and equipment," in that area.

Quitting En Masse

Hundreds of Germans were surrendering en masse on the 450-mile front between Bryansk and Voroshilovgrad, Moscow said, as the Red army continued to display an unparalleled summer punch.

A great wheeling movement west and south of Kharkov threatened perhaps 800,000 Germans in the extended Donets Basin-Kuban salient southeast of Kharkov.

The Germans were throwing construction battalions and other rearguard units into desperate fighting to hold their Donets lines. If they are forced to withdraw they face a 200-mile retreat westward to the Dnieper River bend.

Fifty villages fell to the Russians west and south of Kharkov, where gains up to 7½ miles were made, the Russians said. Among the towns captured was Lyubotin, a rail junction, 25 miles due west of Kharkov. Other Russian units that had swung to the northwest, however, were driving down the Psel-Vorksla River valleys to envelop Poltava, big Axis base 85 miles southwest of Kharkov on the approaches to the Dnieper River bend.

Counterattacks Fail

Forty villages were seized below Bryansk, where the Russians said their men beat off eight consecutive counterattacks and killed 1000 Germans west of Sevsk. The communique spoke of "wearing down the enemy" in that sector.

South of Sevsk the Russians overran 16 villages and captured a strongly fortified enemy defense line. Four hundred Germans fell in that one engagement, said the communique. In a neighboring sector "a company of Germans (about 200 men) laid down their arms and surrendered."

"During Saturday on all fronts our troops destroyed or disabled 110 enemy tanks and shot down 82 enemy planes in air combat and by antiaircraft fire," it was announced.

The Army newspaper Red Star said the Soviet troops pushing

U. S. Fliers Got Record Haul In Greatest Daylight Air Fray

By International News Service

London, Aug. 29.—Britain-based American planes were disclosed tonight to have set a new world record for a single day's bag in combat on August 17 when they shot down at least 307 German fighters in what was officially termed "the greatest daylight aerial engagement in all history."

The Eighth United States Air Force at the same time suffered its heaviest loss to date in the gigantic aerial struggle of that day from which 59 four-engined Flying Fortresses failed to return.

The sensational victory—revealed in a communique issued by American headquarters for the European theater—was scored in ferocious running air duels provoked by the August 17 twin-pronged Fortress assaults on Regensburg and Schwienfurt deep inside Germany.

In the number of planes destroyed on both sides, the American triumph represented a margin of better than 5 to 1 over the cream of Adolf Hitler's shaken fighter pilots.

It far surpassed the greatest single day's bag heretofore achieved—the shooting down of at least 185 German planes by the RAF on September 15, 1940, at the peak of the Battle of Britain.

The 307 total did not include numerous Nazi planes demolished on the ground at Regensburg where one of the two huge Fortress formations knocked out an aircraft factory which had produced at least one-third of all Germany's day fighters.

The bulletin said the B-17 Boeing bombers which blasted the Regensburg Messerschmitt works had "destroyed in the air" no less than 140 out of the many hundreds of Messerschmitt and Focke-Wulf fighters the Germans sent into the air that day.

This was the first official disclosure of the number of planes shot down by the Fortress formation sent against Regensburg in southeast Germany. The announcement had to be delayed because these Fortresses had "shuttled" across the Mediterranean to North Africa after the raid and returned to their bases in Britain only a few days ago, bombing a Bordeaux air-

How a Flying Fort Shot Down 11 Nazi Fighters on One Trip

By Bob Considine
International News Service Staff Writer

U. S. Bomber Base, Somewhere in England, Aug. 29.—The Flying Fortress which still holds the record for destroying the greatest number of German fighters on one mission—11—lies riddled in the North Sea 100 miles from land. But there was glory in its death.

It died fighting one of the war's most pitiless air battles. All 10 boys in its crew were saved after not only the Homeric battle in the air but also after 30 hours in life rafts. Their story, in many ways, is without a parallel.

The boys are First Lieut. Bob Smith, Lemesa, Tex., the pilot; Second Lieut. Bob McCallum, Omaha, Nebr., who copiloted the ship and became perhaps the first Fortress copilot ever to shoot down a plane; Second Lieut. Dan Berberis, North Bergen, N. J., the navigator who pointed the ship for the home she never reached, and Gunnery Sergts. Wayne J. Gray, Pittsburgh; Bennett F. Buchanan, Fort Worth, Tex.; Hendrik Kate, Manchester, N. H.; Arthur R. Adrian, Milwaukee; Zygmund C. Warminski, Hamtramck, Mich.; Clarence W. Durham, Chattanooga, and Billy Lamb, Waco, Tex. Their shooting that day made history.

The raid was on Wilhelmshaven. Adrian got the first German, a Messerschmitt, just off the German coast. He must have plugged the pilot, for the fighter and its occupant went straight down in a terrible, smokeless dive into the

Planes Will Lead New Attacks On Japs, Adm. McCain Says

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Vice Admiral John S. McCain, deputy chief of naval operations for air, yesterday predicted new "piledriver blows" spearheaded by aircraft against the Japs in the Pacific, and said:

"Naval aviation has become an extremely powerful weapon, possibly the most powerful."

His statement was part of an official anniversary summary of the Navy's first 30 years in aviation, including these highlights of its air activities in this war:

A baby "flat-top," one of an undisclosed number of the second-string aircraft carriers which the Navy has built for convoy and combat work, helped cover the American invaders of Attu Island, westernmost of the Aleutians, in May, during the first ten days when our land-based planes from nearby islands were unable to take off because of weather.

As an example of the protection which the baby flat-tops furnish convoys in the 500 to 600 mile stretch of mid-Atlantic where patrol by land based planes is difficult, the Navy said pilots from one of these ships had attacked 11 submarines, had sunk two, and probably had sunk eight more.

At the outbreak of the last war, the Navy had one air station, 38 officers, 163 enlisted men, and 54 planes. Now it has air stations throughout the world, a 30,000-a-year pilot training program, and a 100,000-a-year mechanic training program. It also has about a dozen

Goebbels Orders Berliners Not to Leave Home at Night

By the Associated Press

Madrid, Aug. 29.—German Propaganda Minister Goebbels has issued instructions that "nobody in Berlin may leave his home during the night without an approved reason," the Spanish newspaper ABC reported today.

The order aims at making "participation in the cleaning up of bomb damage after air raids obligatory for everybody," and is an effort to halt the nightly flow of Germans into the fields and forests around Berlin. Everyone in Berlin expects more and bigger bombings, the paper reported.

The overnight exodus was reported to have resulted in a breakdown of the Germans' passive defense and repair work.

Last night, only the main streets had been cleared of debris from last Monday night's attack by 700 British bombers. Many sidestreets were still blocked, and electric light, gas and water service in some districts still was not functioning, it was said.

One correspondent was particularly impressed by the reaction of Berlin residents to the air raids, and told of seeing youths risking their necks in bombed and burning buildings to rescue "things which in other countries wouldn't be worth rescuing."

"Of course it must be remembered that a raincoat or overcoat in Germany is beginning to be a collector's piece," he said.

The population was beginning to be bitterly despondent and weary, he added.

45 Ships Blasted, 9 Others Escape To Sweden as Germans Attack

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, Aug. 29.—Germany clamped down a military dictatorship over Denmark today, but the effort to crush the revolting Danes met violent resistance immediately as Danish naval forces scuttled most of their fleet in a battle with German troops.

Forty-five ships were scuttled as the battle raged in Copenhagen naval yard with Nazis storming in vainly trying to prevent the destruction, said one Danish witness who escaped to Sweden. Fighting also was reported in Copenhagen barracks between the Germans and Royal Guard this afternoon.

Fresh German troops, planes, tanks and armored cars were flung into the strategic little kingdom swept by rebellion and sabotage.

Nazi Gen. Hermann von Hanneken proclaimed martial law, threatening ruthless enforcement of his decrees.

Flee to Sweden

Nine Danish ships—two small destroyers, six torpedo boats, and a minsweeper—fled to Sweden.

The Germans were taking no chances of losing control in this country which affords the shortest invasion highway by land to Berlin.

Venerable King Christian X, who will be 73 next month, was interned in Sorgenfri castle outside Copenhagen, and other government leaders resigned and were arrested after scorning an eight-point German ultimatum, said advices seeping through a strict communications blackout.

The Danish scuttling followed on a smaller scale the blazing French example when the Germans poured into Toulon last November to overrun all France in a vain bid to seize the French fleet.

Violent explosions shook the Copenhagen harbor area in the murky pre-dawn overcast as the Danes blew up ammunition dumps and blasted holes in ship hulls to send them to the bottom.

The detonations drowned out machine gun and rifle shots and the rumble of tanks as Danes and Germans clashed on the shore. Fires started by the explosions cast a thick smoke pall over the harbor.

Nazi Planes in Patrol

("Jane's Fighting Ships" lists the Danish navy as having two coastal defense ships—the Niels Iuel of 3800 tons and Peder Skram of 1500 tons—which lie between a destroyer and cruiser in size, 34 torpedo boats, 12 submarines, three minesweepers, and other patrol and depot ships.)

German planes circled over Copenhagen all day in huge numbers in ominous patrol.

The ships that escaped to Sweden carried about 400 persons, many of them army and navy officers and personnel, and there was speculation whether some government members might have escaped. It was believed the military personnel would be interned.

All the ships docked at Landskrona, except for one torpedo boat which eluded guns of a German submarine and airplane before racing into Malmo on the southern tip

Pope's Talk Now Set Wednesday

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—Pope Pius XII will broadcast a message over the Vatican and all Italian radio stations Wednesday at 7:15 a. m. Eastern war time, the Rome radio announced today.

The Vatican radio had said last night an important announcement might be made today, but the station went off the air immediately after mass Sunday morning without making any statement. The Rome broadcast followed a few hours later.

Power Fight Seen as Sequel To Boris' Death

United States.

The new King, Simeon 2d, is 6 years old, and King Boris' brother, Prince Kyril, never has demonstrated the slightest trace of the late King's political and administrative shrewdness.

All liberal and democratic parties in Bulgaria are suppressed, but three main ones are known to be continuing their existence underground.

In Turkey there was speculation that the change of Bulgarian kings raised three possibilities:

1. Orderly establishment of a regency under German protection.

2. An army coup d'etat through the Bulgarian army and Bulgarian national police to place the country entirely in the hands of Berlin.

3. A popular uprising which would overthrow the monarchy and establish a republican or socialist government under the sway of Russia.

A popular revolt is considered possible only if the Germans are unable to send sufficiently strong forces into Bulgaria or to the borders to protect the pro-German army and police from such an uprising.

While the German radio relayed what it said were official announcements from Sofia that King Boris died of natural causes, his death remained a mystery with rumors continuing to circulate that his illness had been induced by a violent quarrel with Hitler or that he had been shot by an anti-Fascist.

Hitler Commiserates

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Berlin radio said today that Adolf Hitler had sent telegrams of sympathy to Premier Bogdan Philoff and Queen Ioanna of Bulgaria following the death of King Boris.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Hitler sent this telegram to the premier:

"I would like to convey to your excellency on the occasion of the death of His Majesty King Boris mine and the German people's most cordial sympathy.

"I know that you are closely linked to your sovereign in his historic mission for the future of Bulgaria as a faithful counsellor. I feel with you deeply the heavy loss which Bulgaria has suffered.

"Please express by condolences also to the royal Bulgarian Cabinet."

The following telegram, the broadcast said, went to the widowed Queen:

"The moving news of the death of His Majesty King Boris has given me great sorrow. Bulgaria loses in King Boris a sovereign who led the history of his people with admirable courage and circumspect wisdom.

"I myself lose in him a faithful friend and ally whose memory will be forever highly honored by myself and the German people. I ask your majesty to accept mine and the whole German people's deeply felt and sincere sympathy for the royal house and the Bulgarian nation."

Call for 2d Front In France Cheered By Communists

Algiers, Aug. 29 (AP).—A declaration by a Communist deputy that the "second front must be opened in France or it will be a secondary front" was cheered today by 3500 Communist sympathizers at a party meeting in an Algiers theater.

Henri Portalet, who was given a mandate by the French Communist Party last spring to contact the French government in North Africa and who spent three months reaching here via a Spanish prison, told the throng:

"Ninety-five per cent of the French people are united against Hitler and the Vichy traitors.

"France is open to Allied invasion from three seas. We do not believe it impossible to open a second front there. We (Communists) are willing to take a back seat if our party hinders the union of the French. On the other hand, if our party is an element of union we will do all in our power to achieve it. Our only aim is to serve France."

OEW Paving Way To Boost Shipping To Latin America

The Office of Economic Warfare notified exporters yesterday that export controls for shipments to Latin America probably would be relaxed soon because of "improved prospects for a more stabilized shipping situation."

OEW, in a bulletin to exporters, said modifications must be agreed to by the other American republics, but that "there is a feeling of optimism that simplification of documentary procedure on goods in free supply in the United States might be practicable in the very near future."

The change, it was reported, would expedite movement of commodities to Latin America, and likely permit the flow of a greater volume of goods where the supply is available.

craft factory on their way back.

Previously, American headquarters had announced that the Fortress fleet which devastated a ball and roller-bearing works at Schweinfurt, coincident with the Regensburg attack, had shot down 147 Nazi fighters. U. S. P-47 Thunderbolt fighters, which escorted the Fortresses part of the way to and back from Schweinfurt, knocked down another 20 enemy interceptors, to bring the day's bag up to 307.

The stunning victory of August 17 marked the first aniversary of the first bombing raid over Europe by the Eighth U. S. Air Force.

"The Fortresses in their 'birthday attacks' on Regensburg and Schweinfurt," said the announcement, "fought the greatest daylight aerial engagement in all history.

"They shot down more fighters than were ever destroyed in any day during the battle of Britain.

"But they also suffered a grievous loss of 59 ships and more than 500 brave boys, some of whom must be prisoners."

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—Fighter squadrons damaged several locomotives and barges in attacks today on railway lines and canals serving the Germans in France and northwest Germany, the air ministry announced tonight.

"One enemy fighter was destroyed by a Royal Canadian Air Force Mustang," the bulletin said. "One of our aircraft is missing."

of Sweden.

While the fate of King Christian and the cabinet was uncertain, Danes in Sweden considered it likely they were all under house arrest, and one report via Malmo said German soldiers had occupied Sorgenfri Castle.

Denmark, once famed for its butter and bacon production, had been under German sway since the almost bloodless occupation April 9, 1940, but now Danish courts and the government were swept aside by Von Hannecken, already hated by the Danes. He is known as a "Goering man."

His decree putting the country entirely under the Nazi war boot came in a broadcast proclamation at 4:10 a. m. today asserting that "recent disturbances have shown that Danish authorities are no longer in a position to maintain law and order," and that "disturbances created by enemy agents are directly pointed at German armed forces."

The decree forbade all strikes, imposed a curfew at dusk, banned civil communications, and declared that "all incitement to strike to the detriment of German armed forces will be considered as an enemy act and will usually be punished by death."

All assemblies of more than five persons in public or private were forbidden, with church services the only exception.

The position of German Minister Werner Best, who had followed a policy of liberal collaboration with the Danes, was not clear. He was reported to have declared after Danish rejection of his ultimatum that "I'm a dead man in Berlin. My policy has failed." Von Hannecken's decree put most of the ultimatum demands into effect.

Best had been in Germany to receive instructions in combatting the resistance, and one report said he conferred with Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, whose ruthless iron-hand methods were detected in the measures newly invoked in Denmark.

Floor Put Under Potters' Wages

Cleveland, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Regional War Labor Board tonight put a floor under wages of 18,000 employes of 30 companies affiliated with the U. S. Potters' Association and announced some upward adjustments in a unanimous decision covering various issues of a dispute with the AFL National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

In adopting recommendations of a tripartite panel which conducted hearings at Canton, Ohio, last June, the board ordered the association to maintain present wage rates without reduction and give gradual individual increases—with certain limitations—to new employes until they receive the rate paid older workers in the same department.

Planes Will Lead New Attacks on Japs, Says Admiral McCain

new combat carriers, launched since Pearl Harbor, an undisclosed number of baby flat-tops, an authorized program for 200 lighter-than-air ships, and a goal of having 27,500 planes by the end of this year. One of the new carriers, the Hornet, will be launched at Norfolk today.

American carrier-based planes helped decide many of the major Pacific battles of this war, the Navy recited, and as one example Navy and Marine fliers from Henderson Field cost the enemy at least 1000 planes over Guadalcanal.

Good Rescue Record

More than 60 per cent of all naval fliers forced down at sea during this war have been rescued. In citing this figure the Navy said that what many considered the miraculous rescue of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker was actually a result of the Navy's persistent search policy. Rescue of hundreds of its pilots at sea, the Navy said, "contrasts with the Japanese practice of considering their lost pilots as expended ammunition."

The Navy reviewed the early accomplishments of its fliers, and in this connection, Admiral McCain said that without their daring accomplishments and "unshakable faith in the military utility of the airplane there would have been no recommendation 30 years ago that there be established within the Navy an aeronautical organization."

"Possibly Most Powerful"

In predicting that carrier-based aircraft would spearhead future blows against the Japs, Admiral McCain said: "The Navy has always sought to bring all its weapons to bear against an enemy simultaneously, believing that such coordinated attack is the most effective.

"Naval aviation has become an extremely powerful weapon, possibly the most powerful. Let every officer and man in naval aviation resolve, on this anniversary of the formal beginnings of this branch, to continue and to intensify the unrelenting punishment we have given the enemy from the air, until he is utterly defeated."

Hess Now Writes Verse No Better Than Peace Plan

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—Rudolf Hess, who wrote a peace plan and flew to Britain with it, now spends his time writing poor verse, sheet after sheet, the Daily Express said today.

When Hitler's No. 2 deputy landed in Britain May 10, 1941, he was a typical Nazi, aggressive, arrogant and apparently certain of a German triumph. Now his aggressiveness is gone because other prisoners have told him of certain Axis defeat. He is quiet, moody and often depressed.

Only once in two years has he been taken from his place of confinement in the English countryside, the Daily Express said.

The newspaper said the Hess "peace plan" provided for a United States of Europe with Hitler as president and that Britain should yield to the Axis her Mediterranean, Suez and Middle East spheres of influence.

TO HELP SHORTEN THE WAR...

TRAVEL SPARINGLY*

• There is an important and intimate reason why you are requested NOT to travel, unless it is absolutely necessary.

For every day the war is prolonged increases the chances that someone close to you will become a casualty. And every way by which you can help Shorten the War increases his prospects for coming back to you!

With the acute shortage of passenger carrying equipment trains too often are over-crowded. Yet the peak of wartime travel has not been reached!

Save all the Pullman and coach space you can for the men and women in the services... for people directly engaged in war work... and, yes, for helping to quicken the time when those who are away will come back to you.

So if your proposed trip will not help Shorten the War, please don't travel.

*Don't travel unless absolutely necessary

—but if you MUST travel you also can help solve the wartime transportation problem if you will:

• Plan every trip and buy round-trip tickets as far in advance as possible.

• Accept cheerfully the accommodations that are available.

• Cancel your reservations promptly, if it becomes necessary to change your plans.

• Travel only during the middle of the week.

• Travel light, taking only one piece of baggage on train.

• Wait your turn in the dining car patiently.

Armorplate Shields Used By Germans

Moscow, Aug. 29 (AP).—The latest German device of defense against the Red army is a portable armor-plated shield something like the crusaders used to carry.

The shields, measuring 30 by 50 inches, are placed at important points and German troops hide behind them to fire on advancing Red army men, according to Pravda.

The Germans also have produced steel and concrete boxes, holding six or seven men, which serve as readymade fortifications, Pravda reported, adding that more than 70 of these were found along 2½ miles of the Donets Basin front.

Several of these boxes are sometimes placed on top of each other to form a multiple-storied pillbox.

Pravda said the Germans fire machine guns and rifles through grates at the bottom of the boxes in close-range combat and open metal windows to fire small-caliber cannon when fighting at long range.

Made U. S. Chief in Ireland

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—Col. E. A. Eversburg of San Antonio, Tex., has been appointed commander of all United States Army units in Northern Ireland ports, army headquarters in England announced today.

He relieves Col. Karl F. Hausauer of St. Simon Island, Ga., who has been assigned to the office of chief of transport in the European theater.

U. S. Decorates Briton

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—The U. S. Army's Legion of Merit has been awarded to Brig. Donald Campion of the British army for outstanding service in working with American officers on the supply program for the United Nations.

Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of U. S. forces in the European theater, made the presentation on direction of President Roosevelt.

Japs Move Priests, Nuns

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—The German news agency DNB reported from Peiping today that the Japanese had transferred 461 Catholic priests and nuns of Allied nationality from an internment camp at Weishien in Shantung Province to Peiping where they would be allowed "to pursue their religious activities."

Presence of Eden, Maisky in London Stirs Parley Talk

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden returned to England from Quebec by air today and the event immediately set off speculation over the likelihood of an imminent war conference of Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia.

Concurrently, a good unofficial source said Ivan M. Maisky, a new Soviet Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs, had returned to Britain, where he was recently Ambassador. He may have made the trip just to say goodbys, but that is regarded as unlikely.

The Daily Mail bannered: "Stalin will join three-power talks." It said the Allies "are in fullest agreement."

The Mail's diplomatic correspondent said Eden and Maisky would meet Monday to discuss arrangements for the get-together of American, British and Russian experts.

'Toe' Apparently Deserted by Foe, Fliers Report

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Aug. 29.—Allied air units increased the intensity of their 'round-the-clock blows against southern and central Italy yesterday and last night, with bombing raids extending to the north of Rome.

Returning fliers said the Italian toe appeared to have been deserted by the enemy.

Bombers from North Africa again concentrated on vital rail centers along the the western side of the mainland while American Liberators from the Middle East joined in the offensive by attacking shipping and rail installations at Taranto, important naval base on the Italian heel.

The Liberators scored a direct hit on a large cruiser, from which heavy black smoke was seen to rise, and a near miss on a medium-sized vessel believed to be a transport.

A US Ninth Air Force communique said "particularly heavy damage was done to railway installations" at Taranto, with one direct hit on the main station and another on a freight train in the yards which exploded and burned. Smoke rising from the target could be seen for 25 miles.

The Taranto raid followed a night attack by the RAF which pounded Crotone on the sole of the Italian boot.

American Flying Fortresses made the day's deepest penetration, striking briefly but effectively at the railroad yards at Terni, 45 miles north of Rome.

The raiders in the Naples area encountered large numbers of enemy fighters.

Twenty-eighth enemy aircraft were shot down against an Allied loss of eight planes. An Italian communique declared the Allies lost 29 planes.

American Warhawks, which have been roaming the skies over Sardinia at will, encountered enemy fighters yesterday and shot down six of about 30 Messerschmitt 109s which attacked as the Warhawks were bombing factory buildings near Fluminimaggiore on the island's west coast.

No Active Defense

The tactical air force gave the toe of Italy another concentrated blasting and one RAF flight leader reported a complete absence of flak or other signs of active enemy defense either around the Strait of Messina or deeper inland.

The Flying Fortresses crammed their attack on the Terni rail yards into a terrific five minutes of bombing. In that brief period tons of bombs landed in the center of the yards and on gas and electrical works, an arms factory and a railway repair shop. One large explosion was seen in the yards.

2 D. C. Area Men Missing In Action

One Washington man, one Virginian and two men from Maryland are among 216 soldiers listed as missing in action, the War Department announced yesterday.

First Lieut. Joel M. Silverman, whose father, Abraham Silverman, a buyer for Lansburgh Bros., formerly lived at 3700 Massachusetts ave. nw., has been reported missing in action in the Middle East area.

Pvt. Anthony J. Graff, 26, whose father Clifford H. Graff, lives at 7731 Georgetown rd., Bethesda, Md., has been reported missing in action in the North Africa area which includes Sicily.

A native of Cincinnatti, Private Graff attended the public schools in Albuquerque, N. Mex., and was employed as a hotel operating engineer there prior to his inducton in January, 1941. He has been overseas since June of this year.

Also reported missing in action in the North African area is Pvt. John R. Lusby, jr., of Baltimore, Md.

Tech. Sergt. Elijah D. Johnson of Dry Fork, Va., has been reported missing in action in the European area.

Lack of Teachers Held Handicap To Future Citizen

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 29 (AP).—Thousands of American school children are being more seriously crippled by the teacher shortage of this war than they would be by bombs, machine guns and malnutrition, Samuel M. Brownell, professor of educational administration at Yale, declared tonight.

"They are suffering injuries that will as surely handicap their future ability to become the successful adults they might have been as would the physical wounds of bombs and machine guns or the scourge of malnutrition," he maintained in an address for the weekly Yale broadcast.

Estimatnig the teacher shortage at between 15,000 and 25,000, Professor Brownell suggested it had not yet reached its peak, since the financial and patriotic urges to enter war industries are still operating on the teachers.

Base Honors Memory of 3 D. C. Officers

Three Washington Army officers who were killed on war duty have been honored by the Fort Bell Army base in Bermuda, which named streets for them, the War Department announced yesterday. The officers are Col. George W. Ricker, Col. Charles W. Bundy and Lieut. Col. William H. Murphy.

Colonel Ricker's wife, Mrs. Gladys Ricker, lives here at 1401 44th st. nw. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal in October, 1942, for his technical work at the Coast Artillery School. He died December 12 last year in the crash of an Army plane near Bishop, Calif., which killed seven others. A native of Newburyport, Mass., he was graduated from Bowdoin College and the University of Wisconsin. After receiving his commission as a second lieutenant in the Army's Coast Artillery Corps, he attended the Army War College here. Since 1937, he had been assigned to the General Staff Corps.

On Same Plane

Colonel Bundy's wife, Mrs. Helen M. N. Bundy, resides here at 4707 Connecticut ave. nw., with their son, Richard. Colonel Bundy received the Distinguished Service Medal in October, 1942, for work as an adviser at the Atlantic conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill and for participation in a mission to London and Moscow. He was killed in the same plane with Colonel Ricker.

Colonel Murphy's widow, Mrs. Catherine Probey Murphy, and two children, Catherine Anne and William Herbert, jr., live here at 4700 Connecticut ave.

His mother, Mrs. George Herbert, Murphy, lives at the Burlington Hotel.

Pioneer in Radio Work

Colonel Murphy was a pioneer in radio work who contributed much to the development of radio beams used by commercial and military aircraft. He was killed in action February 3, last year, while in service with the Allied High Command in the Far East. Born in Germany, he was the son of George Herbert Murphy who was then American consul general in that country. He attended Washington public schools.

Both N. Y. Parties Drop Aurelio After Charges

New York, Aug. 29 (INS).—Events moved swiftly today in the wake of publication of charges by District Attorney Frank Hogan that the nomination of Magistrate Thomas A. Aurelio as a candidate for the Supreme Court had been "swung" by Frank Costello, alleged racketeer.

As a possible court airing of the matter loomed, first result of the Hogan statement was the "dropping" of Aurelio by both the Democratic Party, which nominated him, and by the Republicans, who had indorsed his candidacy.

Both Secretary of State Thomas J. Curran, chairman of the New York County Republican Committee, and Michael J. Kennedy, leader of Tammany Hall, issued statements last night expressing shock at the Hogan disclosures.

Veteran Flier From District Awarded DFC

Corpl. John B. Logan, member of a Flying Fortress squadron, reported to have made from 80 to 100 combat missions during 19 months of fighting in the Pacific without any loss of equipment or personnel, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, according to the Associated Press.

He was one of 36 officers and men who were given Distinguished Flying Crosses, Air Medals or Oak Leaf Clusters Friday by Col. Charles H. Rice, commandnig officer of the point of embarkation in San Francisco.

The squadron, the oldest of the Army Air Forces in point of service in this war, was in service at Hickam Field when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, and has seen action at Midway, Wake, the Marshall and Gilbert Islands and the Solomons.

A native Washingtonian, Corpl. Logan, 26, attended St. John's School here and the Bliss Electrical School in Takoma Park, Md. Inducted in February, 1942, he was stationed at Camp Lee and Keesler Field, Miss., before going overseas.

Corporal Logan's mother, Mrs. Ellen C. Logan, who lives at 3632 Warren st. nw., said yesterday that she had received a telegram from her son Friday saying that he was on his way home and would arrive here sometime this week.

Two Sweethearts Of Duce Reported Under Arrest

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 29 (INS). Clara and Maria Petacci, sisters and sweethearts of Benito Mussolini, have been arrested at Meina on Lake Maggiore, the newspaper Dietat reported today.

The arrests were made on charges the women appropriated large sums of state funds and important state documents. Their parents, Dr. and Signora Francesco Petacci, also were reported arrested.

Dr. Petacci is understood to have enjoyed extensive privileges in Rome because of his daughters' favored positions.

Il Duce was said to have fallen in love with Clara, now between 25 and 30 and recently divorced from an Italian air force officer, as soon as he set eyes on her dark-haired Italian beauty. He built her an ostentatious villa near Rome and reserved a special apartment for her in his Palazzo Venezia.

Il Duce made Maria, the younger, a film star although she was entirely without talent. While enjoying the dictator's favors she also was married to Marquis Boiana, with whom she was living at the time of her arrest.

French Thank Allies for Recognition

By the Associated Press

Algiers, Aug. 29.—Generals Henri Giraud and Charles de Gaulle, co-leaders of the French Committee of National Liberation, have cabled joint messages of appreciation to President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Premier Josef Stalin for the diplomatic recognition given by the Allied governments.

The two French chiefs informed President Roosevelt of their "real satisfaction" at the United States' decision and expressions of sympathy, adding that these would reinforce collaboration between the Allies and the French nation.

The cable to Churchill declared "the victory which is coming and of which we have never despaired will find the people of the two nations closely united in peace."

The message to Stalin praised the "magnificent action of the people and of the heroic armies of the Soviet Union" in contributing so largely to common victory.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King also was sent a message expressing "particular appreciation" over Canada's recognition.

The liberation committee released the texts of recognition declarations by the governments-in-exile of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Belgium, and Yugoslavia. All except Poland and Belgium took that step in June, some two months before Washington, London and Moscow acted.

French opinion continues to regard the Soviet action as the most generous of any major Allied power, while the restrictions which hedged American recognition were seen as in sharp contrast to it.

Japanese Seized Portuguese Ship, Chinese Report

Chungking, Aug. 29 (AP).—A flagrant violation of Portuguese neutrality was reported today by the Chinese central news agency which said that 200 Japanese and Chinese puppet troops in plain clothes forcibly commandeered the river steamer Sian at Macao August 18 after killing more than 20 armed guards and policemen.

The Japanese seized the ship after Portuguese authorities refused to sell it, the agency said. Macao, a colony of 6 square miles on an island at the mouth of the Canton River came into possession of the Portuguese in 1557.

More than 100 refugees, including Chinese, Portuguese and Filipinos, were aboard the Sian. They were forced to remain aboard when the ship put to sea.

Allies Down 14 Jap Planes in Battle Over Foe's Air Base on Bougainville

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific (Sunday), Aug. 29.—Fourteen Japanese fighter planes were downed in a new air fight over Japan's big air base on South Bougainville, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Below Bougainville on the southern tip of Kolombangaria, Japan's bypassed air base of Vila was pounded in its third daylight raid.

American troops occupy New Georgia below Kolombangara and Vella Lavella above it.

Headquarters also disclosed for the first time that in the northeastern New Guinea campaign, in which American and Australian troops are closing in on the Salamaua airdrome, the land forces are under the command of Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, an Australian.

In that battle sector, Allied planes kept up the daily war on supply barges. Long range fighters, striking in the Vitu Islands above New Britain, destroyed three coastal vessels and five barges in John Albert Harbor. In Jacquinot Bay, southern New Britain, three other barges were wrecked.

Off Kavieng, New Ireland, where Allied bombers have been finding numerous shipping targets recently, a 2500 ton cargo ship was bombed and damaged.

The big bag of Japanese fighters over Bougainville was made while American bombers, escorted by fighters, were on another in a series of raids on the Kahili Airdrome, the biggest one still left to the enemy in all the Solomons.

The 14 were downed out of a force of 30 interceptors.

Other big bombers went after Japan's seaplane base at Rekata Bay on Santa Isabel Island, 100 miles northeast of newly conquered New Georgia.

The communique made no direct reference to the fighting at Salamaua, where Allied jungle troops now control virtually all the south bank of the Francisco River, have crossed it inland and are at the southwestern edge of the airdrome.

There General Blamey is in the field, a spokesman for General MacArthur said.

Swedes' Fishing In Skagerrak Angers Berlin

By the Associated Press

The German government announced last night that it has made representations to Sweden "protesting against neutrality violations by Swedish fishing vessels which entered the prohibited zone of the Skagerrak."

"The Reich government expressed the expectation that persons responsible for neutrality violations will be taken to account by the Swedish government," a Berlin broadcast said.

Sweden on Saturday lodged a protest to Germany against the sinking of two Swedish fishing vessels by German warships off the northwest coast of Denmark on August 25.

French to Store Food

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—An appeal to farmers of occupied France to store food for the "difficult period" that may follow Allied invasion of Europe was broadcast today by Radio France at Algiers.

An invasion would lead the Germans to increase their demands on France, and military operations likely would prevent the Allies from bringing food to the French people for a while, said the broadcast.

It also urged farmers to make arrangement to take food to city markets at the proper time to prevent famine and help the populace in "the great fight for national liberation."

Mission to Set Postwar Plans Of Protestants

leadership for continuing the tasks of education and action in the church and community with respect to postwar problems."

The Federation of Churches will be sponsors of the local mission, to include a peace discussion, in which leaders from the fields of business, government and religion will take part; a youth rally, dinner and other features. While the mission will run from November 1 to 20, nationally, the local date has not been set, according to a Federation of Churches' spokesman.

Agencies to Cooperate

Cooperating agencies in the project will be the Federal Council of Churches, central body of American Protestantism, representing 25 million Christians; the Foreign Missions Conference of North America; the Home Missions Council of North America; the International Council of Religious Education, cooperating agency of boards of Christian education of 42 denominations and 175,000 Sunday schools; the Missionary Education Movement and the United Council of Churchwomen.

The figures behind the huge Protestant undertaking are well-known here. They are Dr. Walter Van Kirk, secretary of the Commission to Study a Just and Durable Peace, and mission director; Dr. Mark Dawber of the Home Missions Council; Ruth Mougey Worrell, United Council of Churchwomen; Gilbert LeSourd, Missionary Education Movement; Quinter Miller of the Federal Council; Leslie B. Moss, chairman of the Committee on Oversea Relief and Reconstruction of the Federal Council and Foreign Missions Conference; Herman Sweet, International Council of Religious Education, and Paul Macy, executive secretary of the Friends of the World Council of Churches, and member of The Protestant Voice editorial board. Macy will be assistant director of the mission.

Travel Troubles May Bar Orchestra Tour of Maryland

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—Oscar Apple, president of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, said today that the preseason State tour of the orchestra may be canceled because of travel restrictions.

However, he said, no final decision will be made until Reginald Steward, orchestra director, returns to Baltimore on September 11.

The planned concerts in Salisbury and Cumberland "definitely will be canceled," Apple said, unless there is some change in the Office of Defense Transportation decision that orchestras will receive no travel priorities.

Other cities to be included in the tour were Frederick, Hagerstown and Westminster, but even those engagements, Apple said, were tentative at present. The tour was to start about 10 days before the regular symphony season opened on November 14.

Mrs. Roosevelt Says People Must Take Postwar Initiative

Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 29 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in a speech broadcast tonight stressed the need for men and women of the United Nations to exert their mutual energy to solve postwar reconstruction and other problems.

Speaking of the prewar economic depression, she said: "All in the United Nations must exert every energy to prevent the world from falling into such a state again. I don't think this time we should rely wholly on leaders. The people must learn a lesson. If democracy is to prove itself, the voice of the people must be more articulate."

Hope of More Gas In East Fades

be moved East for civilian use, we hope most certainly to increase the A ration in the East."

Harrsion restated Friday night's announcement that the special allowance of 5 gallons for furlough driving by servicemen would be reinstated September 1, and reminded "B" and "C" book holders that they have only two days left in which to exchange them for new type books.

Delay Till Last Moment

It was generally expected here that a formal order ending the ban on pleasure driving in the East would be delayed until the last practicable moment, probably tomorrow, to head off any tendency of motorists to take to the highways in force this weekend.

Manpower shortages may do more than fuel oil rationing to keep householders cold this winter, the Office of Defense Transportation (ODT) said yesterday.

Local distributors of fuel oil face serious shortages of tank truck drivers and mechanics to keep their trucks in shape, ODT reported in urging all such distributors to seek War Manpower Commission designation as "locally needed" industries at once.

Designation of an industry as "locally needed" does not make its employes immune to the draft, but does open the way for local draft boards to defer such employes if it is decided their efforts are important to the local war effort.

Lemon Pallbearers Include Four Justices

Honorary pallbearers for the funeral of William F. Lemon, for 39 years assistant clerk of the District Court, which will be held today at 2:30 at Gawler's chapel, were announced yesterday. They are Justices Jennings Bailey, F. Dickinson Letts, Daniel W. O'Donoghue, and James M. Proctor, Commissioner Guy Mason, Renah F. Cavalier, Andrew B. Duvall, Albert W. Howard, Milton W. King, Alvin L. Newmyer, Dr. Harry A. Polkinharn, Charles E. Stewart, Walter M. Duvall and Stanley D. Willis.

How Flying Fortress Shot Down a Record Number of 11 German Fighters Before Plunging to Glorious Grave

The Fortress was heavily slugged with flak over the target. Superchargers on two of its engines were shot off. It dropped out of formation, and the German fighters, flying right through their own flak, came after it greedily. A Focke-Wulf rushed it head-on Gray, the nose gunner, got him. The flaming meteor barely missed the front of the Fort. That was No. 2.

Buchanan and Kate got the next one, an FW which whirled and tried a suicide dive on the Fort. That was No. 3. Buchanan got No. 4 "when he came too damn close."

The Fort was losing altitude. Its oxygen was shot. Oil was gushing out of one of the motors and the cowling had been shot off another. An ME came for its nose, but Gray got him before he could do too much damage. That was No. 5.

Belly Gun Gets No. 6

Victim No. 6 blew to bits under Adrian's belly gun after blasting fires in three parts of the Fort. While fighting one of the fires, Durham looked up and an FW was streaking at the Fort from the side. He kept his gun on him from 500 yards until the FW was 50 nerve-wrecking yards away, at which time the Nazi disintegrated. That was No. 7.

Lamb, the tail gunner, sitting on his little saddle, saw a fighter going three times as fast as the crippled Fort and coming straight at him. Lamb opened up. Then he noticed another fighter diving on him. He trained his double 50's on the diver. He not only got him but the diving fighter crashed sickeningly into the other German, and both went down. They were Nos. 8 and 9.

Two Nazis remained, out of 11. The Fort was pitiful now, almost down to the water and just about out of ammunition. Adrian used up his last bullets to blast a wing off one of the fighters. That was No. 10, but the only bullets left were in the top turret gun now. And Pilot Smith ordered the crew to the radio room to prepare for landing at sea.

The last remaining German figher, an FW, followed the Fort cautiously, peppering it and waiting for the kill. The boys knew what he was doing. He wanted to strafe them, in the event they survived the crash and got into their life rafts. But McCallum reached up into the top turret and squinted through the sight of the only remaining gun.

To crown the whole incredible battle, the FW was exactly in the middle of the gun sight. McCallum isn't a gunner, but that day he couln't miss. The outguessed Nazi twisted away, horrified, but McCallum pumped lead into him until the guns died and the FW was headed for the drink.

The landing was so brilliant, considering the weight and ruin of the plane, that it was no worse than hitting a stone wall at 30 m.p.h. on a motorcycle. That's a good landing at sea. The Fort stopped on a dime, knocking two of the crewmen cold. The sea came in immediately, for the great fuselage buckled. The water revived the unconscious men.

They got onto their life rafts. One of the boys escaped with their radio. It ticked out its incessant SOS, and it took 30 hours for a ship to reach them.

Bartley Appointed Broadcasters' Director

Robert Bartley, vice president of the Yankee Network of Boston, and nephew of Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House, has been appointed war director of the National Association of Broadcasters, it was announced last night by the association.

The same announcement said Karl A. Smith, Washington attorney, had been retained as special counsel by the association.

THE DALZELL FAMILY
like millions of other American families nowadays, are working harder and saving more—to get out in front in the battle for a better tomorrow. They are seeking not only security—but to make their own personal Post War World come true.

Your Personal Post War World
Here are 7 Practical Things you can do to help make it what you want

A COMFORTABLE HOME, good food and clothing education for our children and security fo our families . . .

We can all work right now to win and to hol those benefits—especially those of us who ar making more money these war days than ev before. Here are seven practical things that ou Government wants every family to do:

1. Buy and hold war bonds—to lend our countr the money it needs now to fight the war t victory.
2. Pay willingly your share of taxes—including increased taxes—our country needs.
3. Provide for your own and your family's future by adequate life insurance and savings.
4. Reduce your debts as much as possible and avoid making needless new ones.
5. Buy only what you need and make what you have last longer.
6. Live faithfully by the rationing rules to conserve goods of which there are shortages.
7. Cooperate with our Government's price and wage stabilization program.

THESE are the traditional American virtues of hard work and thrift "converted" to a wartime ooting. They mean that today you must do without things so that you may have them tomorrow.

In this way you will not only bring yourself loser to your own personal Post War World; ou will also do a great deal to hold down prices uring these war days.

Why not do as other intelligent Americans are oing? Here is a budget form many are using—our guide in the battle for your own "tomorrow," r real security for you and your family.

AMERICA'S LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES bring you this plan of action not only to help you to win the kind of future you want, but to urge you to join wholeheartedly with all loyal Americans to keep down living costs during these critical war days.

One of the effective ways to hold down living costs, as our Government suggests, is to buy and hold life insurance—a way which 67 million policyholders have already taken with the guidance of their life insurance agents.

Remember that the premiums you pay for your life insurance are also helping to pay for the war—for a large part of them are invested in Government bonds.

WPB Action To Aid Output Of Penicillin

By Clair Johnson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Nine companies have received the blessing of the War Production Board to build new facilities to boost production of penicillin, the scarce but vitally needed wonder drug, it was learned yesterday.

Just a little more than a year ago penicillin was only a laboratory curiosity, but now scientists hail it as many times more potent than the famed sulfas and producers are besieged with demands for supplies.

Four of these expanding firms and three others already had been producing the drug, but five are entering as newcomers in this fast-developing field. Total cost of the expansion for the nine firms will exceed three million dollars, WPB records show.

Although there is virtually no yardstick for determining rate of output, due to the drug's newness, WPB officials estimated new producers would have some stocks of penicillin available within three to six months.

Even if production is tripled the demand will far exceed the supply at least for the duration of the war, the WPB believes, and only a very small amount will be available for civilian use.

Although the Army only gets 50 per cent, as announced last week by Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk, other units of the armed forces, as well as maritime workers, receive their share, and large supplies are needed for continued research and tests.

All control of the drug for civilian use is vested in one man, Dr. Chester S. Keefer, director of the Evans Memorial Hospital in Boston and chairman of the National Research Council's committee on chemotherapeutics.

Officials here emphasized when patients in extreme cases need it their doctors should get in contact with Dr. Keefer and he would provide some—if conditions merit and he has any available.

Penicillin is rated by scientists as the most potent weapon ever found against many diseases, among them pneumonia, gonorrhea and blood poisoning.

Guffey Asserts GOP Meeting in Michigan Political

Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania), declared yesterday that the purpose of the Republican conference to begin at Mackinac Island, Mich., September 6, "is as mainly political as the disguise of that purpose is transparent."

Guffey, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, asserted that "the GOP has a fierce factional war on hand and added:

"The prospective collusion between the Willkieistic allied cooperation program after the war, and the isolation sentiments attributable to some other Republican candidates, has little to do with international results and much to do with internal GOP strategy.

Manpower Deficit Grows In Key Areas

By Felix Cotten
International News Service Staff Writer

War Manpower Commission officials declared last night that a growing manpower "deficit" exists in the Nation's principal war areas.

In the 55 most critical labor areas, they said, two persons are needed where only one is available. In fact, in the current May to November period, military and industrial needs for manpower total 1,010,000 persons, and the supply, according to the most optimistic estimates, is only 530,000 persons.

WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt has declared that by next July 45 of the Nation's 50 largest metropolitan centers, together with great numbers of medium and small centers, would be included within labor shortage areas.

The situation is giving renewed emphasis to demands for a national service act, although the Administration, it is reported authoritatively will not favor the Austin-Wadsworth bill now pending in Congress.

If it should be decided that a national service act is necessary, official sources declared, a bill satisfactory to both labor and management, and spelling out its requirements in more detail than the Austin-Wadsworth measure, will be sponsored.

The present manpower situation points up the spotty or localized nature of manpower shortages. Throughout the country, manpower needs in the May-November period total 3,253,000 persons and the supply 3,500,000 persons, a surplus of 247,000 persons.

King and Queen Of Rumania Visit U. S. Prisoners

Istanbul, Aug. 28 (Delayed) (AP).—King Mihai and Queen Helen of Rumania visited some 70 United States fliers imprisoned at Sinaia shortly after the Ploesti oil field raid August 1, a semidiplomatic repor said today.

Mihai was said to have offered to write to prisoners' families personally. From the rear ranks, a prisoner asked the King, "Couldn't you cable?"

This report said the Americans were imprisoned in a fine hotel. The wounded were said to be receiving special medical care. The dead were buried with military honors at a "heroes' cemetery" at Ploesti.

Dispatches August 2 announced 20 of the huge fleet of U. S. Liberators which struck Ploesti failed to return.

The Americans were said to have told Rumanian officers that some of them were manhandled by peasants and oil field workers before coming into the hands of the army.

Allis-Chalmers Walkout Averted

Springfield Ill., Aug. 29 (AP).—A threatened walkout at two Springfield war production plants of the Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co. was averted at least temporarily today when members of District 50 United Mine Workers of America, decided to continue at work pending a hearing scheduled by the War Labor Board in Washington, September 11.

By a unanimous voice vote taken at a mass meting attended by 165 persons, a WLB invitation to District 50 representatives to attend the hearing was accepted.

Wise Urges Immediate Action to Rescue Jews

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 29.—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, speaking tonight at the opening session of the five-day American Jewish Conference here called upon President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to insist upon immediate action to rescue the remnants of European Jewry, and proposed that the conference send a delegation this week to confer with the President to this end.

Dr. Wise, who is president of the American Jewish Congress, spoke before 1500 observers and 500 delegates to the conference, the most broadly representative meeting of American Jewry since the American Jewish Conference of 1918, held in Philadelphia. Its purpose is to unify all Jewish organizations and communities in a program for the immediate rescue and postwar rehabilitation of Jewish victims of the war.

Only Three Million Survive

Dr. Wise asserted that only three million of the eight million Jews who lived in pre-Hitler Europe survive today, and that "further delays in rescuing them would doubtless mean that there would be no Jews to save in what was Hitler Europe."

Dr. Wise suggested that Palestine be opened to Jewish exiles. "No act of relief on the part of the United Nations will seem sincere or be worth while," he said, "as long as the gates of Palestine threaten to close." He asked that whatever decision the conference made regarding Palestine, the conference members act in such a way "that deeds of despair shall not be needed in Palestine."

Three-Point Program

The afternoon session opened with a speech by Henry Monsky, president of B'nai B'rith, who outlined the three points on the agenda of the conference: to consider and recommend action on problems relating to the rights and status of Jews in the postwar world; to consider and recommend action upon all matters looking to the implementation of the rights of the Jewish people with respect to Palestine; to elect a delegation to carry out the program of the conference in cooperation with the duly accredited representatives throughout the world.

When Victory Does Come...

NEW HOME COMFORT AWAITS YOU

Heating and cooling with Gas through one simple air conditioning unit will be, for many Washington homes, one of the most welcome postwar gifts of modern science.

In summer this service will bring constant relief from hot sticky weather . . . providing refreshing, invigorating, cooling air; in winter — dependable warmth and correct humidity throughout your home; in every season—live, cleaned air free from disturbing drafts.

Already hundreds of installations are adding a new joy to home living—some right in this city. The war stopped production, but not development; recent years of research insure even more perfect performance.

Through advance planning the Washington Gas Light Company will be among the first to bring to an American city the full benefits of the gas industry's latest achievement — all-year gas operated air conditioning.

There's a day straight ahead—when we won't have to say—gas is a war fuel, it must be conserved. A day when gas ovens in our war plants will cool down, those in our kitchens warm up.*

Now it is—more tough armor plate, more shot and shells; then it will be more tender beef roasts, more pies and cakes.

And on that day Cooking and the rest of the four big jobs of gas — House Heating, Refrigeration, Water Heating . . . will be joined by a fifth—to help make our homes what we want them to be.

What is it? Well, think of the kind of bracing mountain climate you would like at the height of Washington's sultry season and you will have it! Summer cooling of your home by gas, your entire home—plus dependable gas winter heating.

Already resources of the gas industry are being marshalled for the fifth big job — all-year air conditioning.

—And
FOR THE PRESENT
Back the attack with war bonds! Do your share to bring victory closer. Invest in war bonds today, invest in lasting home comfort tomorrow.

* No one knows when the end of the war will come. Until it does it is your patriotic duty to conserve all vital materials of war. Gas is a most vital material of war, it must continue to be used wisely.

WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

—By Drew Pearson—

A SITUATION which may bring the entire Negro question to the floor of the Democratic National Convention is brewing in Alabama.

Alabama's ebullient Gov. Chauncey Sparks is laying plans, first, to elect a pungently anti-New Deal delegation to represent his State in the Democratic Convention. Second, he proposes to make a speech on the floor of the convention on the race issue, denouncing Mrs. Roosevelt, and attempting to obtain adoption of a plank in the Democratic platform for white supremacy.

His moves have met with the vigorous opposition of certain of Alabama's liberal Democrats, led by forthright Col. Harry Ayres of the Anniston Star. They feel that any anti-Negro move such as that proposed by Governor Sparks would do the country no good, would alienate millions of colored voters in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, and would definitely swing the Negro vote securely back to its traditional position in Republican columns.

As a result, one of the hottest preconvention battles of the South is already on in Alabama over sending an anti-Roosevelt or pro-Roosevelt delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

Note: War Department executives are aghast at the Sparks proposal, say it would play directly into the hands of Jap propagandists, already harping on the color issue in the Orient.

Hull's Ambitions

WHEN SECRETARY OF STATE Hull went to the White House to demand the ousting of the man who had served as his chief aide for 10 long years, the President replied:

"Why don't you fire him, you're the boss over there."

Mr. Hull said that he didn't feel he was the man to do it, so later in the day, Roosevelt called in Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and broke the news that he was to be relieved of his post.

What the President probably didn't know was that the major break between Welles and Hull had occurred in 1940 over the question of a third term.

Mr. Hull had been led by Jim Farley to believe that the Democratic ticket in 1940 should be Hull for President, Farley for Vice President. Jim had so convinced the elderly Secretary of State that a combination of the South and the Northern Irish vote could not help but win, that Hull began to enlist the aid of his friends to this end.

When he approached his Undersecretary of State, however, Welles had to tell him that he was for a Third Term for Roosevelt. Mr. Hull considered this rank disloyalty. There had been some other differences between him and Welles, but this widened the breach beyond repair.

Note: All during the summer of 1940, Hull kept telling Welles that Willkie was sure to be elected, even through the month of August. It was not until the last day of the campaign that Hull made one good speech for Roosevelt.

Diet for Dogs

WASHINGTON officials are debating the weighty question of whether pet dogs and cats can be persuaded to sacrifice their "red points" for the war effort.

Already they have been called upon to give up some of their proteins, but now Fido and Puss may be called upon to give up meat entirely, for the duration.

On July 1, the Food Distribution Administration issued an order restricting the protein content of prepared dog food (or cat food) to 24 per cent. Of this, not more than 8 per cent may be protein derived from animals.

The dog food industry—no small industry in the United States—didn't like the order, and a Pet Animal Industry Committe was set up to straighten things out.

Some dog foods have had as much as 60 to 65 per cent animal protein—lungs, udders, and other refuse from the packing plants. For them, a reduction to 8 per cent means overhauling their entire operation.

But even the 8 per cent may disappear, for Food Distribution has asked National Research Council to study the question of whether animal proteins are really essential in the diet of dogs and cats. The council has put its scientists to work in its St. Louis laboratories.

Meantime, Food Distribution has learned that certain veterinarians have experimented with feeding dogs and cats on a diet containing no meat products whatever, but only proteins in the form of cereals.

They report that though the animals don't relish the food, and have to be coaxed to eat it, they actually gain weight.

Purpose of the order and the experiments is to divert the animal products from dog food and put it into feeds for poultry and livestock.

Pennsylvania Politics

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT had a good laugh at the expense of one of his most ardent supporters, Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, when he was told how Joe's brother-in-law, Carroll Miller of the Interstate Commerce Commission appeared to be currying favor with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania, which dominates Guffey's home State, has bucked competitive bidding among bankers in selling its bonds, claims the right to distribute its bonds to the public through a less remunerative banking house if it wishes, even at the expense of its stockholders.

This issue of competitive bidding was brought before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Miller, appointed by FDR as a New Dealer, voted with the railroad. When told how Senator Guffey's brother-in-law had voted, the President had a big chuckle.

"If Joe thinks," he said, "that the Pennsylvania Railroad is going to support him politically because his brother-in-law votes for them, he's lost his political acumen."

Then the President added something of interest to everyone in the South. He said that the ICC ought to get busy and readjust Southern freight rates. These discriminatory rates, working against the development of Southern industry, long have been a sore subject in the South.

D. C. Cleric Says Capital Is Not Wicked

The Rev. Luther J. Holcomb, local cleric speaking yesterday at Ridgecrest, N. C., told churchmen from 18 States that "certain clerics and writers were distorting views about life in Washington."

Appearing at the concluding sessions of the Southwide Baptist Assembly, the Rev. Mr. Holcomb said that while he was not painting a "lily-white" picture of the Capital, he did not feel that, on the whole, vice and crime conditions are any worse here than in any other city, in proportion to the tremendous population growth.

Saying that many parents fear to send their daughters here because of the "distorted reports" going out of the city, Mr. Holcomb referred, inferentially, to the recent much-publicized addresses of Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, Washington Methodist resident bishop, and Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church, who charged that Washington was the Nation's "wettest city."

Mr. Holcomb, pastor of Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church in Chillum, assured that Washington churches are doing everything possible to help newcomers make good living adjustments.

Methodist Session Opens Today for D. C., Md. Clerics

Methodist clerics from the District and Maryland will attend today's opening of the thirty-third annual Methodist summer conference at Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md. Sessions run through Friday.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, New York City, first representative of American Protestantism to make a special mission to Europe after America's entry into the war. His theme will be "Christian Strategy Today and Tomorrow."

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, Washington Methodist resident bishop, will direct the conference. The Rev. J. Earl Cummings of Easton, Md., will preside. Dr. John N. Link of Westminster Seminary, Westminster, is registrar.

Mystery Veils Death of WAC In Indianapolis

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—The killing of Corpl. Maoma L. Ridings, 32, a WAC stationed at Camp Atterbury, Ind., remained as deep a mystery tonight as it was when her blood-stained body was found in a downtown hotel 24 hours earlier.

Police said there were jagged cuts on the woman's neck, arms and wrists, her face was spattered with blood, there was a large spot of blood on the floor near her head and she was nude below the waist.

The body was found by Mrs. Lillian McNamara, hotel housekeeper, several hours after she had registered. Hotel officials said Corporal Ridings had been a frequent weekend guest the last two months, sometimes coming alone and sometimes with another WAC from Camp Atterbury.

Autopsy Performed

Military authorities took the body to nearby Fort Benjamin Harrison and performed an autopsy but said its results probably would not be disclosed for a few days.

Police said the hotel switchboard received a call from a woman who reported hearing another woman scream in a hotel room occupied by a soldier from Camp Atterbury. A hotel employe went to that room, on the same floor as the WAC's room, but it was empty and the soldier had checked out.

After police arrived, they were told that the soldier and a woman had been heard arguing in his room and that the woman asked the telephone operator to send a hotel detective to the room.

About this time, the housekeeper found Corporal Ridings' body. Her room was in order, her underwear was on her bed and her other garments in a closet.

Broken Bottle Found

Jones reported finding a broken whiskey bottle in the room and he said this was the only object found which might have inflicted the cuts on the woman's body, but he did not say whether there was blood on the bottle.

The mystery was intensified by a report to police by two bellboys that they had seen a dark-haired woman, dressed in black, in the WAC'S room soon after she registered Saturday evening.

Corporal Ridings, an attractive divorcee, was the daughter of Mrs. Marie Little of Warm Spring, Ga., who said the WAC'S former husband, Lawrence Ridings, was in the Army overseas. The young woman resigned as an auditor with the Federal Housing Administration to enlist and had been a physiotherapist at the station hospital since being assigned to Camp Atterbury.

She was a descendant of a well-known Georgia family for whom the town of Warm Springs originally was named Bullockville.

40 WAC Officers Mark First Anniversary Commissioning

Forty WAC officers assembled yesterday morning for a reunion breakfast at Watergate Inn to mark the first anniversary of the day last year when they marched down the parade field at Fort Des Moines to receive commissions as second lieutenants. The meeting was their first as a group since Army orders dispersed them last year.

Six of those who attended have risen in a year to the rank of major. Two of them have made inspection trips to England and North Africa. All of them have administrative jobs in the corps.

Colonel Hobby Speaks

Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, director of the WACS, spoke informally to her women soldiers, "On each anniversary of the gallant 440 who graduated in the first class, I hope you will remember that we hold a light for all mankind—the love of truth, the love of duty, the love of those things which are not stated in the terms of personal interest."

Brig. Gen. Don C. Faith, who directed Army training for the WACS at Fort Des Moines, reminded that the Army is "a profession that bases its pride on service above self" and urged that the WACS not permit practical decisions to take away their ideals.

Maj. Emily C. Davis, of Beverley Hills, Calif., an investment counselor before she became a WAC, described her personal reaction of how it feels to rise from second lieutenant to major in a year:

"I really am humble about it all. Such a rapid advancement of those of us in the administrative nucleus of the corps makes us realize all the more our responsibility and inspires us to try our best to be worthy of such an honor."

Maj. Betty Bandell, director of WACS serving in the Air Force, accompanied Colonel Hobby on a visit to England a few months ago and Capt. Anne McIlhenney of Buffalo, N. Y., inspected WACS at work on the field in North Africa.

Fifteen WAC officers who graduated with the first class are now serving overseas.

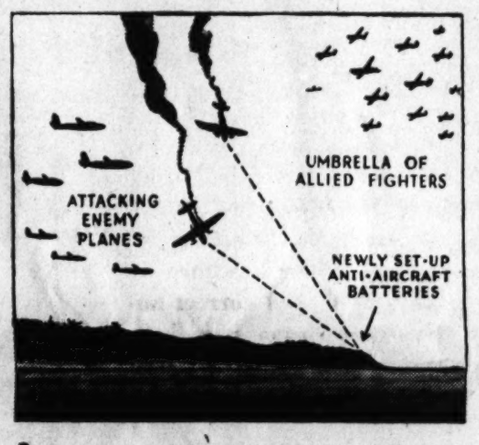
Asthma Sufferers Sleep Fine When Free From Mucus
Choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma ruin your sleep and rob your blood of vitally important oxygen because you can't get air in and out of your lungs properly. But now it is no longer necessary to suffer from these terrible attacks without the benefit you may receive from a physician's prescription called Mendaco. Within a very short time after the first dose, Mendaco ingredients start circulating thru the blood, thus reaching the smallest as well as the largest Bronchial tubes where they usually quickly help liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. In fact, Mendaco has proved so successful in helping thousands of sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma that it is sold under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. So get Mendaco from your druggist today.

How the Allies protect invasion troops from Air Attack

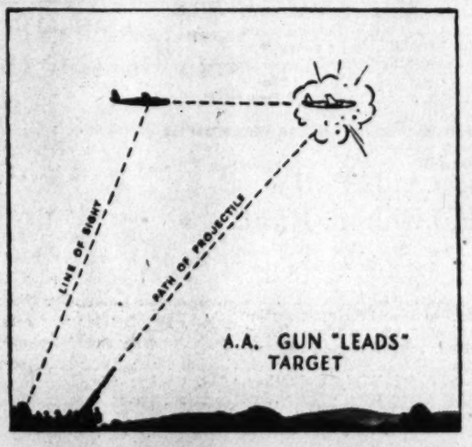
1. After our warships and bombers have knocked out enemy shore installations in an invasion operation, there comes the tough job of consolidating the positions of our attacking land troops. Though enemy land forces may be destroyed, enemy air forces must still be met to prevent our men from being wiped out or pushed back into the sea by bombing and strafing.



2. There are three ways to take the sting out of enemy air power, and invading Allied armies use all three. First, bombers attack enemy air fields. Second, an umbrella of fighter planes goes after attacking enemy planes. Third, as soon as possible after primary landings have been effected, anti-aircraft batteries are set up. These batteries are mechanized and the mechanisms seem like magic itself.

3. Approaching enemy planes are detected and their position and direction of flight determined. At night this data is transmitted to the Sperry searchlight which spotlights the raiders, sending its inescapable finger of dazzling light up to follow them across the sky. This "blinds" the enemy pilots and makes their planes perfect targets.

4. As the enemy planes come nearer, the Sperry anti-aircraft Director goes to work. This mechanism instantly and continuously solves the problem of where to point the guns, and also determines the time of flight of the projectile so that the aircraft and projectile will arrive simultaneously at the same spot.



5. This accurately computed information is in turn transmitted automatically and continuously to the guns. Here Vickers "hydraulic muscles" come into play. They automatically move the guns in accordance with the Director's orders . . . "leading" the plane just as a duck hunter leads a flying duck. The fuse is timed automatically so that the shell will explode at the exact range to do the most damage to the enemy plane.

6. Good as this equipment is, it is worthless without a tough, well-trained team of men to operate it. A nervous glance at the sky, when a man should be adjusting a dial, means the difference between a hit and a miss. Demonstration of what a gun crew can do with these devices occurred on Guadalcanal. There a single battery of guns bagged Japanese planes at the rate of better than one plane per minute.

7. Let us make it clear that although most of the devices which aid our anti-aircraft gun crews were developed by Sperry, we didn't do this job alone. We worked with the Army and Navy at every step.

And right now, while thousands of Sperry workers are laboring day and night to turn out these instruments, Army and Navy specialists are working with our inventors, research men, and engineers to perfect still further improvements.

More than 138 subcontractors in 12 different states help our Gyroscope company produce the Sperry Director.

The Ford Motor Company also is making these directors under non-royalty-patent licensing agreements.

Our Vickers company supplies the hydraulic mechanism which moves the guns, and 48 subcontractors supply parts.

In short, producing the equipment for our anti-aircraft batteries requires the same kind of teamwork you find in the gun crews who man them.

This work also requires exceptionally fine craftsmanship and minds that are always searching for "a better way to do it" . . . qualities that characterized Sperry in its peacetime work before the war, and qualities that will characterize its peacetime products after the war is over.

Jobs After the War

By Roger W. Babson.

Suggestions for Servicemen

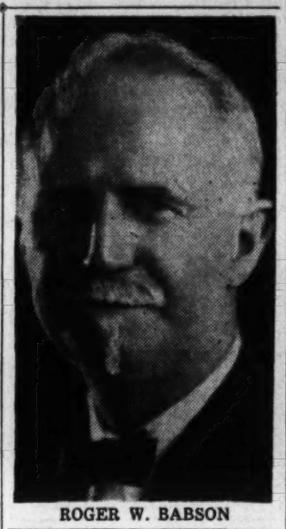
The stock and commodity markets have already begun to discount peace, although I see no hope therefor until after the election of 1944. However, if we should prepare for war in time of peace, we should prepare for peace in time of war.



ROGER W. BABSON

Germany will surely be licked before Japan is conquered. In some ways this should help materially in shifting from war work to peace work. A year between these two events should serve as an industrial and employment cushion. There are, however, three other things which would surely result from such an event. Let me explain these.

1. The East will return to normal before the Pacific Coast. This applies to the supply of gasoline, fuel oil and other things to which the East is now severely rationed. The Pacific Coast may then be subject to more rationing, restrictions and other so-called hardships. 2. The Army will commence demobilization before the Navy and air forces. In fact, the Government will probably begin to demobilize the Army as soon as Europe is straightened out; while the Navy men will probably be held for their entire term of enlistment or induction. 3. With the exception of the transcontinental lines, railroad earnings should then begin to drop and much war work in the East will then be curtailed.

Following the above three certainties there will be a readjustment in employment. As firms in the East drop war work, plants must be retooled for peace. This will mean a temporary layoff of many employes which, added to the demobilized soldiers, should cause a temporary period of unemployment. According to the President's last fireside talk, this employment adjustment period will be taken care of by the Government (1) paying a small salary to the soldiers for awhile after demobilization, and (2) loaning money to the plants for reconversion back to peace work.

In this connection it is well to remember the act of Congress which provides that all employers, who are able to do so, shall take back any inducted employe who applies within 60 days after honorable discharge. This assumes that the man will have the same job at his former salary. However, if by that time salaries in general have been increased, it seems only reasonable that he should have the same pay that others who are doing his former work will then be getting. A general wage reduction, especially for new employes may be expected, nevertheless, after the war is over.

Industries may be divided into three groups.

Group 1. Companies which should suffer severely after peace comes: Aircraft or radio manufacturing, shipbuilding, munitions and machine tools. They must permanently reduce their number of employes after the war.

Group 2. Companies which will take some months to change over to peacetime work: Automotive, railroad equipment, heavy machinery, refrigerator, sewing machine, carpet, vacuum cleaner and electrical equipment companies. These may temporarily lay off some employes after the war.

Group 3. Companies which should do well after the war and have very little conversion problems: Air transport, insurance, retail trade, textile, baking, fertilizer, furniture, shoe, meat packing, milling, glass and jewelry, dry goods, tobacco, soap, natural gas, petroleum, soft drinks and paper companies. These should permanently increase their number of employes after the war.

The three groups above need no further comment. It should be self-evident that group 3 represents the best immediate postwar opportunities. Group 1 represents the poorest opportunities. It almost seems as if many of those now engaged in group 1 industries must get into some other industry after the war. Surely, unemployed soldiers should not now plan to get employment with the group 1 industries after the war is over. As to group 2 industries, these should provide for those who were in them before they are inducted; but I doubt if they will have opportunities for many more men or any more women.

Very few returning soldiers will feel justified in starting a four-year college course after returning from the war. They may be wise in completing a college course already started if one or two years more will give the desired degree. All men who can afford it, however, should take a one-year or two-year course to become an expert in some one line of work such as accountancy, merchandising, engineering, machine repairing, insurance or any of the other lines mentioned above in groups 2 and 3. I, however, cannot now recommend aircraft, radio or certain other lines in which a great surplus of Army men are now being trained, many of whom will be a drug on the market after the war is over.

I recently asked a group of employment managers what kind of men will be most demanded by employers after the war is over. The unanimous reply was: "We fear that the war is breaking down the moral foundation of many weaker men; if so, they will find it difficult to get positions after they return. We employment managers will give special consideration to the character and habits of those who apply to us for positions. We will seek men of good habits, especially those who do not touch liquor."

In rereading the above, I find that I have made no reference to the WACS and the WAVES and SPARS. As these have enlisted, rather than been drafted, I fear they may be out on an unemployment limb after the war is over. However, legislation could be passed which might be made retroactive in their cases.

I have a feeling that the current advertising for and the soliciting of girls to enlist in these divisions of the armed services may be being overdone. However, "women" is a subject that I should not discuss. I am too much prejudiced in their favor to give impartial judgment as to the present need of sending girls into the war. Besides, statisticians believe the country now is more in need of good babies than of lady soldiers. Of course, we may be wrong.

Funeral Rites For R. S. Diehl Set for Today

Funeral services for Robert S. Diehl, 57, for many years an employe of the Potomac Electric Power Co., who died Friday at his home, 4802 Auburn ave., Bethesda, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the funeral home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, Bethesda. The Rev. H. F. Chandler, pastor of the Bethesda Methodist Church, will conduct the services. Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Cemetery.

Mr. Diehl was a native of Pennsylvania and before taking up his residence at Bethesda 28 years ago lived in Washington. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rosa M. Diehl; a son, Corpl. Robert E. Diehl, stationed at Bradley Field, Conn.; two daughters, Miss Barbara Marie Diehl and Miss Anna Lorraine Diehl, both of Bethesda; four sisters, Mrs. Laura Wilson, Portage, Pa.; Mrs. Estella Pomeroy, Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. Rena Somerville, Washington, and Mrs. Marie Jacobson, Ogden, Utah, and two brothers, Lewis R. Diehl, El Paso, Tex., and Harry O. Diehl, Trona, Calif.

Mr. Diehl was a member of the Bethesda Masonic Lodge, which will participate in the funeral rites.

Funeral Services Set Today for R. T. McKnew

Funeral services for Richard Taylor McKnew, 56, engineer with the Federal Housing Administration, will be held today at 2 p. m. at the home of his sister, Mrs. Edna Greene, 2811 McGill ter. nw. Interment will be at Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. McKnew died Friday night at his home, 1910 Kalorama rd. nw. A native of Washington, he joined the FHA four years ago, after many years of business experience in the building supply field. He was graduated from Cornell University.

Mr. McKnew was a member of Temple-Noyes Masonic lodge and the Chevy Chase Club and a former member of the Metropolitan Club.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Jane Wright McKnew, two daughters, Mrs. William Flanders and Mrs. Charles Shannon; his sister, and three grandchildren, David McKnew Flanders, Charles Richard and Robert Michael Shannon, all of Washington. Also surviving is a brother, Maj. Donald H. McKnew, Army Air Forces.

Edwin H. Brunken Dies; Veteran Of Last War

Edwin H. Brunken, 47, veteran of World War I, died of a heart attack yesterday at his home, 10 Woodmoor Drive, Silver Spring, Md.

At the time of his death Mr. Brunken was manager of the Safeway Store at Laurel and Ethan Allan aves., Takoma Park, Md. Employed by the Safeway for 17 years, Mr. Brunken previously was at the 14th and Colorado store.

Born in New York, he came to Washington in 1920 after serving overseas as a private in the Army. Injured in the St. Mihiel drive, he was sent to Walter Reed Hospital, where he met his wife, Lillian, a yeomanette in the Navy. Prior to the war he saw service on the Mexican border.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two brothers, Edward and Charles Brunken, and a sister Mrs. Anna Zach, all of New York.

Funeral services will be Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the Warner Pumphrey funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring. Burial will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

Posse Aids Police In Md. Robber Hunt

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—Men armed with rifles, pistols, shotguns and baseball bats and carrying flashlights have joined police in patrolling the Pinehurst section of Salisbury where three homes have been robbed during the past 10 days.

Police Chief William Chatham said that three cars were stolen, a refrigerator looted, two turkeys stolen from a garage and several cars robbed.

He said the intruder or intruders apparently were amateurs and that total loot amounted to approximately $50.

Speedy Model Planes Attest Skill of Young Designers

The sudden whir of a motor—the shout for "timer"—a plane taking off—a crash and the moans of an aspiring pilot.

All the drama of aviation was there in the model airplane meet, sponsored by the Chevy Chase Balsa Beavers, and held yesterday at 23rd st. and Constitution ave. The meet, sanctioned by the Academy of Model Aeronautics, consisted of a controlled flight contest, the first of its kind to be held in the East, according to club members.

Rainy Weather Interferes

Rainy weather, which cut the number of entries by at least two-thirds and the number of events in half, did not dampen the enthusiasm of those who participated. They toiled ceaselessly over the small models which run on gasoline engines complete with tiny batteries and a spark plug.

Still in the experimental stage, some of the planes refused to run. But several of them were successful in flight and their builders went home last night, proud possessors of the merchandise kits, awarded as prizes.

There were three classes for entries—A, small-sized model, B, medium-sized model, and C, large-size model. Winner of Class A was Melton Bamel, 6004 Nevada ave. nw., whose plane made 34.2 miles per hour. Honors in Class B went to Howard Shanberger of 3348 Military rd. nw., whose plane averaged 46 miles per hour.

Two prizes were awarded in Class C, one going to Paul Posey of Indianhead, Md., whose plane was credited with a speed of 59 miles per hour, and the other to Walter Robey, also of Indianhead, whose plane made 57.2 miles per hour.

To Be Repeated

Because of bad weather yesterday, the boys have decided to hold another meet at the same place September 12 at which time speed tests will be held again as will other contests scheduled for yesterday but not held because of the few entries.

The Chevy Chase Balsa Beavers are a group of model airplane builders who organized about two years ago to pursue their hobby in earnest. All of the members belong to the Academy of Model Aeronautics.

J. A. Boteler Dies; Life Resident Here

J. Allen Boteler, 72, a lifelong resident of Washington, died yesterday morning at John Dickson Home, 5000 14th st. nw., where he lived since 1935.

Son of John W. Boteler, he was a descendant of early American settlers and was graduated from Columbia College, now George Washington University. For many years, Mr. Boteler was connected with Johnson and Johnson, stockbrokers. He was a member of the Old Capital Bicycle Club. Unmarried, he is survived by three cousins, Dr. T. M. Price, John Boteler, and J. E. Wilson, all of this city.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. at Hines Funeral Home. Interment will be at Glenwood Cemetery.

Miss Lucy Blake, Fairfax County home agent, announces three of the county Home Demonstration Clubs and two of the 4-H Clubs are scheduled to meet during the week, as follows: Wednesday, at 1:30 p. m., the Lorton Club will have a demonstration on the "Covering of Umbrellas;" Thursday, at 1:30 p. m., the Annandale Club will discuss the "Storage of Food," and on Friday, at 1:30 p. m., the Groveton Club will have a demonstration on the "Covering of Umbrellas." The Annandale 4-H Club will meet in the elementary school at 11 a. m., and on Friday the Groveton Club will meet in the elementary school at 9:45 a. m.

Army Reports Bethesda Man Missing in Action

Pvt. Anthony J. Graff, son of Mrs. Mary C. Graff of 7731 Old Georgetown rd., Bethesda, Md., has been reported missing in action in the North African campaign, the War Department announced yesterday.

At the same the War Department revealed the names of a total of 216 casualties of the North African and the Sicilian campaigns.

Victor S. Johnson, Lamp Firm Head, Dies Here on Visit

Victor S. Johnson, 61, president of the Mantle Lamp Co. of Chicago, Ill., died in his bed at the Willard Hotel yesterday, apparently of heart failure.

Mr. Johnson was in Washington on business. He was pronounced dead of natural causes by Dr. J. Ernest Mitchell, hotel physician.

He is survived by two sons, Robert, a student at Columbia University, and Lieut. Victor S. Johnson, jr., a student in the Judge Advocate's School at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Socialism Sole Hope, Wells Says

By Carlos de Negri

Staff Writer of Excelsior, Mexico City (Distributed by The Associated Press)

London, Aug. 29.—In the first interview he has given any newspaperman since the war began H. G. Wells today made to this reporter the following transcendental statement:

"There is no way out of the present chaotic state of human affairs but a world-wide revolutionary movement on an equalitarian socialistic basis."

Wells added:

"Unless such a conclusion is reached humanity will find no profit from this war at all but increase in its distress."

The distinguished thinker said that since the war broke out he has dedicated all his time to study and meditation.

Leaning on the same little desk where the celebrated historian-philosopher has written for millions of men, I took notes as Wells declared he spoke " to all men in the world who desire and are worthy to be happy."

"I hope a world relieved from waste and the destruction of competition, of which war is only an intenser form, can achieve triumphs of scientific, artistic and productive achievements beyond anything we can dream of at the present time, because this new order in the world would relieve creative energy of hundreds of millions of human beings who now have neither freedom nor energy for self-achievement," he said.

"A gathering number of people of the world are moving toward the conviction that something more than great promises and assertions from above are needed. They ask for more than charters and guarantees. They ask that everywhere in the unifying world ahead of us the fundamental law of the community shall be the natural universal rights of man.

"Mankind has now all the power and substance available for universal plenty and well-being beyond the dream of any previous age and he is wasting it all in destruction.

"This war neither began nor will end that.

"There can be no end to all this slaughter, privation and misery which now goes on from bad to worse unless there is a wide agreement among human beings all around about the earth to end it.

"Mere victory of one power over another will end nothing if the black traditions that come to us from the past are not also defeated."

Wells said that the concept of human justice which should be applied in government in the future world should include a formula equally valid for "China as for Mexico—for the whole world."

To repeat one of my questions, "What has to end?" Wells said:

"What has to end, in one word, is competition for advantage over one's fellowman—not competition for the honor and privilege of serving mankind but competition to dominate. Competition in business, competition between states and nations, competition between communities which imagine themselves to be particularly privileged and superior communities."

He added: "This struggle is only one result of the immense disaster that competition for advantage under new world conditions may inflict upon mankind. Business competition equipped with these new powers has culminated in world monopolies that will strangle all free initiative. The threat of a combination of political and economic tyranny over our race has never been so plain."

Culpeper Schools Open Fall Term Thursday

Culpeper, Va., Aug. 29.—Prefaced by a two-day session of the teachers of the county, the Culpeper High and county schools will open on Thursday for class work.

Supt. Paul V. Hounshell has announced a full list of teachers for both white and Negro schools.

Prof. R. R. Tolbert who has successfully held the principalship of the Culpeper High School for 25 years, will again head the faculty with Miss Ruth Campbell as assistant.

Roanoke Man Held In Death of Woman

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—R. W. Cook, proprietor of a local radio shop, was held today by local police on a charge of murder following the death early today of Elza Dyson, 36, of Alleghany County, in a local hospital.

The woman was found in the shop operated by Cook late Saturday night with a bullet wound in the head.

After removing the woman to a hospital the Roanoke police questioned Cook, who said he had been out of the store to get some cigars and on his return heard a shot as he opened the door.

Defeat Means New Dark Age, Class Is Told

Urging an all-out effort to win "this holy war," Rossel E. Mitchell, associate teacher of the Pugh Bible class yesterday warned that defeat would mean "another Dark Age" for mankind.

Mitchell told the Bible class at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church that the philosophies of Hitler and Tojo stifle freedom of thought and of religion, repressions which he said were characteristic of the Dark Ages.

"What we are really fighting for in this war is for the principles of the Kingdom of God," asserted Mitchell. He substituted for Justice Bolitha J. Laws, regular teacher, and District Court jurist.

Opportunity Seen

While today is a time of crisis, it is likewise an hour of great opportunity for Christianity to assert itself, Edward H. DeGroot, jr., said yesterday at services in Lincoln Park.

"It has been said that 15 per cent of us average citizens constitute the balance of power in moral affairs in America," declared DeGroot. "That is, if 15 per cent of us had taken a firm stand against the forces of evil that have brought and are bringing about this moral breakdown, we could have swung the pendulum the other way."

DeGroot, chairman of the Central Union Mission Board of directors and of the board of deacons of National Baptist Memorial Church, addressed services sponsored by the Central "Y" and neighborhood churches.

Showers Fail To Aid Crops In Near Areas

Yesterday's light rainfall, following some showers within the last few days, has brought "no substantial relief" to drought-stricken farm areas in nearby Maryland and Virginia, Dr. Thomas B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, said yesterday.

He added that heavy rainfall within the next few days would be of great help for the plowing of fall crops which will get underway in the early part of September.

No rain was forecast for today by the Weather Bureau. Waremr weather was predicted.

Yesterday was the coldest day since July 1, according to Weather Bureau records, which showed a mean temperature of 66 degrees both days. The thermometer hit a high of 70 degrees at 4:30 p. m. The low was 61.

Although cloudy all day, only .05-inch of rain was measured. Yesterday's mean temperature was 7 degrees below normal and 10 degrees below last year's temperature on the same day.

With warmer weather and no rain forecast, the ground may remain so hard that serious damage may be expected for the fall crop, Dr. Symons said.

Importation of feed from the Middle West has been promised. Serious cuts in milk production and a resulting dairy crisis in the Nation's Capital have been predicted by various farm spokesmen.

Laboratory Tests Made in Spivey Death Inquiry

Investigation of the death of Miss Vivian Spivey, 23-year-old Waverly, Va. factory worker, marked time last night as detectives awaited the result of chemical analysis.

Mrs. Martha Collins, 34, the dead woman's nurse, was still held at the Women's Bureau pending the laboratory tests.

Mis Spivey was found at the Grand Hotel, 606 F st. nw., Saturday about noon and apparently had died sometime Friday. She had been under the nurse's care for several months and later told police she had been administering insulin in an effort to stimulate the girl's appetite.

Wounded Veteran of New Guinea Jungles Tells of Jap Trickery in Battle

(This is the twelfth of a series of interviews with wounded veterans of this war now convalescing at Walter Reed Hospital.

By Hanson W. Hathaway
Post Staff Writer

Coconuts should not behave that way, not on New Guinea or any other island rimming the sea bastions of "Down Under."

WOYTAL

Corpl. Robert L. Woytal, 22, not long out of Mantiwoc, Wis., dropped back a bit and stared covertly.

The coconuts moved again, sideways and hitched themselves up, just as though they were adjusting themselves.

With the oppressive quiet of the jungle on him like a weight, Woytal raised his Garand and fired at the center cluster of yellowing palm leaves up in the tree.

The startled patrol jack-rabbited into the brush. There was a stifled scream and the coconuts came tumbling down, bumping against the body of the Jap sniper from whose neck they were suspended.

"That's the sort of thing we were up against," Corporal Woytal said reflectively. "We were just in from Point Moresby on the way to Buna Village. The Japs are full of tricks and this was one of them, camouflaging themselves to blend with the jungle scenery, stealing up behind patrols, throttling a man swiftly and getting away before we knew anything had happened."

"We had to learn and learn fast," said this young slow-drawling man from a cool, lake-jeweled State.

His story, like so many of the others to be heard out at Walter Reed Hospital was self-effacing. There were no "I's" in it, always the embracing "we." As he spoke, there could be sensed earlier terror held in check by that American breed of men who will not admit the enemy is more able or less frightening than they when aroused.

"It was no fun," he said, "walking through that jungle, to going up against an enemy that killed medical men and stretcher bearers and combat men without distinction."

Tough to Whip

"We," his story went on, "saw them flushed out of their foxholes, refusing to surrender, throwing grenades even while they were being sliced in pieces by concentrated automatic rifle fire. They are," he said with soft emphasis, "a tough people to whip with their fanaticism and their trickery and their murderous deceit."

Corporal Woytal in advance of his company is nearing Buna Village. The company had been slogging its way through the jungle for four days. And it had chores to do during those days.

Now and again a sniper's bullet would bring a patrol member down. There would follow the tedious, danger loaded task of locating hidden killers. Eyes would water with the intense strain of foliage-peering search.

"Most of the time we'd never get them," the young corporal admitted. "Then, we'd have to look for their pillboxes for the snipers always seemed to be just ahead or behind them, like watchmen. Their sniping would sound the alarm for the others, and they'd open up.

Behind the Hay Pile

Close to Buna Village, they halted. Woytal and one other crawled through the scratching bush, stopping and listening, crawling on. Ahead of them they saw a pile of what appeared to be wind-piled fronds and dried grasses. Woytal moved away from his companion and snaked off. In a little while he was behind the harmless looking mass of dry vegetation. Stubby Jap bare legs, a neat row of them, give out to his, by now, not startled stare:

So what does he do?

"Nothing. Just crawl back to where my buddy is and let that pile of hay have it."

A few moments after this incident the war was to end for the boy from Manitowoc, where smell of raspberries tincture the falling summers and the green woodland is cool in contrast to the humid malarial stench of New Guinea.

He and the patrol move on a furiously active pillbox. Behind them the main body of troops waited the signal to come forward.

A Gully Between Guns

"I saw flashes of fire and thin smoke streams coming out of the brush. We edge closer with our Browning, a little off to the side, and let go. Then they sprung another trick. This pillbox was a decoy. To get at it we had to move into a gully. Across the gully opposite, a second pillbox opened up. We were caught between the two. If the whole company had moved in, they would have cut us down like wheat by a binder."

A bullet ends its whining, bee-like flight deep in the flesh of his left calf. The hurt corporal learns another Jap trick. The bullet explodes and dripping lumps of his leg flesh spatters him as he falls. The explosion splinters the bone, spins him around and he collapses on his face. It is torture to burrow into the concealing bush, but he does, dragging his rifle.

Greenades are crashing in the brush and wild Jap yells make themselves thinly heard above the rumpus. The main force has flanked the arrangement of enemy pill-boxes, staggered one above the other, and rimming Buna Village where resistance was supposed to have ended days before.

One Last Fling

Jungle flushed Japs scurry for new vantages points their machine-gunners stay at their posts. They fight with the nutty zeal of a people who believe there is no death, that they live on in the person of Hirohito, "Heaven" descended.

Corporal Woytal, lying there, his stomach sick with pain, taken his last fling at war. Two Jap heads peer unseeingly past him from a hummock above his head.

He brings his rifle carefully up and holds the trigger. He doesn't mind the pulpy splash of his bullets in their faces.

"We learned tricks, too," he said.

Hospital corpsmen find him after a bit, and they start him homeward over jungle trails. And, at Walter Reed Hospital on April 27, they begin to repair that bullet flensed leg.

"It's been a miracle," Woytal ends his story. "It's going to be whole again. You wouldn't have thought so at first. We sure got a system out here."

Baltz to Head Loan Division In Bond Drive

Edward C. Baltz, secretary and director of the Perpetual Building Association, has been appointed head of the building and loan division of the third war loan campaign beginning September 9, John A. Reilly, chairman of the District of Columbia War Finance Committee, announced yesterday.

Baltz, a native of Washington, is also vice chairman and director of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, N. C. He is vice president and a director of the Firemen's Insurance Co. and secretary-treasurer of the Fidelity Mortgage & Investment Co.

In addition, Baltz is a former president of the United States Savings and Loan League which is comprised of 4000 member associations throughout the United States. He is an active member of the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association.

A local yachtsman, Baltz is a member of the Coast Guard Auxiliary and his cabin cruiser is now helping to patrol the Atlantic Coast line with the United States Coast Guard fleet.

In commenting on his acceptance of the war loan campaign position, Baltz said:

"The Perpetual Building Association is earmarking 100 per cent of its advertising for September in this effort. The 250 associations represented in our league here in Washington confidently expect to exceed by several million dollars the excellent record made in the second war loan last April."

Missing...

"MISSING in action." You know what that can mean.

Mom says you must be brave. "It's what your father would expect of us," she tells you when it's bedtime and your chin starts to feel shaky. Then she kisses you extra hard and turns her head away so you can't see her eyes.

You've never let her see you cry. Not once, since that telegram came and she twisted it all up in a little ball, then smoothed it and put it in the desk.

But, lying in bed, you play "Pretend"—pretend you can hear his step as he comes up to your room—pretend you can feel a stubble brush your forehead. And sometimes, in the dark, you can almost smell a cigarette-y suit close to your face.

Later you dream—dreams that you don't tell about. And in the morning you wake up with that funny, empty feeling in your stomach.

Poor little guy. We—all of us—wish there were something we could do. Perhaps there is. Why shouldn't it be this?

We can resolve that the plans your father had for you shall remain within your reach, that you shall have the chance to grow and learn, that your opportunities will be bounded only by your own get-up-and-go, that you will progress and prosper in direct relation to your own ability—in a land of freedom and opportunity.

Those are the things your Dad valued, the things for which he gave his life. Though some may strive to change all that—provide you with the "benefits" of an all-powerful government, the "advantages" of regimentation, the "blessings" of bureaucracy—we can resolve they won't succeed.

You, son, won't read these words, and if you did, they wouldn't mean much to you now. But your father's friends—known and unknown—are making you a promise, just the same.

You may never hear it from their lips. But if you were older you would read it in their faces—recognize it in their spirit. They are determined to keep America free. To keep it a land in which government is the servant, not the master of the people. To keep it the kind of America your Dad wanted to preserve—for you.

Buying Health

No one should be surprised by the request of the Health Department for a sharp increase in funds for the fiscal year beginning next July. Merely to keep abreast of higher costs and the city's rapid growth the department will need a greatly expanded budget. To this must be added the expense of inaugurating various health services that have never been provided. The simple fact is that Washington has never had an adequate public health program. Even during the war years we have risked major epidemics here for want of basic precautionary measures that many other cities are providing for themselves as routine practice.

Every time an official agency looks into Washington's health problem and what is being done about it the result seems to be the same. The Health Department is found to be doing good work in most fields with very inadequate facilities, equipment and personnel. All the investigators, from the United States Public Health Service to the D'Alesandro Committee, recognize the necessity of spending more money to save human life in the Capital. But somehow the people who prove the urgency of expanding the District's health work never have control of the purse strings.

Not many months ago Dr. Ruhland was attempting to get Lanham Act funds for a sizable list of health projects. When this avenue was closed to him, efforts were made to secure an emergency grant through the Public Health Service. That plan also collapsed. Apparently there is no alternative to waiting for the appropriation of District funds through the local budget. Before the funds now requested can be appropriated and spent the war may be over. But the fact remains that the department is taking the only way that seems to be open to it to seek the money it so desperately needs.

Long ago the American Public Health Association found that a city the size of Washington must invest about $2.50 per capita each year in public health if it is to employ modern knowledge effectively in protecting the health of its residents. Washington is still spending only about half that sum. The blunt truth is that we are doing only about half of what can reasonably be done to preserve life and minimize sickness. That is a shameful record in time of either war or peace.

We hope that the Commissioners will this time lay the issue squarely before Congress. No doubt the District will have to wait for enlargement of its staff of public health nurses, for more nurses are not likely to be obtained in wartime. But the delay in setting up mental hygiene and cancer control services has already gone beyond all reason. Extension of venereal disease control has become imperative if for no other reason than to reduce the city's disgracefully long list of syphilis slackers. If all the additional services requested are inaugurated, Washington will still fall far short of the public health standards that many other American cities maintain. But at least this proposed health budget gives the Commissioners something concrete to fight for, and the past performance of the department is sufficient guarantee that every increase in the health budget will be translated into a saving of human life.

Illiterates Exempt

Senator Maybank's proposal to induct physically fit illiterates into the Army is well worth consideration on its merits. Several hundred thousand men who could pass the physical tests have been rejected because of inability to satisfy the Army's literacy requirements. In his own State of South Carolina Senator Maybank points out that "some 2000 white inductees and another 10,000 colored have been released from the Army since the start of the year because they could not meet literacy tests." Abandonment of literacy tests would greatly reduce the number of fathers whom it will be necessary to call up for service. While that is not a conclusive argument, it is one of a number of good reasons for urging a change in policy.

Unquestionably illiteracy is a personal handicap automatically disbarring an individual from many kinds of Army training calling for a knowledge of reading, writing and arithmetic. But, as Senator Maybank says, there are plenty of assignments that call for brawn rather than brain. Moreover, the illiterate man may be a person of high native intelligence, better able to use his head in an emergency than a fellow soldier who has had a certain amount of formal education. Certainly the shockingly high proportion of illiterates in some of our Southern States would not be interpreted to mean that the people there are of a generally lower order of intelligence than those living in other sections. The chief cause of illiteracy in final analysis is private poverty that encourages evasion of laws compelling school attendance and public poverty that is responsible for inadequate educational facilities and lax enforcement of compulsory school laws.

In all probability, therefore, thousands of husky illiterates now on the rejected list would make much better soldier material if handled properly than fathers of families. The latter are likely to be past the peak of physical effectiveness and almost certain to be mentally disturbed by separation from their families.

Boris Mystery

No sooner had Mr. Brendan Bracken untangled the Rudolph Hess mystery than King Boris of Bulgaria stirred up another mystery in the seething cauldron of international politics. Hess succeeded in titillating the imagination of the world for many months by his fantastic flight to enemy territory. Boris, appropriately called the "Hamlet of the Balkans" by an imaginative journalist, set speculative tongues wagging only by dying at a moment of dramatic climax. It is not likely, however, that the death of the Bulgarian King will remain a mystery as long as did the wild flight of the deluded Nazi conspirator. For it is probably closely connected with what is happening in Bulgaria.

One rumor says that Boris suffered a heart attack after a recent stormy interview with Herr Hitler. Another says that he was shot by one of his own subjects, a Bulgarian official who is convinced that the only salvation for that unhappy country lies in coming to terms immediately with Russia. Of the two rumors we should say that the latter is the more plausible. The time has passed when Hitler could give people heart failure merely by screaming at them, as he screamed at poor Schuschnigg just before the Anschluss. About all that one can safely say is that behind the screen of censorship and propaganda something important is happening in Bulgaria. This would be quite logical, since Bulgaria is a kind of traditional political weathercock anyhow. It has something of an historical reputation both for throwing itself in with the wrong side and then for being the first to realize that it has done so. In 1918 Bulgaria was the first of the Central Powers to sue for an armistice, thereby making it necessary for the Germans to move in and attempt to take over. Maybe that is what is happening now, though it is not safe to trust historical parallels too absolutely.

In any event, the death of King Boris is a blow to the Axis. Regardless of whether he resisted Hitler's latest demands, Bulgaria was certainly a more reliable satellite in the Axis system before his death than it is now. Swedish newspapers report that Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, is being swept by formidable demonstrations in favor of a break with Hitler. Now that the dictator King is dead it may be impossible for the Germans to keep Bulgaria in the war without reducing the country to utter chaos.

We doubt that many tears will be shed for Boris even among his own people. He was recognized as a very clever manipulator in the field of international politics. But his slick deals have brought his country to disaster of even greater proportions than that inflicted upon Bulgaria by his father, Ferdinand I. So his death may be the signal for which the people have been waiting to rise against dictatorship and thus inaugurate a series of events paralleling those of 25 years ago.

Record Exports

Exports from the United States during the first half of 1943 reached the colossal total of $5,488,000,000, exclusive of shipments to the armed forces. During that same period imports amounted to $1,552,000,000. The result is an export balance of $3,936,000,000 for the six-month period. The magnitude of the wartime export trade and the moderate volume of imports are best shown by comparing totals with prewar figures. During the period 1926 to 1930, inclusive, exports averaged $4,777,000,000 per year while imports averaged $4,033,000,000. In the succeeding five depression years average yearly exports amounted to $2,025,000,000, while imports averaged $1,713,000,000. In 1938, the year preceding outbreak of the war in Europe, exports totaled $3,094,000,000; imports $1,960,000,000.

Owing to wartime censorship, the trade figures are of little use for the purpose of analysis. There is no way of knowing what proportion of exports represent lend-lease shipments. Nor do we know the destination of shipments. The extraordinarily large excess of exports over imports does, however, emphasize the abnormal character of the trade that is now going on between the United States and the rest of the world. Lend-lease shipments, undoubtedly the major part of exports, represent our contribution to the Allied war effort. Some of the goods sent out under this arrangement would be moving out in time of peace, and would be paid for by importing countries. But it would be rash to draw any inferences from these trade figures as to the volume of our postwar commercial dealings with other nations. The mere fact that we have during a period of only six months shipped out goods valued at nearly four billion dollars more than the value of our imports testifies to the temporary, noncommercial character of this export movement.

When peace returns, it seems altogether unlikely that the United States will be able to pile up large export balances. On the contrary, if we expect to be paid for the goods that we sell abroad, it will be necessary to take payment in goods, unless we are prepared to lend impoverished nations the funds with which to buy our products as we did after World War I.

Lend-Lease

When President Roosevelt first broached the lend-lease idea, he spoke of it as a device for taking the dollar sign off aid to our friends. That was in December, 1940, a year before this Nation became a participant in the war. Even then the President and many others realized that the creation of mountainous international debts through lend-lease aid would be unwise in principle and imprudent in practice. In the words of its own title, the Lend-Lease Act was "an act to promote the defense of the United States." It was one of those dramatically simple concepts which are the core of statesmanship.

In his eleventh report to Congress on lend-lease operations, just submitted, the President emphasizes anew that this aid to our allies is not to be considered in the nature of a debt. "The Congress in passing and extending the Lend-Lease Act," he said, "made it plain that the United States wants no new war debts to jeopardize the coming peace. Victory and a secure peace are the only coin in which we can be repaid." This is merely a restatement of what he and others have said on this subject in the past. It is useful, however, to have it restated at this time. The point should be understood by the whole American public. For any misunderstanding on this score can seriously undermine our chances of fashioning an intelligent, workable economic settlement when the war is ended.

This doctrine that lend-lease must not be permitted to disrupt the postwar economy has been explicitly incorporated into the master agreements which we have negotiated with some of our allies. These state that the terms and conditions of settlement "shall be such as not to burden commerce between the two countries, but to promote mutually advantageous economic relations . . . and the betterment of world-wide economic relations." This means, in simple terms, that we cannot at the end of this war, as we did at the end of the last war, seek repayment for our aid in gold or in goods. To do so would be to commit a form of economic harakiri.

That Congress was in agreement with this view was evidenced in the House Foreign Affairs Committee report of last February on extension of the Lend-Lease Act. The report declared:

> The committee is of the opinion that a lend-lease settlement which will not burden commerce cannot be based solely upon payment in gold or in goods as a benefit. This conclusion seems apparent in the light of the history of the war-debts problem during the twenties, and of the purpose of Congress in passing the Lend-Lease Act in its present form, rather than providing for a loan or series of loans. As Secretary Stimson pointed out in his testimony, the World War of 1914-18 was the only important instance in modern history when assistance to allies was granted in the form of loans. The results of that experiment are known to all. The method of settlement by payment in gold or in goods has in the past proved self-defeating and destructive, and would after this war seriously interfere with the achievement of the conditions of world economic order on which the prosperity of this country largely depends.

But this does not mean that we can expect no benefits at all in return for our lend-lease aid. Apart from the inestimable boon of "victory and a secure peace," we can legitimately and realistically seek the elimination of restrictive tariffs and all other trade barriers, the acquisition or use of strategic bases, the perpetuation and strengthening of international ties for collective security. We cannot achieve these objectives by assuming a creditor-debtor relationship with our allies. We can achieve them only by a settlement of lend-lease affairs in the spirit in which they were undertaken—the spirit of mutual aid.

As the President said more than a year ago in his fifth lend-lease report, "The concept of the United Nations will not perish on the battlefields of this terrible war. It will live to lay the basis of the enduring world understanding on which mankind depends to preserve its peace and freedom." This concept of the United Nations is the concept that each of them will give unstintingly to the common cause the fullest measure of its human and material resources. It is a concept which has been leading us effectively toward victory. And it is a concept which affords the most hopeful basis for an enduring peace.

Plans Take Shape

THE PAST WEEK saw steps toward unifying the thought of the Republican Party about postwar. Unity of thought in one of the two great parties, now the opposition party, will simplify the problem for the country as a whole to decide. It is not beyond possibility that the Republican position, when finally arrived at, may not differ, in fundamental principles, from the position of the Democratic Party.

One step last week was a plan put forward by an important member of the Republican National Committee, author Clarence Budington Kelland. The consequence of this lies in Mr. Kelland's past position as a spokesman of that school of thought which was called—in many cases more argumentatively than accurately—"isolationist." Mr. Kelland's present position goes far toward what is called—again more argumentatively than accurately—"internationalism." Mr. Kelland's plan includes, in addition to other forms of cooperation by us with other nations, a permanently, openly avowed alliance for mutual defense between the United States and Britain. Mr. Kelland's plan includes also complete solidarity of the nations of the Western Hemisphere against any threat to any one of them. This may or may not be the final answer—but decidedly this is not isolation.

ANOTHER REPUBLICAN UTTERANCE last week was by Senator Robert Taft of Ohio. Mr. Taft did not purport to put forward a plan. What he did was to oppose some features of some plans. Particularly and strongly he opposed the notion of an international supergovernment, with an international parliament or congress, having purposes going beyond the mere preservation of peace, and overlapping some ordinary functions of government now exercised by the nations individually. The international parliament idea was included in the plan put forward by former Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, and also in the plan much discussed a year or so ago known as "Union Now."

Apparently the international parliament idea is out, as respects the Republican Party. It is not mentioned, nor apparently intended, in the formal statement given out by Mr. Wendell L. Willkie to Republican leaders on August 12. The only functions of international organization specifically mentioned by Mr. Willkie, other than the preservation of peace, were two. These were: "The establishment of stable mediums of international exchange, and the elimination of unnecessary trade barriers." These objectives do not call for an international parliament, nor for any degree of surrender of national sovereignty. These objectives can be accomplished by simple treaties between nations, of a sort the United States has frequently entered into.

FURTHER CLARIFICATION of Republican thought on postwar will take place at the sitting of the party's official Postwar Advisory Council, appointed by National Chairman Harrison Spangler, and called to meet at Mackinac Island, Mich., on Monday and Tuesday of next week. This meeting can result in clarification, and ought to.

Within the Democratic Party also, something happened last week that makes for unity and singleness in that party's policy about postwar foreign relations. There was within the Department of State either schism of thought or clash of personalities or both—the details do not matter. What is significant is that in the outcome Secretary of State Cordell Hull is confirmed in his authority. Mr. Hull, subject of course to President Roosevelt, will head the foreign policy of the United States throughout the coming period in which our postwar international arrangements are to be arrived at.

Mr. Hull will have weight, because of his official position, because of his stability of purpose, and because ever since the League of Nations fight in 1920, he has given thought to the problem of preserving peace. Mr. Hull holds steadily to the purpose of peace; and he knows the mistakes that were made—partly in the constitution of the League itself, and more in the methods by which President Wilson sought to get ratification by the American Senate and assent by the American people. Mr. Hull will have further weight because of the esteem in which he is held by the people and by Congress. It is safe to say that Mr. Hull can get patient consideration by Congress of plans for postwar which, without his sponsorship, might encounter opposition.

Tokens For Change

In company with many other Post readers, I am often delayed during the morning rush hour while the news dealer is making change for currency ranging from a nickel to a $10 bill.

To relieve this situation, I suggest that The Post adopt a token for use in purchasing the morning paper. The token could be bought in various amounts at newsstands and redeemed by The Post. Then the reader could virtually help himself to the paper and leave the token without having to wait for change. HARRY TRAUB.

Berlin

By Paul Schubert

A Doomed Metropolis

UNTER DEN LINDEN—there's a name associated with the tread of marching feet.

It used to be the changing of the guard, back in the days of the Kaiserreich. In 1914 conscripts marched down Unter den Linden on their way to war . . . and in 1918 the returning Berlin regiments passed through the Brandenburger Tor, coming home from a lost cause, watched by numbed and silent crowds.

In the young days of the Republic, Unter den Linden felt the tread of revolutionaries, with "red" sailors at their head.

Ten years later, Hitler's brownshirts were doing the marching, and after Hitler came to power it was the army again—a new army. Hitler displayed picked troops to the people, tall men with gleaming weapons, doing the old Paradeschritt, the "goose step" which the Germans think symbolic of the utmost in physical discipline. Hitler displayed the SS too—the "elite guard," in black uniforms, with black helmets, and an austerity that seemed black-hearted.

Unter den Linden is a broad thoroughfare, without particular distinction—an ugly avenue in an ugly city.

IF IT were not for the rumble of drums and the tread of feet, it would have remained undistinguished.

But because the Germans marched its length so often, and because the Germans embarked on one war too many, the idea of marching down Unter den Linden spread to a good many other armies.

The British, for instance, have earned a claim to a parade through the Tor. And the Americans—it would do us good, on our second involuntary visit to Europe, to let Sousa marches blare out the step for free-hipped men who march as Germans could never march . . . no goose-step, and sometimes a helmet on a little askew, or a rifle at the wrong slant, but soldiers for all that, from the New World.

Russians, too, have dreamed of the parade up Unter den Linden, and they say that when it comes to marching, there's something in the sight of good Russian infantry to set the blood tingling.

But by the time we get there, we and our allies, there probably won't be any Unter den Linden.

At any rate, what's left of it will be scarred, smashed and fire-blackened.

THE BOMBING of Berlin is one of the war's most fateful incidents. Planned for weeks, advertised for weeks, led up to by an unparalleled sequence of city-bombings climaxing with the great attack on Hamburg, the attack on Berlin is a deliberate blow at the enemy.

Berlin is Germany's first city. The capital. The Fuehrer's political headquarters. Berlin is a city whose normal population is 4,300,000—one of the world's great metropolitan centers.

Berlin lacks charm and grace. It is the setting for some of the most monumental, unattractive sculpture to be found on this earth, plus palaces, plus government buildings, plus big angular modern apartment houses, plus threadbare slums by the square mile . . .

But Berlin was a city of animal life and energy—a metropolis. As the Germans say, a Grossstadt. Its motor-traffic moved with a fierce pace. Its big yellow motor-buses traveled like juggernauts. Berlin was proud of its subway, its tramways, its elevated railway, its railway stations, its hotels and restaurants, its parks, zoo and gardens, its museums and motion-picture theaters. Berlin had libraries, opera, concerts, a literary circle. Berlin had theater and vaudeville, countless beer-halls . . .

Berlin had its own humor, hard and sardonic—

In Berlin, the Germans felt safe, once. Germany fought many wars, but always on foreign soil. Nothing could touch the heart of the Reich . . .

With the coming of Hitler, the destruction of Berlin became inevitable.

It is a grim and painful thing to carry warfare to the enemy. A man defending his own soil fights fiercely—he has no other choice. A man waging offensive warfare takes his courage into his own hands and goes forth voluntarily to face death.

It costs a price to bomb Berlin.

And yet it is very significant that we are bombing Berlin. The dooming of this city means: (1) No German can feel safe in any city from now on. (2) This time our victory will not be what we were half prepared to accept—the cheap, symbolic triumph of a march up Unter den Linden, a rankling gesture that must, after all, be a hollow satisfaction. This time Germany will feel the loss of a war in different terms. Hamburg, and now Berlin—may these blows rid Germans of the lust for marching.

Tax Law

In reply, to my letter published in The Post of August 12 I received from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation a copy of House Document No. 237 in relation to Public Law No. 68. This document explains fully how the tax shall be paid and makes this part very clear for any taxpayer who receives a salary and has some investments.

But for those engaged in business of selling merchandise or services it is just as plain as mud since their income fluctuates from month to month and season to season according to the crops raised in their particular section of the country.

For example, in the one-crop agricultural section, consumers must husband their resources for 9 or 10 months in order to raise their crop. If it turns out well, the merchant has a fine trade for two or three months, say, October and November.

Now, we are expected to estimate on September 15 what our income will be, this at a time when we do not know if it will be 10 per cent or 150 per cent of 1942. (It can vary that much with ease.) Yet if our estimate is more than 20 per cent under our earnings, we are subject to a fine and an investigation which may cost more than our entire income.

It is some law that calls for a citizen to guess within 20 per cent of what his earnings will be and punishes him for a bad guess. I would like to ask that the above-mentioned Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation take the above facts into consideration and grant relief from their ill-advised law before it is too late.

'Teen-Age Voters

"If boys of 18 are old enough to bear arms in war, they are old enough to vote." This is dangerous wartime hysteria. Voting is an obligation as well as a right or privilege.

The safety of our Republic depends on the quality of our electorate, and that quality would not be improved by reducing the voting age from 21 to 18 years.

Even if service in the armed forces by a boy of 18 increased his ability to act intelligently as a voter, which is very doubtful, that is no reason for altering our Constitution to permit all boys and girls of 18 to vote for all time to come. They have not had sufficient experience to form sound judgment on national and local affairs.

We must give consideration to the safety and welfare of our Republic and not be carried away by sentimental talk about our boys in the war.

Legion's Opportunity

Vice Admiral John W. Greenslade, commander of the western sea frontier addressed members of the American Legion in California the other day, and he emphasized the opportunity which will be in the hands of the American Legion after the war to "renounce self-interest as a primary goal after the peace is established."

Most legion members can agree to that. What most of us fear is that sinister interests in no way related to the former soldiers, will succeed in unduly influencing the administration of the organization. Those ungodly interests which always have prospered in every land; the interests which have a habit of trying to work in through patriotic groups to accomplish their ends; the interests which subsidized Hitler and Mussolini in their respective countries, are certain to continue their efforts to influence the election to office in the legion, especially policy-making officials, whose point of view and whose influence will be against cooperation abroad and against real democracy and real prosperity at home. These forces for evil most certainly will threaten the American Legion after the war is won. Unless the great mass of members understand the danger and keep out of legion affairs the influence of men whom Henry Wallace describes as American Fascists, we shall have missed one of our greatest postwar opportunities.

Children Refused

What is wrong with little children whose fathers have been called to help fight this war that the people in Washington have closed their doors to them? My husband is a Government employe, was transferred down here the first of the year. We have two little grandchildren whose fathers are both in the service, our daughters have both got to go to work in order to support them. My husband and I are taking the children to help them out.

I have walked the streets for three weeks, which is hard work in the Washington heat. I have answered lots of ads, but as soon as I say children the door is closed. I am really ashamed to say this, but I have even had the door shut in my face. Don't they realize that these children's fathers are fighting for them? We are not begging for charity. We are able to pay our way. All we ask is a clean, decent place to live.

Separate Air Arm

During the week of Munich (September, 1938,) I had occasion to call on the RAF Headquarters, Kingsway, London, and I was astounded to find to what a low state the third arm of the British national defense had fallen.

Also, I cannot forget that in May-June, 1940, when the Germans rolled through Belgium into France, the RAF gave practically no protection to the retreating British army and did not even machine gun and bomb the transport trucks of the invaders.

Finally I recall that only 20 months ago the Resolute and the Prince of Wales went down due to the lack of a protecting cover of RNAS planes.

Now let us consider our record—because we did have two air services—rivals if you will—Admiral Towers refused to be stampeded into following the lead of the Army and scrapping the radial air-cooled engine in 1940. Today his judgment is vindicated 100 per cent. As he put it—his object was "to get there fastest with the most horses." Germany's error in concentrating on liquid-cooled engines is a very big factor in Germany's present troubles in the air.

The real explanation for the German army's incredible success from 1939 through 1941 is that an airman, Goering, was in charge of her army, and until our C. in C. is an airman and until a man like Towers is brought back from Pearl Harbor and made C. in C. of the Navy there is room for the articles you are so right to publish. However, I am convinced that to unify the Army and Navy Air Forces would be a wrong move at any time and at this particular moment it would be suicidal. Britain tried it in 1917 and as a result lost the Battle of Amiens, March, 1917.

The Maid Situation

Maid (somewhat abruptly)—I think we'd better call it quits.

Missus (mildly surprised)—Why, Dorinda, I thought . . .

Maid (firmly)—Don't interrupt me! I'm leaving. You don't seem to suit me.

Missus—If you'd only . . .

Maid—There's no point arguing, Mrs. Toopsey. I've given you two weeks' trial, I had hoped you might be satisfactory, but . . .

Missus—Really, Dorinda, you might . . .

Maid—Oh, you needn't explain, Mrs. Toopsey. And I don't want you to feel bad about it. You meant well and I realize you were trying. But, well, you just can't seem to do things my way!

Missus (who has become pretty surprise-proof)—It seems to me that if . . .

Maid (condescendingly)—Now, there's no use getting excited. I know how you feel, and I want to be fair to you, but you don't please me, even in the little things.

Missus—But . . .

Maid—I looked you up carefully, Mrs. Toopsey, before I took the job here, and it was my conclusion that you showed some promise, although I must say you weren't exactly what I wanted.

Missus—Perhaps if we sat down and . . .

* * * *

Maid—I can appreciate how you feel, but there's no use going on. I'm thoroughly dissatisfied with you. You don't cook very well, you know, Mrs. Toopsey, and the housework isn't done the way I require.

Missus—But you're working for me!

Maid—It's typical of your class to make a remark like that. And it's very old hat, Mrs. Toopsey. I thought you knew better. The whole matter is one of cooperation, mood and atmosphere. I feel that you have been very slow to get my viewpoint.

Missus (beginning to get the picture correctly)—I'm sorry Dorinda. I was really hoping I'd make good with you.

Maid—You didn't make good with the last maid you had, either.

Missus—That wasn't my fault.

Maid—She told me you talked back to her again and again. You talked back to me, too, yesterday. After all, Mrs. Toopsey!

Missus (breaking down)—Couldn't you give me one more chance?

Maid (quite obdurate)—No. I've been sizing you up very carefully and I've made up my mind.

Missus—But if . . .

Home Front Outlook

By William T. Shenkel

Civilian Hardships Not Severe

IT IS BEGINNING TO LOOK as though the American home front will get through this war without experiencing most of the hardships that seemed inevitable to business forecasters a year ago. Dire predictions of empty store shelves, shortages of practically everything, business failures, transportation breakdowns, and the like have thus far failed to materialize, and chances are that they won't from here on out.

Only a wear ago it seemed probable that by this time millions of automobiles would be laid up for lack of tires or spare parts. There was talk about the Government taking over all pleasure cars. It looked as if far reaching changes in American business would be wrought by concentrating civilian manufacturing and retailing in a few establishments. Compulsory billeting of war workers in private homes was discussed. And it seemed a sure shot that a national service law would draft labor for home front jobs.

None of these hardships has developed in the expected degree. The worst home front privations of the war to date have been gasoline shortages, tightness of some foods due to faulty distribution and the worries connected with rising prices. It adds up to about the same degree of hardship borne by our grandfathers due to lack of indoor plumbing and out of season foods.

IN CONTRAST, of course, most Europeans are up against truly rugged shortages. The show windows of the continent have been barren for years, and American civilians who go to Britain on business tell of losing as much as 10 pounds in a few weeks due to short rations.

A few people in Washington still think it's too bad that Americans haven't been made more aware of the privations of war. This school undoubtedly will continue to be shouted down when it suggests that Government should impose stringencies simply to bring home the seriousness of the situation abroad which, presumably, would cause home frontiers to work harder. But whether the lack of suffering has been good or bad, it now appears that few more dislocations are in store for America.

There are a number of reasons why this seems probable. A few of these are:

Pressure for supplies by the armed forces is relaxing as the Army approaches full strength, and war front depots are filled. This was shown by recent reductions in demand for woolen and cotton materials and canned goods.

The War Production Board is increasingly stressing the need for essential civilian supplies. One recent straw in the wind was the release of 125,000 tons of carbon steel for such home necessities as ranges and heaters.

Inventories of merchants have held up better than most experts thought possible, despite the consumer runs on some items.

Washington is now awake to the dangers in the food situation and is not disposed to lend-lease the country into a serious shortage. An angle here is the fact that 1944 is an election year.

Positive steps are now being taken by the Administration to prevent a dangerous inflation and Congress shows signs of awakening to the need for cooperating.

Highway transportation breakdown has definitely been averted by the synthetic rubber program which can now be declared a success even though the new synthetic tires will not be as good as the natural rubber product. This, perhaps more than any other single factor, is saving America's neck on the home front.

THESE FACTS shouldn't be interpreted as presaging better times. There's no disposition in Washington to ease that lot of those on the home front. The prospect is simply that the situation probably won't get much worse for most people.

The greatest danger is that faulty distribution will prevent even sharing of the available goods. The Government now recognizes this and is working to prevent such dislocations. It probably won't succeed fully but the danger is less than it has been in the past.

All of this, if course, is predicated on the fact that we are winning the war. Serious reverses at any point in the future undoubtedly would change the outlook. On the other hand, when the European phase of the war ends, we can look forward to considerable improvement in home front conditions.

How Canada Beat Inflation

Brookings Report

By the Associated Press

Canada's anti-inflation program has held the living cost increase to 17 per cent, compared with a 28 per cent rise for Great Britain and 26 per cent for the United States, the Brookings Institution reported yesterday.

These figures were for the three and a half years since the war started, in September, 1939.

"This high degree of price stability has been achieved despite the fact that about half the national output is used for war purposes," the institution, a privately founded research group, said in a survey.

Canada, the report said, has "dealt vigorously" with both the fiscal and wage phases of the problem.

Heavy Taxation

"Fiscal policy has emphasized the obtaining of funds from current earnings and includes heavy taxation and both voluntary and compulsory savings," the survey said. "Wages have been regulated to reduce upward pressure on costs. A general price ceiling is supplemented by subsidy payments and allocation and rationing of goods. General ceiling was established over wage rates and a bonus was provided to compensate for any rise in the cost of living."

The Canadians, Brookings reported, increased the tax load "quickly and decisively" when the war started. In the four years ending on March 31 of this year, tax revenues were drawn on for 63 per cent of the Government's expenditures, while only about 16 per cent came from the sale of securities to banks, with the balance from security sales to the public, institutional and corporation investors.

"Half the heavy expenditures of the 1942-43 fiscal year were financed by taxation," the report said.

Subsidies Used

By December, 1941, an increase of 28 per cent in wholesale prices of farm products had been accompanied by a rise of 25 per cent in retail food prices. To stabilize living costs and thus hold wages in control, subsidies have been paid since December, 1941, to offset the squeeze on processors and distributors, the institution reported, adding:

"Payment of subsidies to producers or distributors made it possible to maintain or increase the production of milk, butter and cheese while holding their retail prices relatively steady."

The report commented that "the problem of price control in Canada is different from that in the United States because of the differences in the political and economic systems of the two countries. Canada is less highly developed industrially, is a heavier exporter of farm products and relies heavily on imports of many industrial articles. Canadian industry is also concentrated in a relatively few cities. Administration of control is facilitated by the close relationship between executive and legislative branches of the government.

Moscow Dateline

Tense Moments in Diplomacy

An opportunity to write a happy ending to a story was a rarity in the dark days of 1942. It had been a rarity for me for six years, while covering the war in Republican Spain, the fall of France, and the invasion of Russia. I had a fine chance to write one, however, to the story of Allied relations in the summer and autumn of 1942.

The relations between the Soviet Union and her western associates had encountered difficulties, amounting by then almost to a crisis. The trouble had begun soon after Foreign Commissar Molotov returned to Moscow in June from his trip to London and Washington, bringing an agreement on the "urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942." The Soviets made clear immediately that they considered that agreement, or at least wanted to consider it, a promise of a second front. The Allies looked on it as an undertaking to consider the possibility of a second front. As the days passed, with danger mounting in the east and still no second front in the west, the Russians started to harp at their friends.

HENRY C. CASSIDY

Second Stalin Letter

The hard feelings, which were made evident during Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Moscow in August, Wendell Willkie's visit in September, and in Stalin's letter to me in October, came to a head in mid-October over the case of Rudolf Hess. It was the action rather than the words, of the Allies, in occupying French North Africa, and a second letter from Stalin to me, that provided this otherwise sad tale with its happy ending.

The Hess case, which had been simmering for more than a year after Hitler's aide flew to Scotland and was locked up with scarcely a word by the British, boiled over October 14. On that day, Molotov issued a "statement of the Soviet government regarding the responsibility of the Hitlerite invaders and their accomplices for the infamies committed by them in the occupied countries of Europe." In it he named Hess, only after Hitler and Goering, as one of the "ringleaders of the criminal Hitlerite clique," and said pointedly:

"The Soviet government considers it imperative that any one of the ringleaders of Fascist Germany, who during the course of the war has already fallen into the hands of the authorities of states fighting against Hitlerite Germany, should be brought to trial without delay before a special international tribunal and punished with the full severity of the penal law."

On the surface, this was a simple and outspoken demand for immediate trial of Hess. Actually, there was much more to it than that. The Russians did want Hess tried and his status as a guest of the British clarified. But more than anything, they wanted a second front, and the Hess case provided another occasion for prodding the British government. Next to that, the Russians were maneuvering for postwar positions, and here was one in which they felt strong.

Occupied Nation's Note

The background of the case went back to January 13, 1942, when the Czech minister to Russia, M. Fierlinger, and the representative of the French National Committee, M. Garreau, sent a note to the Soviet government on behalf of the occupied nations of Europe, Czechoslovakia, France, Poland, Yugoslavia, Norway, Belgium, Greece, Holland, and Luxembourg, giving a joint "declaration regarding punishment for crimes committed during the war," and asking the Soviet Union to join in with a statement of German responsibility for such crimes. The note was growing yellow with age, and M. Garreau was already back in London, when Molotov pulled it out of its pigeonhole at the foreign commissariat and answered it.

What had happened in the meantime to provoke the answer? In addition to the differences over the second front, which the Russians had come to consider as an open political issue, there had been another exchange of notes. Foreign Secretary Eden sent to Soviet Ambassador Maisky in London an invitation to the Soviet Union to join a United Nations Commission for the investigation of war crimes. The date of that note was important. British authorities said it was sent October 3. The Soviets claimed they received it October 6. Without waiting for a Soviet reply, the British government announced, October 7, in the House of Commons, through the Lord Chancellor, Lord Simon, the details of its plan. It provided for postwar surrender and punishment of war criminals and early establishment of the commission to record crimes and name those responsible.

Roosevelt's Proposal

President Roosevelt announced simultaneously in Washington the United States' readiness to cooperate with Great Britain and the other United Nations in establishing the war crimes commission, and its intention to demand enemy surrender of criminals at the close of the war.

The Soviet Union was left out of the United Nations' plan until the last moment, and then confronted with a fait accompli. Moreover, its known desire for immediate trial of war criminals was ignored. This point might be argued, on the basis of British and American desire to avoid mass reprisals. But no one could deny Russia, as the country which had suffered the most, the right to a leading place in formation of any plans for punishment of war criminals. That this happened was, on the face of it, a diplomatic blunder. The Soviets did nothing to improve the situation by raising the Hess case so sharply. Allied relations were at their darkest.

In any such international issue, the question, which was rarely raised, but always implied, was: What are you going to do about it? The unspoken answer might be that the Russians would abandon the war, leave the United Nations, and make separate peace with Germany. No one who remembered the Russian about-face of August, 1939, the pact of non-aggression and friendship with Germany, could deny that the Soviets were capable of abrupt action. In this case the Soviets had no such intention. But the implied threat was there.

Britain's Firm Stand

In this case it was the British who took the strong line. There was no doubt that they were riled by the frequent needling from their Russian allies. They made no effort to kiss and make up over this quarrel.

Britain's firmness was reflected in a speech by Eden, October 30, to the Scotland Conference of Trade Unions, in which he declared, "Our history and our geographical position require that we remain a world power, possessing world-wide interests. We will yet play an important role in the world during the war and after it." This brief extract was published in the Soviet press November 2. Although it did not refer directly to the points at issue, it did indicate Britain's strong attitude. It caused much comment in Moscow.

British Ambassador Clark Kerr called on Stalin November 5 and talked with him for two hours. I was told he brought "nothing to gladden Stalin's heart."

With matters at this impasse, Stalin made his November 6 address to the meeting of the Moscow Soviet, on the eve of the anniversary, in the great council chamber of the Kremlin. The Soviet position seemed to have softened, the situation looked a little better.

Effect of Africa Coup

Stalin criticized his allies inferentially, blaming the German gains during the summer on the absence of a second front in the west.

When, however, he came to the essential point—would there, or would there not be a second front—he was more hopeful: "Yes, there will be, sooner or later there will be one. And it will be not only because we need it, but, and above all, because our allies need it no less than we do."

"There can be only one conclusion," Stalin ruled, "namely, that the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition has every chance of vanquishing the Italo-German coalition, and certainly will vanquish it."

The Russians realized they had made a blunder by pressing the Hess case too hard, in words which one should not apply to an ally.

Then came the news which altered the situation completely. It was conveyed to the Russians by a brief message at the top of the back page of Pravda, November 8:

U. S. Cites Atrocities

By the Associated Press

The United States Government reaffirmed yesterday "its resolve to punish the instigators and actual perpetrators" of German atrocities against the people of Poland.

It was four years ago Wednesday that the Germans marched into that nation to begin the European war.

The British Foreign Office issued an identical statement in London.

The State Department, in a "declaration on German crimes in Poland," said that trustworthy information has reached this Government regarding "crimes committed by the German invaders" against the Polish population, crimes which the department said are being carried out with "the utmost brutality."

The text of the declaration follows:

"Trustworthy information has reached the United States Government regarding the crimes committed by the German invaders against the population of Poland. Since the autumn of 1942 a belt of territory extending from the province of Bialystok southward along the line of the River Bug has been systematically emptied of its inhabitants. In July, 1943, these measures were extended to practically the whole of the province of Lublin, where hundreds of thousands of persons have been deported from their homes or exterminated.

"These measures are being carried out with the utmost brutality. Many of the victims are killed on the spot. The rest are segregated. Men from 14 to 50 are taken away to work for Germany. Some children are killed on the spot, others are separated from their parents and either sent to Germany to be brought up as Germans or sold to German settlers or despatched with the women and old men to concentration camps.

"The United States Government reaffirms its resolve to punish the instigators and actual perpetrators of these crimes. It further declares that, so long as such atrocities continue to be committed by the representatives and in the name of Germany, they must be taken into account against the time of the final settlement with Germany. Meanwhile the war against Germany will be prosecuted with the utmost vigor until the barbarous Hitlerite tyranny has been finally overthrown."

Let Peoples Choose, Says Berle

By Charles Gridley

Washington Bureau of the Chicago Sun

Repeated rumors that the State Department has been dealing with discredited political leaders of Axis and occupied European countries were officially denied for the first time last night by Adolph A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, after being permitted to go virtually unchallenged over a period of months.

Berle, who has been mentioned personally in some of the reports, called them "certain wild yarns which are hardly worth the trouble of denying" and "truthless trifles which circulate in wartime, borne on currents of factional dispute or European propaganda."

He specifically denied:

1. That this Government has sought to establish contact with Laval or other representatives of the defunct Petain administration in occupied France.

2. That some plan for a "Catholic Axis" was being elaborated in Washington.

3. That Count Ciano, deposed Fascist foreign minister of Italy, was in the United States.

4. That any scheme of a Fascist federation of eastern Europe against the Soviet Union has been worked up.

Berle made his denials in replying to a letter from M. B. Schnapper, executive secretary of the American Council on Public Affairs, with headquarters in Washington.

Schnapper had pointed out that assertions were frequently made, "sometimes by men and journals of good will," that the State Department has pursued a policy of rebuffing and ignoring exiled leaders "who look to a democratic revitalization of Europe" and "has been favorably disposed toward highly conservative and reactionary persons who are desirous of retaining the evils of prewar Europe."

Berle said in reply:

"The Government of the United States has consistently maintained a policy directed towards a democratic solution in the occupied countries and in the enemy countries as and when the occupants of those countries shall be free to speak. The Atlantic Charter declares the right of the people of each country to live under a government of their own choosing."

He said the department has never pursued either of the policies specifically mentioned by Schnapper, and added:

"Leaders and groups of all shades of thought have sought here the refuge which we have gladly offered. Many of them have asked to be recognized or accepted or dealt with as representing the country from which they came. Their claims thus to speak for an invaded or silenced country are often disputed by other groups and leaders of the same nationality and attacked by leaders and groups of other nationalities. These claims properly ought to be settled by the people of their own country, not by the State Department."

Factory Pay Rises Faster Than Prices, NAM Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 29.—The National Association of Manufacturers reported today that "wages paid by manufacturers have been rising more rapidly than the cost of living."

In its publication, "Industry's View," the manufacturers group asserted figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics "show that since August 1939 average weekly wages of workers in manufacturing establishments throughout the country have gone up 82.4 per cent and living costs in this period (August 1939 to June 1943) have increased less than 27 per cent."

The NAM added:

"While price increases have been given much publicity, the sharp gains in wages usually have been ignored in published reports. Failure to consider wage increases along with increases in living costs has distorted the truth, has created confusion and has led to erroneous conclusions."

Declaration that the "main agitation for pay boosts comes from organized groups concentrated in manufacturing industries," the NAM asserted factory workers comprised less than 40 per cent of the Nation's nonagricultural workers and added:

"If there are present wage injustices they are to be found in the white collar groups—certainly not among the manufacturing workers."

The association said that manufacturers' profit, expressed as a percentage of gross receipts in 1942, was 34 per cent smaller than in 1929 and 24 per cent smaller than in 1941.

Among conclusions drawn by the NAM was one that "any further increase in salaries and wages will boost the inflationary spiral by increasing prices.

AFL Urges Efforts Now To Avoid Postwar Depression

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 29.—Secretary-Treasurer George Meany of the American Federation of Labor said today Government and private industry must work together and prevent any threatened postwar depression.

"We of the American Federation of Labor," said Meany in a speech broadcast by NBC, "refuse to accept the theory that a depression is inevitable after the war.

"We do not have to have a depression and, as a matter of fact, we must not have a depression."

Meany said the AFL had a postwar program which called for providing jobs "not only for the demobilized fighting men but also for the millions of men and women who are now working in war plants and will require new jobs when peace comes."

Meany gave no details of the AFL postwar plan, except to say "private industry must supply the bulk of the jobs after the war ends," and that Government also would have an important part to play.

"The Government," he said, "has the responsibility of encouraging industrial expansion. The American Federation of Labor holds that the Government should not only permit but stimulate opportunities to make a reasonable and fair profit. An enterprise which makes a profit is willing to expand. Expansion spells more jobs, and that is what labor will want."

In addition, Meany said, all stages of government—Federal, State, county, municipal—should plan postwar public works projects now and labor and management in private enterprise "should start sitting down together to try to find ways and means of increasing peacetime production and achieving full employment."

Small Business Big Producer

Small business produces one-third the total dollar value of all goods and services in this country, the Commerce Department reported last night.

Embracing nine out of every ten business establishments, such firms employ 45 per cent of all wage earners in manufacuring, wholesaling, retailng and service industries, the department added in a special economic bulletin. A foreword says:

"The importance of small business cannot be measured by those factors alone. As the customers and the suppliers of large concerns, small businesses make an essential contribution to the Nation's commerce. Most important, the existence of our thousands of smaller concerns affords opportunities for the exercise of private initiative without which our traditional system of free enterprise could not long continue."

Farmers Requested To Supply Trees For Lumber Needs

The Government turned to farmers yesterday with an appeal for aid in a Nation-wide drive to meet wartime requirements for lumber.

The War Food Administration, the Forestry Service and the War Production Board disclosed completion of a cooperative program designed to increase sharply the production of forest products from farm-owned woodlands.

It is estimated that 3.5 million farms have woodlands, most of which can yield marketable products.

Walker Advocates Purchase of Gifts Now for Christmas

The Postoffice Department recommends that Christmas shopping be started really early this year, indeed right now.

Postmaster General Walker put forth this argument yesterday for early shopping:

"Millions of persons will buy Christmas gifts for members of the armed forces overseas within the next few weeks because of time limitations necessarily placed on such mailings. While these purchasers are in the stores, those of them who intend to mail gifts to civilians also can be urged to do that buying now, before the holiday rush begins. . . . Purchasers now have a better selection of articles from which to choose than they will have later when the annual buying rush has depleted store stocks."

4000 Answer Call For Aid in Freeing War Material Jam

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—The rush of persons answering an emergency call for temporary freight handlers to move vital war materials in New York and Jersey City, Hoboken, Bayonne and Weehawken, N. J., reached such proportions today that the U. S. Employment Service and the U. S. Railroad Retirement Board announced no more were needed.

Regional Director Ray R. McCurry of the Railroad Board said more than 4000 persons had responded.

Railroad and Government officials said the jam, worst so far in this war, involved about 8000 cars packed with materials urgently needed by troops abroad, and indicated others were arriving at the rate of more than 1000 a day.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The news came that Tommy got his Zero in the skies over Hongkong and we were reminded of the infantry lieutenant with the broken nose who was talking football in the Chase Hotel tavern at St. Louis last week. "There never was a football player like Tommy Harmon," he was saying.

POVICH

He had played with Harmon, he said. They were together on the squad at University of Michigan for three years. "Never mind my name," he said, "I wasn't a regular, but the scrubs knew better than the regulars that Harmon was a terrific guy to try to stop. We had to play against him. The regulars didn't."

He said that's where he got his broken nose, trying to stop Harmon in an intrasquad game. "I was backing up the line, and Harmon came through. He hit me harder than I hit him. That was one of his tricks. People had the wrong idea of Harmon. They saw him as a fast, elusive back who didn't give a tackler a clear shot at him, but that was only half of his talents.

"It was tough to lay a hand on Harmon. He had a change of pace, and speed enough to brush you off. You couldn't make a bad tackle and bring him down. But when he was trapped, he was tough, too. That's when he'd boom into you, and show a lot of leg drive. Harmon was a big man. Weighed over 190. He had a talent for every situation."

Everything that could be said about Harmon could be said, too, about Jim Thorpe, of course. To bring the picture up to a later day, though, we'd say Cliff Battles was the nearest modern counterpart to Harman as a ball carrier. We limit it to ball carrying, because Battles could neither punt nor pass like Harmon, although he used to do both those jobs by default before Sammy Baugh joined the Redskins.

Battles is remembered chiefly for his elusiveness and his long runs. The play on which he ran 87 yards to score against the Giants in 1937 after being trapped on an end run 5 yards behind the scrimmage line with any one of our Giants able to make the tackle, is unforgetable. Out of what seemed an impossible situation, Battles moved through the mass and was never caught. The slow-motion movies showed how he did it. He boomed into the first tackler and the others fell like tenpins.

Like Harmon, Battles had that turn of extra speed. At times when he seemed to be moving all out, he turned on that something extra. Battles was a long-striding loper with not quite Harmon's drive, but like Harmon he was always thinking in terms of touchdown.

For sheer power, though, it's no contest. We'd say the ball carrier never lived who could hit as hard as Bronko Narguski. The Bronk was a man apart. He welcomed the tackler who tried to stop him head on. Nagurski barging through a line with his thick legs churning and his high knee-action devastating the secondary defense was the personification of football power on the loose.

Nagurski was in the Bears' backfield that day in 1937 in the title game against the Redskins at Chicago, and the Bears had the ball on the Redskins' 15-yard line. Baugh was playing safety man and, in that situation, playing close, virtually as a backer-up. The Bears sent Nagurski through the middle. They had opened a hole for him and he met up with no tackler until he encountered Baugh on the 10-yard line. Baugh tried to stop him. Nagurski, never lifting his head, bulled Baugh down, stepped on him and continued to a touchdown as if he had had a clear field.

The contrast with Nagurski would be Red Grange. The Redhead never aimed to try conclusions head-on with any tackler. For sheer elusiveness, he was probably the champ. Grange was football's greatest faker. None had his shiftiness. Until he was clear, Grange ran within himself more than any other ball player we've ever seen. He was the original loose-hipped back. Until he turned on his speed, he gained more ground with a wriggle than by any other tactic.

We've seen Grange deliberately extend a leg to a tackler, and then leave him empty handed with a quick change of pace. He loped more slowly than either Battles or Harmon, and could turn it on quicker. He knew he had no leg drive, and he rarely bothered to struggle when he was the victim of a good tackle. But more men probably missed a clean shot at Grange than against any other football player.

Three Runs In 11th Wins First Game

Errors Aid Griffs To Register Two Tallies in Ninth To Cop Nightcap

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

The Nats blended a certain amount of skill with a generous helping of luck and wrenched two ball games away from the hapless Athletics yesterday to the high satisfaction of 11,005 customers.

They won the first game, 5 to 4, in 11 innings, and they won the second game, 2 to 1 coming off the ropes in each contest to wipe out Philadelphia leads in the ninth inning. The A's let both games slip away.

For Jess Flores, little Mexican curve baller, that second game was a tragic affair in which he held the Nats to two hits in a duel with Dutch Leonard and took a 1-0 lead into the last of the ninth. Two errors, one of them his own, lost him the ball game.

Myatt Scores on Fumbles

Georgia Myatt opened that ninth with a single to left to put the tying run on base, and after Gene Moore sacrificed him to second, Flores got rid of George Case on a pop-up for the second out. Then his luck turned sour. Mickey Vernon beat out a hit down the line to First Baseman Dick Siebert who juggled the ball a bit, and when he finally threw to Flores, covering the bag, Flores, too, fumbled. As the ball rolled free, Myatt scored all the way from second to tie up the game.

Vernon reached second a bit later when Siebert muffed Flores' throw to pick him off first base. Jake Powell then delivered the kayo hit, a long drive over Bobby Estalella's head in left field that won the ball game.

That defeat was no more painful to the A's, though, than what happened in the first game when Don Black lost a 2-1 lead in the ninth on an infield hit by Myatt, and then made a mess of a 4-2 lead he took into the eleventh.

Black, who had held the Nats to eight hits for ten innings was seemingly home after Myatt flied out for the first out in the eleventh, but then trouble commenced. Bill Lefebvre, pinch-hitting for Jim Mertz, wafted a pop fly double into left field, and that started it.

George Case promptly got a run home with a single to center, and Black was dismissed in favor of Luman Harris. Case then began to cause more trouble. He stole second right away, and on the next pitch, which went into the dirt and bounced off Bob Swift's mitt toward the pitching box, Case scampered to third with the tying run, and only one out. Mickey Vernon got him home with a long fly to right.

Sherry Robertson Atones

Jake Powell commenced matters anew for the Nats with a single into center and when Spence drew a walk, the run was in scoring position. Sherry Robertson, who back in the fifth inning had muffed a throw to third base which had given the A's an important run, atoned for that misplay at this point by banking the first pitch he saw to center field for the game-winning single.

In that first game, the Nats gave Mickey Haefner a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Vernon doubled and Spence crashed a triple off the right-field wall, but Haefner ran into two-run trouble in the fifth.

Three successive singles by Siebert, Hall and Suder before anybody was out got a run home, and when Robertson muffed Vernon's throw to third on Black's bunt, the A's had the bases filled with none out. But they got only one more run out of that situation. Heffner delivered it with a fly to Case. Swift was out at the plate trying to score on White's grounder to Vernon.

Black didn't give up a run to the Nats for seven innings until all of a sudden Jake Early led off the ninth with a double against the fence in right-center. The run was

Yanks Sweep Double Bill, 6-4 and 5-1

Bosox Lose Opener In Eleven Innings; Chandler Hurls 5-Hit Ball for 17th Victory

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 29. — The Yankees swept a double-header from the Boston Red Sox today, winning the opener, 6 to 4 in 10 innings, on homers by Charley Keller and Roy Weatherly and the nightcap, 5 to 1, as Spud Chandler twirled a five-hitter for his seventeenth victory against three defeats.

A crowd of 38,330, including 35,721 paid, saw the first-place Bronx Bombers chase their Tex Hughson jinx in the opener. Hughson, who previously had beaten the Yanks eight straight times, was socked for a homer by Keller with one on in the ninth that tied the score at 4-4. In the tenth he tossed another home run ball to Weatherly with one on that abruptly ended the game.

Keller's round-tripper, his second of the game, was his twenty-fourth of the season and paved the way for Johnny Murphy's tenth win of the year. Murphy replaced Ernie Bonham in the ninth after the Sox had scored two runs, one on Al Simmons' first homer of the season, and had men on second and third with only one out. Murphy purposely walked Tony Lupien to load the sacks, then pitched a double-play ball to Bobby Doerr.

The Yanks made short work of Joe Dobson in the second game, scoring four runs in the first inning and sending him to the showers in the second when Weatherly socked his second homer of the day. Emmott O'Neill, who replaced him, hurled one-hit ball the rest of the game, but Chandler muffled the Sox bats all the way. The Sox scored their one run in the first when Chandler dropped a throw from Nick Etten.

Altogether Weatherly made three hits in the second game, including a triple that started the four-run outburst in the first inning.

York Hits Pair As Tigers Top Browns Twice

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Rudy York clouted two home runs today to come within one of tying his record of socking 18 homers in one month as the Detroit Tigers swept a double-header from the Browns. The Tigers won the free-hitting opener, 15 to 5, and captured the nightcap, 4 to 2.

York's record of 18 homers in one month is safe now from his own threat because the Tigers are idle into September 2. The record was set in August, 1937. Big Rudy got one circuit lick in each game, the first with one on. They were his 29 and 30 of the year.

In the first game, a slugfest of 27 hits good for 53 bases, Joe Hoover, Pinky Higgins and Joe Wood also homered for the Tigers and Vernon Stephens smacked two for the Browns. Al Barilla of the Browns hit his first homer of the season in the second game.

Waiting for the Bell to Go Into Action

Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh, and Lulu Costantino, New York Italian, two of the country's top-ranking featherweights, square off tonight at Griffith Stadium in a 10-rounder which promises to draw a crowd of between 10,000 and 15,000. The winner will be nominated for a title shot by Promoter Joe Turner, provided N. B. A. Champion Phil Terranova, who will watch the battle from the ringside, agrees to terms. Turner hopes to stage the bout September 13.

Costantino to Meet Wilson Here Tonight

Bout With Champ Terranova for Winner Possible if Turner Can Make Deal

By Al Costello

Post Staff Writer

Lulu Costantino, 21-year-old New York Italian, and the veteran Pittsburgh Negro, Jackie Wilson, come to blows tonight over a 10-round route and it should be a "lulu."

Promoter Joe Turner confidently expects a crowd of between 10,000 and 15,000 to plunk down between $20,000 and $25,000 for the privilege of pushing through the turnstiles to see these two outstanding featherweights fight. A championship bout with N. B. A. Champion Phil Terranova is hanging in the balance if Turner can arrange the match.

Terranova an dhsi manager, Bobby Gleason, will be on hand to see the scrap and also to talk business with Turner regarding the proposed title bout. They are making a special trip down from New York, as is Nat Rogers, matchmaker for Mike Jacobs in Madison Square Garden.

Costantino Favored

Costantino will rule a 6 or 7 to 5 favorite on the strength of a great record that has seen him win 83 of 88 fights including two straight over Chalky Wright after Wright whipped Lulu the first time they met. His victory string also includes triumphs over three former featherweight champs, Joey Archibald, Harry Jeffra and Wright. Before Wright whipped him the first time h ran up a string of 56 straight wins.

Lulu is rated one of the cleverest and fastest feathers in the game and can punch prhaps, harder than Wilson. Wilson, who lost his title to Jackie Callura when he fought with an arm that hadn't entirely healed from a break, now is completely recovered and displayed his prowess here on no less than three occasions, stopping two local lads, Lew Hanbury and Danny Petro, and decisioning Jimmy Phillips, who was getting a bit of a reputation here as a spoiler. Now Wilson's left, which once was the scourge of the featherweight and on which he rose to championship heights, is working as well as ever, as he so capably proved against Phillips and Hanbury.

Real Boxing Exhibition

It is expected to be one of the best boxing exhibitions of the year and should be one of the fastest. Both lads are masters and both are good punchers. Each takes a punch well. There should not be a knockout and, unless all signs fail, with a possible championship hinging on the outcome, it should be speed from start to final bell.

The semiwindup tonight finds two soldier boys in action—Nick Latsios of Bolling Field, the Golden Greek from Alexandria, and Sergt. Maxie Star rof Edgewood Arsenal, Md., in an eight-rounder. A real war is expected.

In other bouts, all sixes, Nate Palmer will fight Masters O'Brien; Jimmy Hill will take on Tee Hubert and Sammy Daniels will oppose Johnny Dudley.

Dodgers Score Double Win Over Phillies

By International News Service

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Hammering out 11 runs while their pitchers held the Phils to one, the Brooklyn Dodgers today took a twin bill from the hometown nine, 3 to 1 and 8 to 0, before a Sunday crowd of 18,000 fans.

Ed Head twirled the Brooks to victory in the nightcap after Whit Wyatt won the opener. In both games, the Dodgers got off to good starts, nicking Dick Barrett for a pair of runs in the first inning of the opener and pounding Schoolboy Rowe for five on their first trip to the plate in the second.

During the afternoon the Brooklyn nine garnered 20 hits, four of them doubles, off five Phillies' pitchers while Wyatt and Head held the Phils to 11 singles and one double.

For six innings, Wyatt pitched no-hit ball, setting the Phils down in order. In the last three innings, however, the Phils got to him for six hits and a run.

Reds Win, 5-3, Then Bow, 3-2, To Cardinals

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 29—The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, after allowing the Cincinnati Reds to tie the score with two runs in the ninth, salvaged the fourth game of the series, 3 to 2, in 11 innings today after the Reds made it three straight by winning the opener of a double-header, 5 to 3, before the largest crowd in the history of Crosley Field, 38,017.

Harry Brecheen, who started on the mound for the Cards in the first game was nicked for three runs before he was removed with one out in the fourth inning.

The Reds got a pair of counters in the sixth on a series of doubles by Steve Mesner, Ray Mueller and Elmer Riddle.

Max Lanier, who came into the nightcap in the tenth inning, pitched and batted the Cards to victory. Lanier fanned four of the six Cincinnati batters to face him, and opened the eleventh with a single to later score the winning run on Walker Cooper's single.

The Cards were leading, 2 to 0, with one out in the last of the ninth when Eddie Miller doubled and scored on Mueller's single. Gee Walker, running for Mueller, took second on a bad throw by Lou Klein, and came romping home to tie the score when Max Marshall singled.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP).—Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, and Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., today won an 18-hole best ball exhibition golf match honoring Tom Creavy, National PGA champion in 1931, now recovering from an illness.

Nelson and Sarazen defeated Jimmie Hines, Amsterdam, and Jack Patroni, Manchester, Vt., 2 and 1. The winners' best ball card was 65 on a par 70 course.

Dave Johnsen Wins District Tennis Title

Murphy and Sutter Defeat Chandler, Van Ryn in Fast Doubles Match

David Johnsen, winner of the City of Washington tennis title, added a new championship to his collection yesterday as he defeated Hugh Lynch, 7—5, 6—0, 6—2, in the singles finals of the D. C. Tennis Tournament at the Edgemoor Club.

In the doubles finals Dick Murphy and Cliff Sutter defeated Lieut. John Van Ryn and Bud Chandler, 6—3, 6—4, 0—6, 6—4.

The finals brought a display of some of the finest tennis ever played in local net circles.

Lynch took an early lead in the singles, until he led, 5—3, in the first set. Then Davey, who had been using an excessive number of dropshots intermixed with his drives, changed his tactics and began driving hard off both backhand and forehand. So accurate and forcing was his game that he won the next 14 games, taking his first set at 7—5, the second set at 6—0, and led, 4—0, in the third set before Hugh could win another game, and though Hugh pulled out two more games in the third set there never was any doubt as to the ultimate winner.

In the doubles Sutter and Murphy concentrated on Chandler to take the first and second sets, 6—3, 6—4. Van Ryn and Chandler won the third set, 6—0, by hitting most of their shots to the tiring Murphy. But Sutter and Murphy came back strongly after the short intermission to take the lead at 5—2. Their opponents braced at this point, took the next two games and carried the tenth game to deuce on Sutter's serve. But that was the end, for both Van Ryn and Chandler failed to return the next two serves to give Sutter and Murphy the fourth and deciding set at 6—4.

Softball Play Starts Tonight

Seven top softball league champions will begin playoffs at the District Softball Stadium tonight to determine which will represent the District in the regional championship tournament at Baltimore Saturday.

In the first game tonight the Engineering and Research team will meet the Briggs Clarifiers at 8 p. m. The Engineering team is coached by Andy Farkas, of the Redskins, who will start Freddie Kramer, former Standard Linen star and the only pitcher able to beat Kavakos Grill and "Cannonball" Jack Smith twice this year. Briggs' manager, Jack Burgess, will start Roger Sawtelle.

The second game will see Westminster, champions of the Southwest Recreation League, trying to repeat the performance of two years ago of knocking out a potential champion in the first round when it meets Garvin's Grill in the second game.

Leola Thomas 4th In National Swim

Leola Thomas, Ambassado Swimming Club star, placed fourth in the national junior women s 300-meter individual medley event in the finals of the Women's National Swimming Meet at Shakamak State Park, Indiana, the Associated Press reported yesterday. The event was won by Catherine Breen, of the Firestone Club, of Akron, Ohio.

Redskins Resume Two-a-Day Workouts for Packer Game

After enjoying their first full day off yesterday since mid-July and probably their last until Christmas, the Redskins will renew the two-workouts-a-day schedule today on the University of Maryland field.

Coach Dutch Bergman has issued the first call for 9:30 a. m. and the second for 2:30 in the afternoon in preparation for the exhibition game with the Green Bay Packers next Sunday in Baltimore. The 'Skins will meet the Bears in Baltimore the following Sunday, September 12, have an open date on the nineteenth and will meet the Chicago Cardinals in Buffalo September 26 in their final tuneup for the first league game October 3.

Bergman is pleased with the team's setup at Maryland where the players are quartered in large rooms a short walk from the practice field and will remain until October 1. The team takes its meals in the fraternity house where it is located and dresses for workouts in Ritchie Coliseum.

Bergman plans a scrimmage either tomorrow or Wednesday as about half of the squad needs plenty of work. The 'Skins have only 25 players at present but Jack Smith is expected to put in an appearance today or tomorrow. Warren Plunkett, who went home for his second physical examination, is probably lost for the season.

An involved switching of dates between the Redskins, Eagles and Brooklyn Dodgers is expected to be completed today with arrangements made for the Redskins to open on the road instead of home on October 3 as originally planned.

Indians Twice Beat Chisox, 2-1 and 6-1

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The Cleveland Indians, with Mel Harder pitching five-hit ball and Allie Reynolds following with a seven-hitter, defeated the Chicago White Sox twice, 2 to 1 and 6 to 1, before 18,444 today and shoved the Chicagoans down into fifth place. The Tribe now has won 14 of 19 games from the Sox this year.

Roy Cullenbine helped Harder to his season's sixth and lifetime's 195th victory in the opener when he singled in the sixth and doubled in the eighth, scoring the tying run on singles by Jeff Heath and Mickey Rocco and the winning run on Heath's safe bunt and Buddy Rosar's fly. It was the sixth defeat against 11 victories for Orval Grove, who allowed seven hits.

Heath, with his season's eighteenth homer and a single, and Russ Peters, with four singles led the 14-hit attack in the nightcap that handed Johnny Humphries his ninth beating against 10 wins.

Braves Beat Giants in Pair, 4 to 1, 1 to 0

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 29.—Boston's Braves snapped their losing streak today by capturing both ends of a twin bill from the New York Giants, Jim Tobin taking the first, 4-1, while Al Javery whitewashed them in the nightcap, 1-0.

It was the twelfth victory of the season for each Boston pitcher and Javery also drove in Boston's lone run in his triumph, scoring "Whitey" Wietelmann on an infield roller after the shortstop had doubled and gone to third on Ed Joost's sacrifice. Boston clinched the opener by scoring three runs in the first inning. New York's lone run of the day came when Johnny Rucker, Joe Medwick and Ernie Lombardi singled in succession.

Nats Rally Twice, Beat A's, 5-4, 2-1

moved to third by a sacrifice and it scored when Myatt tapped a ball half way to first base on which Siebert had no play.

The Nats threatened to win the game in the tenth when Vernon's hit and two walks filled the bases with one out, but Giuliani and Priddy couldn't get the ball out of the infield.

Against Jim Mertz in the eleventh, the A's got two quick runs on Estalella's infield hit, Siebert's double to left and two long flies. That gave them the 4-2 lead that didn't stand up.

Flores and Leonard were hooked up in a pretty duel for eight innings in the second game with neither club scoring until the ninth when the A's moved in front 1-0. Estalella singled to left and Leonard hit Siebert with a pitched ball. Hall's single to right merely filled the bases, but Wagner got Estalella home with a fly to Powell.

And then the Nats struck back like we were telling you about.

Indian Spring Title Won by Betty Ling

Claude Rippy Medalist at Washington Club; Clines Wins Trophy With 80-69 at Kenwood

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

Betty Ling, a young Government worker playing her first year of golf at Indian Spring, won the women's club championship yesterday with a 6 and 5 victory over Mrs. M. C. Gordon, the latter making her second losing appearance in the final in the last two years.

Miss Ling, who possesses what Pro Mel Shorey calls a perfect swing for a woman golfer, was 4 up at the turn and won handily. No scores were given as the match was played in a downpour of rain.

In the only other final matches completed in the women's championship, Mrs. John Madigan won the first flight consolation over Mrs. J. T. Powell, 2 and 1, and Mrs. Ted Burrows won the third flight consolation over Mrs. Charles Jorg, 3 and 2.

Ensign Ralph Bogart, who won the District Amateur Championship three times before taking to aviation, played at Indian Spring yesterday while home on leave from the Miami Air Base and pounded out a 68, two under par, despite conditions.

Bogart and Billy Shea, another former District champion now in the FBI, defeated Claude Rippy, Middle Atlantic titlist and Charley Malone, former Redskin, 4 and 3.

WASHINGTON

A three-over par 73 by Claude Rippy stood up for medal honors in the qualifying round of the club championship at Washington Golf and County Club, the round topping the 74's of Rod Marion, and Kenneth Bingham by a single shot. Former Champion Harold Hair was among the low scorers with a 75. P. W. Calfee's 79 was the highest score in the championship flight. First round of match play in the three sixteens will be played next weekend, with Rippy an odds-on favorite to take the title.

In the semifinals of the Birney Cup competition, H. M. Byington, jr., defeated Wesley T. McDonald, 1 up, in 19 holes and A. W. Lloyd won over Ralph Jones, 3 and 2.

Bobby Early, 17 years old, won the junior championship of the Virginia Club with an 84, one stroke better than Brian Bell's 85.

KENWOOD

H. H. Clines, the former Kentucky State amateur champion, whose tournament golf this year has been very good or very bad, was up to his old tricks at Kenwood but his good round was enough to offset his bad one and win the Chairman of the Board of Governor's trophy with an 80-69, 149, minus eight handicap strokes for the two rounds and a 141 net.

Clines posted his 80 in the first round last weekend but yesterday came back with a fine one-under par 69, from nines of 35 and 34, to win by two shots.

Other low scorers were: W. H. Wenzel, 77—72 6, 143; Charles L. Valle, 75—80, 12, 143; St. T. Price, 80—82, 18, 144; C. P. Redick, 79—81, 14, 146; H. D. Sonneman, 85—84, 22, 147; Dr. W. D. Lanier, 80—81, 14, 147, and R. M. Kerr, 79—78, 12, 147.

Maryland State Senior Entries Close Today

Entries close today for the 15th annual senior championship of the Maryland State Golf Association to be played Wednesday over the 18-hole route at the Suburban Club, Pikesville, Md., just outside Baltimore. The event is open to members of member clubs who have reached the age of 50. Entries, accompanied by a $3 fee, will be accepted at the host club at the association offices, 16 McClellan pl., Baltimore.

Bucs Take 2d; Cubs Blast Rip Sewell in 1st

Pittsburgh, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Pirates bunched three of their five hits in the fifth inning for three runs to take the second game of a double-header from Chicago here today, 3 to 1, after Cubs had blasted Rip Sewell out of the box with a seven-run burst in the ninth frame of the first game to hand Pittsburgh a 11-2 beating.

Three singles, an error and a wild pitch decided the second game after the Cubs had taken a one-run lead in the fourth on Bill Nicholson's homer.

The Cubs checked Sewell's bid for his 20th victory when they scored twice to break a 2-2 tie in eighth and then pounded him for five hits, including Leonard Merullo's triple to open the inning, before he was relieved by Xavier Rescingo.

It was Sewell's first loss to the Cubs this year, and brought Hi Bithorn his 15th victory of the season.

No Mistakes Wins Title at Horse Show

Newcomers shared the spotlight with veteran hunters and jumpers yesterday at the Silver Spring horse show as Capt. Alvin Kay's No Mistake won the hunter championship over Frances Crouse's Hole Joe and Jackie Warren's Yankee Doodle took the jumper title over Homer Polk's Cavalryman.

No Mistake, a veteran in local and Virginia shows won three blues and several lesser awards to earn 16 points over Miss Crouse's entry, a 4-year-old making his debut in the ring.

In the jumper division, Miss Warren's 6-year-old took 17½ points to capture the title from Polk's black gelding, which took 8½ points to win the reserve.

Also outstanding was Marrian Curran's Needmore and Angelina Carabelli's Our Day, also a prominent blue ribbon winner.

Hole Joe, a Virginia bred 4-year-old won the reserve hunter championship without winning a single blue ribbon throughout the day. A flashy chestnut, the youngster earned his points with second and third ribbons.

In the pairs of hunters, Capt. and Mrs. Benjemen H. Biays' Lucky Lassie and Ann Hagner's Recruit took the blue ribbon over Needmore and Hole Joe for an unexpected victory. As stablemates, the two horses have hacked daily over Rock Creek bridle paths but have never jumped together before.

Most exciting to spectators was the knockdown-and-out class, in which Cavalryman leaped 5 feet to defeat Smacko also from the Kay Stables ridden by Gardner Hallman.

Arkie Vaughan Makes 2000th Hit

Philadelphia, Aug. 29 (AP).—Arkie Vaughan, shortstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers, made the 2000 hit of his major league career in the second game of today's double-header with the Phillies.

Vaughan had 1846 at the start of the season, and 151 for the season, including Saturday's game. Needing three more to reach the select circle, he collected a single in the opener today and a single and a double in the nightcap, hitting it right on the nose.

Blue Streak To Meet Morgan

The Blue Streak, who is following in the footsteps of another masked grappler, The Mask, will meet Big Ben Morgan, the bearded giant, in the semiwindup on Wednesday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

The Streak had a rather favorable debut last week, drawing with Chief Thunderbird, British Columbia Indian. Babe Sharkey, the Texan, and Michele Leone, Boston villain, will headline the show, meeting in a finish bout. Also signed up for a special 30-minute bout is George Macricostas, the Golden Greek.

Bethesda Schedules Duckpin Meetings

Initial meetings of the Bethesda Bowling League were announced last night:

At 8 p. m. tonight captains of the Business Men's League will meet at the Boulevard Alleys; at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Hiser Alleys, Hamil Compton has called for a turnout of the Bethesda League, with another meeting on Wednesday at the same alleys of all civic league captains.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

TREASURE ISLAND'S "Fall Opening Party," to be celebrated tonight, is the week's star event in the niteries Mario Hurtado and his Pan-American crew will make their bow tonight, play alternately with Rocco Terrone's orchestra. There'll be continuous dance music all evening with Hurtado and Terrone rhythms blending into each other with never a break. If you wish to (and have the stamina) you and your gal can literally dance the whole night through. Treasure Island's party is the first of a series of "fall openings" that'll be booming like time bombs all through September.

The Zaras, scientific astrologists, will head the nw revue opening at the Lotus today. Here's a chance for destiny's tots at the ringside to get the lowdown on their fates.

OLMSTEAD STARS. Nancy Nolan, known as about the funniest girl in Manhattan, and beauteous Aileen Cook, will be among the stars at the new Club Olmstead, due to open September 9. Nancy is now at the Hotel Edison's Monkey Bar.

FACES IN PLACES. Liz Whitney and Mrs. Harry Hopkins in the Mayflower Lounge (but at different tables). Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten lingering in the doorway to hear Marcella Hendricks sing. . . . Dolores King, beautiful secretary of Rubber Czar Bill Jeffers at Restaurant "400" and in full possession of a huge steak and a handsome beau. . . . Quantities of English officers dining at the Hotel Lafayette. . . . Listening at El Patio was lovely Dardanelle, Mayfair's maestro who'll soon be taking off for Tampa Terrace in Florida, also Bob Brewer, ace pianist of the King Cole Room.

This is nearly the last call for good times at Glen Echo where they'll put up the shutters at midnight on Labor Day. It's already almost certain that Paul Kain's band will be back at Echo next spring.

ROYALTY LIKES HILDEGARDE who's coming to the Statler next week. She obtained her first important London engagement through King Gustav of Sweden, later sang at the Duke of Kent's wedding party, King Geore's Jubilee, concerts for Prince Halim of Egypt.

THOSE VACATIONERS. Pete Macias, orchestra leader at the Lounge Riviera, has been loafing and inviting his soul, up around Delaware Water Gap . . . Oscar decided not to return to Hi Hat after his vacation. He's too busy running his new grocery-delicatessen. Hi Hat's new manager is cordial and capable Joe Brito . . . Marian Stroh who publicizes the Carlton and Wardman Park Hotels, is due back at her desk today after two weeks out.

Does any one know the address of Bunny Hare? She used to sing at the Neptune Room and Lotus, is now a marine. Sergt. Frank Maloney, now in the South Pacific, wants to know. He's a Marine, too.

THE WARBLERS. Don Lamont, handsome and Latin, is Troika's new singer . . . Besides being a top maestro and violinist, Eddy Rogers now at Del Rio, is a niftick singer. Listen for his armorous caroling of "Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey" . . . Smartly contrasted are the vocal technics of Jean Lee and Donnelly James dexterous and pretty violinist of Restaurant "823"

of the Dubonnet Room. Donnelly's a sly comedian, Jean gives on romancing numbers . . . Merritt Trott, eloquent publicist of the Victory Room, writes of singer June Raines, "She's soft and sweet, gentle and delicate, but has torrential moments when she goes into a thunderstorm of swing" . . . Marian Carl of the Old New Orleans is a li'l prima donna. Her beautifully trained soprano is at its best in light operatic numbers.

Anchored firmly in the Anchor Room are Georgia and Jerry. They're not leaving next Saturday, after all, are held over indefinitely.

THE ILIAD OF HOMER

FOR nearly three thousand years this majestic epic has stirred all mankind. Alexander the Great carried it into battle in a jewelled casket. Now, in this handsome library edition, it is yours free as a gift!

Here is a gorgeous pageant of unforgettable people, mighty adventure, and profound human wisdom. You will chuckle as the gods wrangle over the fate of Paris, abductor of irresistible Helen of Troy; despair with Achilles at Agamemnon's bickering for possession of a captive girl; weep with Hecuba for her fallen sons. You'll feel the excitement of this drama as though you were there—through the magic of Homer, the "blind bard" whom other writers for centuries have tried to match!

Why the Classics Club Offers You This Book Free

WILL you add this lovely volume to your home library now—as a membership gift from The CLASSICS CLUB? You are invited to join today . . . and to receive on approval beautifully bound editions of the world's greatest masterpieces, which were chosen by the four distinguished judges shown at the right.

Suppose an expert on the world's greatest reading were to visit your home. No matter how much or how little education you may have had, you would listen enthralled as your famous guest spoke glowingly of the greatest books of all time, what warm friends you can make of them, and how they can help anyone attain a fuller, a richer life.

You would remember, of course, the many times you had resolved to read only the best books. All you needed was someone you could depend upon to tell you how to go about it. And here would be that someone right at your elbow—a great literary authority—whom you could ask about the books that would help you either to start a program of good reading or to complete one already begun.

At the request of The Classics Club four authorities formed themselves into a Selection Committee to choose the masterpieces which offer the greatest enjoyment and value to the "pressed for time" men and women of today. They agreed that every book selected must receive the unanimous vote of all four members of the Committee. And The Classics Club now presents these great books to you.

Why Are Great Books Called "Classics"?

A true "classic" is a living book that will never grow old. For sheer fascination it can rival the most thrilling modern novel. In its vitality of inspiration it can arouse a new freshness of viewpoint and a new breadth of understanding, so necessary in times of great historical significance like these.

Perhaps you have often wondered how these truly great books "got that way." First, because they are so readable. They would not have lived unless they were read, and they would not have been read unless they were interesting. And, of course, to be interesting they had to be easy to understand. And those are the very qualities which characterize these selections: readability, interest, simplicity.

It is not necessary to have a "higher education" to appreciate these books and, after you read and know them, you will have acquired a broader and more liberal education than most of your business and personal acquaintances. You will have lost any personal concern about an "inferiority complex" and any fear about being the equal of others whose "formal" education is greater than your own.

Only Book Club of Its Kind

The Classics Club is different from all other book clubs in these four ways: 1. Its sole purpose is to distribute to its own members the world's great classics at low prices. 2. Its basic price is lower than that of any other book club. 3. Its Charter Members are not obligated to take any specific number of books. 4. All its volumes are bound in attractive uniform Classics Club bindings.

A Trial Membership Invitation to You

You are invited to accept a Trial Membership in The Classics Club. With your first book will be sent an advance notice about future selections. You may reject any book you do not wish.

As a Trial Member, you need not take any specific number of books—only the ones you want. No money need be paid in advance, no membership fees. You may cancel membership at any time.

The CLASSICS CLUB is a lastingly worth-while book club offering an economical method of acquiring beautiful, uniformly-bound masterpieces of enduring merit. These expertly chosen volumes will become a complete home library in themselves. For years to come they will provide you and your children with thousands of hours of the most pleasurable and profitable reading.

We suggest that you mail this Invitation Form to us at once. Paper, printing, binding costs are rising, and these low prices—as well as your FREE copy of THE ILIAD OF HOMER—cannot be assured unless you respond promptly. THE CLASSICS CLUB, 330 W. 42nd St., New York 18, N. Y.

NOTE: The De Luxe Edition is luxuriously bound in fine buckram (the same material as used in $5.00 and $10.00 bindings); is richly stamped in genuine gold, which will retain its original lustre for years; and has tinted page tops. For books which you and your children will read and cherish for many years, the De Luxe Edition is most desirable.

Hardy, Ark. (AP).—Paratrooper George H. Robinson, 24, has made jumps ranging up to 5000 feet and come through without a scratch. But home on furlough, he jumped down a step between rooms while playing with his 5-year-old brother. He slipped. Now he's in a hospital under treatment for a back injury.

Liberty Bonds?

Lansing, Mich. (AP).—Joseph Dudas, 55, who used his small prison earnings in the first World War to buy Liberty bonds and in this war to buy Victory bonds,, will be considered for commutation of his life sentence. Dudas has been serving a sentence for murder since 1918 at Marquette branch prison.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Jerry Kluttz now is on tour of various Government installations throughout the Nation, where 92 per cent of the country's Federal employes work. Only 8 per cent of those employed by Uncle Sam are stationed in Washington.

They Call Chicago 'Second Capital'

CHICAGO—People here say that Chicago is the "second Capital of the Nation" and they're quite emphatic about it. As evidence, they say it has more agencies and more employes moved from Washington in the decentralization program.

KLUTTZ

Some of the people here take pride in their city being a "second Capital." They have helped the agencies and the employes get settled. But others have viewed the move into Cook County as a New Deal move to keep it Democratic by a big majority in 1944.

It's true that Chicago did get its share of the decentralized agencies—all or parts of 14 agencies were moved here—but as many employes, and perhaps more, were moved to New York. And Chicago, with an over-all total of 100,000 civilians on the Federal payroll, doesn't compare with the 241,000 in Greater New York and the 170,000 in the Philadelphia area. At this time I'm not even sure that Chicago ranks fourth in Federal employe population.

Treasury's Bureau of Public Debt is the largest agency that was moved here. About 1000 employes were transferred here from Washington 15 months ago but now the agency has 7200 workers and it's to be expanded to perhaps twice that number within a year, depending on the sale of war bonds.

In this office, all war bonds are registered, accounts are set up for each purchaser, bonds are redeemed, interest is paid, war stamps are audited, among a host of other operations designed to protect the buyers of Government bonds. It's a tremendous job that requires thousands of clerks—90 per cent are either grade 2 or 3—to perform tedious and routine jobs such as counting bonds and checking war stamps.

Invention Helps

An average of 25 million war bonds and 250 million war stamps are sold each month and that means the office here must keep tab on them all. In the office are 300 million war bond stubs, each of which must be individually processed. More than 850 million dollars in 10c, 25c, 50c, and $1 war stamps have been converted into war bonds and have been audited by clerks.

An employe here has saved untold time, space, labor and money when he helped to invent an automatic device that takes micro-film pictures of the stubs at the rate of 400 per minute.

The agency has offices in the huge Merchandise Mart and it's crying for additional space. It's well organized and the work flows at top speed. For a time last year the agency had the unhappy experience of being picketed by Negroes. About 11 per cent of the employes now are Negro and they are no longer in segregated offices.

About 900 employes who moved here from Washington are still here. Many of them are living for the day when they'll be ordered back to the Nation's Capital. But it's my hunch that that day is far away. The office has so many files that it would take a score of trains to ship everything out. And this office will be huge even after the war, in fact, it'll be enormous so long as we have a monumental public debt and I think we'll all agree the office is destined to be a vast thing.

Railroad Retirement Board is another agency that's more than likely to remain permanently here. It's in the logical city to serve the railroad industry and most of the people I talked with seemed perfectly content to remain here forever. The Government has bought the building in which the board is located and that implies the agency will remain after the duration.

No Unemployment

RRB had 1600 employes in Washington. Here it has only 1100. But business has fallen off. There is no unemployment in the railroad industry and this year the board doesn't expect to pay a million dollars in unemployment compensation. However, the number of retiring railroad employes has taken a jump recently. The board, too, has expanded its employment service to help recruit new employes for the railroad industry.

Headquarters of three Interior Department bureaus also have offices in the Merchandise Mart, Bureau of Interior Affairs, Fish and Wildlife Service, and the National Park Service. And each of these offices is confident that they'll be moved back to Washington when peace comes.

The problem of operating a headquarters office in the field are many—lines of authority are fuzzy, relations with Washington are strained, and the cost of officials running between the offices to straighten out matters that could be tended to by a phone call or 15-minute conference back in Washington must be enormous.

The officials of the three agencies want to move back to the Nation's Capital. But rank and file employes, mostly Chicagoans, would vote to stay here by a big majority. Each of the agencies lost about all the employes making $3200 and less in the move. And they haven't all been replaced. All three agencies are operating from 15 to 25 per cent under normal strength. The Indian agency has 287 employes of whom 40 per cent are Indian; Fish and Wildlife has 240 employes and the Park Service has 132 workers.

2 Crowley Offices

Two of Leo Crowley's agencies—Alien Property and Federal Deposit Insurance—have offices here in the Field Building and both were moved from Washington a year ago. APC now has 250 employes, having cut off 100 since February. Only 60 were moved here from Washington. The office, headed by Jim Crowley, brother of the boss, runs all the alien properties and controls the 40,000 alien-held patents in this country.

FDIC, with 284 employes, has its liquidation, fiscal and accounting, auditing and part of the legal division here.

Both agencies are split, part here and part in Washington, and that makes for operating problems. Since Crowley has been made chief of the Office of Economic Warfare the offices here have been subjected to many rumors of their being moved back to Washington. However, it's authoritatively stated that no such plan is contemplated.

Big Army Show A-Building

BACK THE ATTACK—Although cameras are taboo normally in the Washington Monument, special permission was obtained in order to secure this unusual photograph of the Washington Monument Grounds, which shows many structures and tents for the great Army show, "Back the Attack," sponsored by The Washington Post in connection with the Treasury Department's Third War Loan Drive. ## Elder Michaux Finds Satan Easy Pickin's

From the spot where the Washington Senators yesterday won a double-header, Evangelist Elder Michaux last night pitched a decisive victory over the devil while a crowd of 5000 cheered him on.

The elder had flawless infield support in his victory—a 156-voiced white-robed and white-capped choir that formed a huge cross near second base, and led the congregation in singing beloved old Gospel hymns at Griffith Stadium.

Just as the fans do when the local team leaves the dugout, the crowd of white and Negro worshipers last night whistled, yelled and applauded as the choristers filed on to the field, while the "Happy Am I" band played in march time tempo, "Hear the Tramp, Tramp, Tramp of the Army of the Lord."

tions in places of employment.

"Mussolini stepped over the line into Ethiopia and God didn't like it," he shouted through his "mike" from a bunting-draped improvised pulpit at the pitcher's box. His theme was "Why the Kingdom of Mussolini Fell So Suddenly."

Midway in the service, the Elder led the crowd in singing "God Bless America," while the choir waved tiny American flags. The worshipers remained standing as they intoned "The Lord's Prayer." Elder Michaux, pastor of the Church of God on Georgia ave. nw., opposite the ball park, will speak next Sunday at 8:30 p. m., on "Hitler Has Died."

Exhibits operated by all branches of the Army will be opened to visitors at 10:30 a. m. and remain open until 10:30 p. m.

The arena and stage shows, planned for fast moving and comprehensive illustrations of combat and displays by trained soldiers, will open at 2:30 p. m. and at 8 o'clock for night performances.

These shows are planned for one hour each, and will be packed with swift, dramatic portrayals of America's armed might.

A huge transformer will be completed by PEPCO electricians today and light current is expected to be turned on at the "Back the Attack" grounds tonight.

In the meantime, poised for renewed action under the leadership of Lieut. Col. Frank T. McCabe, Infantry, in charge of the show, all branches of the Army are fast whipping into shape the displays and exhibits for the great show.

Lieut. Col. James W. Rankin, commanding the mobile force of the Military District of Washington, is commanding the show's task force of more than 1000 officers and soldiers.

Maj. John H. Galloway was named public relations officer and Maj. Baird F. West appointed staff officer and liaison between the Army and the Treasury Department.

Technical Sergt. Robert Waldrop, former radio network announcer, was chosen to be narrator throughout the itinerary of the Army show.

G. B. Taylor Dies While Preaching

Gabriel Bradstreet Taylor, 73, "principal speaker" for the Christadelphian Chapel, 732 Webster st. nw., fell dead yesterday, while preaching at the morning services.

He was talking to a congregation of 25 about "Moses and the Prophets as Indorsed by Christ and the Disciples" when he collapsed. He had been in ill health for more than a year and suffered from heart trouble.

A native of Richmond, Va., Mr. Taylor had been a resident of the District since 1907. He was a member of the Christadelphian Chapel for 36 years and was on the managing board of the chapel, one of four speakers. While not an ordained minister, he had authority to perform marriage ceremonies. Before his retirement several years ago he was employed by Hecht's department store.

He is survived by his wife, Marie Taylor, 4321 Georgia ave. nw., and a sister, Mrs. Carrie Wells of Richmond. The Taylors recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the chapel and burial will follow in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Clatterbuck Trial Opens Tomorrow

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 29.—The trial of Thomas William Clatterbuck on five first-degree murder charges will begin in Loudoun County Circuit Court at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Confessed slayer of A. Morris Love, well-to-do Purcellville farmer, his wife, son, farmhand and his wife, Clatterbuck pleaded not guilty to the premeditated murder charge.

Originally set for June 30 and again postponed July 26, because Mrs. Clatterbuck had given birth to a child a week before, the trial will climax one of Virginia's most sensational crimes which held Loudoun County residents in terror for two days until the slayer had been found and jailed.

Clatterbuck, a quarryman, has become father of a fifth child while in jail for the crime which he is alleged to have committed because of a debt of some $2500, due June 1, the day of the five-fold killing.

The first clew, which finally led to Clatterbuck's apprehension and indictment, came from Miss Sarah Love, daughter of the slain farmer and the only member of the family to escape death, who decleared that the signature on a note given by Clatterbuck to her father was forged.

Clatterbuck, in his confession to Commonwealth's Attorney Charles A. Harrison, said he hit Love with a mallet when he threatened him with prosecution for forgery of a $2000 note. He then fought with James Love, the farmer's son, who came out on the porch with a rifle, took it from him and shot him, his confession continued. He shot Mrs. Love, and, to make sure that all possible witnesses were eliminated, walked to the house of Walter Russell, the tenant farmhand, and shot him and his wife, he confessed.

A plea of temporary insanity may be offered by Maj. R. A. McIntyre, defense attorney, and Mrs. Clatterbuck is considered an important witness by the defense.

Judge J. R. H. Alexander will preside at the trial before a Loudoun County jury, composed of businessmen and farmers. W. W. Butzner of Fredericksburg, will aid Commonwealth's Attorney Charles P. Harrison in the prosecution.

British to Be Guests

Servicemen from the British Empire will be guests at a dance tomorrow at the St. John's Service Club, 819 16th st. nw, by Government girls from OEW. Group singing of popular Australian, English, and Canadian songs will be featured.

Soldiers and sailors from the British Empire Forces Club, the Royal Canadian Air Forces, the Office of the Canadian Military Attache and the Royal Australian Air Forces will attend. The dance is the first of a series of parties to be given for small groups of Government girls by the War Hospitality Committee.

New List Of Eligibles For Housing

Various Categories Of Warworkers In Industrial Plants Added to Roll

A new list of warworkers, other than Government workers, who are eligible for accommodation in houses built under the war housing program was issued yesterday by Milton Fischer, regional representative of the National Housing Agency.

Among those civilian plants essential employes are eligible for war housing accommodation are:

Communications companies, airlines, railroads, transit companies, Alexandria Iron Works, American Red Cross, Bridge Clarifier Co., Carnegie Institute Laboratory, Engineering and Research Corp., General Electric Co., Inc., International Business Machines Corp., Johns Hopkins Scientific Laboratory, Jorss Iron Works, Kaiser Co., Inc., National Electrical Machines Shops, Inc., Pan American Airways System, Potomac Electric Power Co., Remington Rand Co., Smoot Sand & Gravel Co., United Service Organizations, Virginia Public Service Co., Washington Gas Light Co., Washington Institute of Technology, Western Electric Co., American Instrument Co., Air Test Manufacturing Co., Southern Oxygen Co., others, as individual workers, if specifically certified in writing by the U. S. Employment Service.

Included also are Washington offices of national industries, business establishments, labor unions and other organizations, provided they are engaged primarily in war activities. Laundries, dry cleaning establishments, restaurants and cafeteries, hotels, apartment and office building maintenance, distribution of food, fuel and ice, newspapers and news gathering agencies, educational services, medical, dental and public health services, fire and police protection are eligible as indispensable inmigrants, Fischer explained, and if they are certified by the Director of Placements, D. C. Employment Center, or by the Director of the Alexandria Office of the U. S. Employment Service, as being employed in skills or occupations so critical as to require inmigrant labor.

Comdr. Porterfield Returns to Home From Pacific Area

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 29.—Lieut. Comdr. Marvin H. Porterfield, U. S. N. R., returned to his home here yesterday after 13 months in service, attached to a hospital in New Caledonia.

He will spend a two-weeks furlough here and then report to Quantico, Va., he said.

He had no public statement on his work in the South Pacific but said he returned never feeling better physically in his life.

He was a practicing physician here before volunteering and being commissioned in the service.

He saw service in World War 1 as a captain.

Both of his sons—Marvin H., jr., and Billy—are now in the service in the aviation branches.

Miller National Head

Warren E. Miller, attorney, 34 Nicholson st. nw., was elected national commander at the fifty-sixth annual convention of the Army-Navy Union in Cleveland. He is a graduate of National University Law School.

He Found Woman's Body

the pieces of wood or one of the bottles could have been the murder weapon.

Mrs. Edna Voltz, 54, a kitchen employe at Doctor's Hospital, identified the body as that of her sister with whom she made her home, and told police of Mrs. Groome's man friend, a railroad employe. The dead woman had been keeping company with him for two months, Mrs. Voltz said.

The sister told detectives she last saw Mrs. Groome about 3:30 p. m., Saturday, when she put her aboard a streetcar at 14th and R sts. nw.

Later Saturday evening, Mrs. Voltz reported, she went home and learned her sister had gone out with the trainman about 10 p. m. Whether she walked or rode in an automobile to Rock Creek Park could not be determined.

Mrs. Voltz said Mrs. Groome was employed as a stenographer at Stanley Horner's, an automobile dealer, but had not worked since Wednsday. She had been drinking heavily, her sister said.

Bowles story of his grewsome find is as follows:

"I had come across the clearing and started up the ravine beside the creek that runs past the picnic tables. I noticed a woman's white shoe on the ground, about 6 feet from the table. My eyes traveled from the shoe to the table.

"I saw a woman crumpled under the table. Her clothes had been practically torn off. You could see her bare thigh.

"I knew the minute I laid eyes on her she was dead. Without hesitating more than a second I took off across the clearing and ran out into the road. Two policemen from the Tenth Precinct were in the first car to pass."

The policeman took Bowles into custody until the homicide squad questioned him and he was then released.

Mrs. Groome, according to her sister, came here about 14 years ago from Logan County, Kentucky. Her first husband died and she divorced the other two, keeping the name of the last, Mrs. Voltz declared.

The dead woman formerly worked for the Government and the American Red Cross and took the job with Horner's several months ago.

Detectives, led by Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, and Inspector Robert J. Barrett, chief of detectives, searched futilely for the trainman last night. His identity was unknown to Mrs. Voltz.

In the meantime, laboratory tests were being made on the blood-covered fragments of the whisky bottle and the pieces of wood. Fingerprints were obtained from the glass.

A 31-year-old taxicab driver, arrested last night by a Park policeman on suspicion, was released after questioning.

'Loafer' Put In House of Correction

Others Reported Held as Legality Of Work-or-Fight Law Is Debated

At least one more victim of Maryland's so-called "work or fight law"—and possibly several others—was reported to be serving time last night in the State House of Correction at Jessup, Md., while members of the State Legislature that passed the bill expressed doubt of its constitutionality.

The man whose incarceration was revealed yesterday was said to have been convicted as a "second offender" in Worcester County late in July and sentenced to a three-month term.

He was said to have been one of several found loafing in the streets of Snow Hill, Md., rounded up by Sheriff Edwin D. Lynch and Police Chief W. Rhodes Rew, prosecuted by States Attorney William G. Kerbin, jr., and convicted by Judge Walter W. Price. The others arrested in the roundup received suspended sentences, the usual procedure on the Eastern Shore for dealing with first offenders under the questionable statute.

Defended by Author

At the same time, Benjamin G. Wilkinson, jr., author of the measure which last week attracted Nationwide attention during the trial of Farm Laborer Stanley Day, said he thought the law constitutional and said it was far less stringent than a similar Maryland law enforced during the first World War. War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt refused to express any comment upon the validity of the law.

Day was convicted, sentenced to 30 days in jail, served a half-day, and was then released at a rehearing. He allegedly had refused to work "at prevailing wages" for a Montgomery County farmer.

He said the bill had been examined by the State attorney general's office and modified at suggestion of Judge William Walsh before it was passed. He said the Day case was the first in which legality of the law had been questioned, and that several other convictions had been obtained under it.

The measure compels able-bodied citizens to work a five-day week. A man must be offered a job at a prevailing wage rate and have refused it before he can be prosecuted.

McNutt Refuses Comment

McNutt refused comment and said he would not permit any member of the commission to render any opinion. Previously an unauthorized subordinate in the War Manpower Commission had rendered an opinion to Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor on a World War law still on Maryland statute books, delegating to the Governor right to make rulings similar to those in the present law.

He advised the Governor not to make any such rulings, and O'Conor publicly announced he would not make any such rulings on advice of the manpower office. However, McNutt subsequently denied that the opinion was official.

Another Aspect

McNutt said last night he thought the matter had another aspect besides "work or fight" but declined to render any interpretation of his attitude, saying it was up to courts to make any decision.

Delegate Albert L. Sklar, one of several delegates from Baltimore's Fourth District who questioned the bill on the floor of the House the day it was passed, yesterday questioned it again on grounds of practicality and constitutionality.

Still Has Doubts

He said he doubted a State's right to pass a law which could deprive an individual of "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness," even during wartime and contended that emergency powers were the Federal Government's prerogative.

He said also that the law was impractical as a local measure, since it would force the shiftless over the State or county lines to areas where it was not in effect and also take away labor necessary for seasonal emergencies from areas where the law was in force.

The law originally was drafted to keep laborers in Montgomery County from deserting farm jobs after collecting two or three days' wages, and 13 other counties voluntarily attached themselves to it, so that it now is effective in 14.

Delegate Jerome Robinson, Baltimore lawyer and another member of its Fourth District Delegation which dissented at original passage of the bill, said last night that "his worst fears" had been realized in administration of the bill.

Robinson took exception originally to the bill as an infraction of Federal constitutional guarantees against involuntary servitude and favored the Governor's acting under the old World War law. He said the law would have been administered more efficiently if it had been effected on a State-wide basis by Governor's proclamation.

Chief of Montgomery County's Farm Bureau, James D. King, who said the bill had helped the farm labor situation in that county, admitted that the law had not yet been enforced stringently.

"We tried to get people to respond voluntarily, and most of them have," he said.

City News in Brief

Don't wait until "the frost is on the punkin' and the fodder's in the shock," before you start thinking about the many delicious dishes that are possible made from fresh corn. Those persons who are fortunate enough to hoe a victory corn patch know the delight of eating corn whose sweet kernels are oozing with milk. If such good fortune is not yours, then do the next best thing and buy the freshest corn available and cook it as soon as possible.

Martha Ellyn

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," is no idle phase when you eat a fresh corn pudding. This is a dish that is delicious and sturdy. If you have an edge on your appetite or have extremely hungry ones to feed, you will find this dish will allay hunger pangs.

When I climbed the steep hill leading to the Jefferson Rock at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., recently, hiked down the Potomac to fish, and then trudged back to Hilltop Inn, I needed food as well as rest to revive me.

The management of the spacious old inn, built high on the bank overlooking the lovely Potomac, takes into consideration that their guests will have keen appetites after such recreation as fishing or climbing the Appalachian Trail. So it is not dainty nic-nacs but nutritious, delicious meals they serve to the guests. It was the corn pudding, served at this inn, made from fresh roasting ears, that revived me after a trek in Harper's Ferry vicinity.

Not only the corn pudding was satisfying but the whole menu. Here it is. It may be a suggestion for you when you consider tonight's dinner menu:

Dinner Menu

Fresh Fruit Cup
Fricassee of Veal
Corn Pudding Tiny Beets
Tomato-Lettuce Salad
Hot Biscuits Butter
Cantaloupe Coffee

Here is a recipe for making corn pudding from fresh corn. This dish is the kind served at the Hilltop Inn at Harper's Ferry.

FRESH CORN PUDDING

Combine 2 cups corn grated from the cob, 2 eggs slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 cups scalded milk, 1 teaspoon pepper and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Bake in a buttered baking dish in a slow oven, 325 degress, until firm. Serves six.

Corn fritters made from fresh corn are also a sure-hit food. It isn't necessary in these days of fat shortage to fry them in deep fat. They will be delicious frittered in the sauted way.

CORN FRITTERS

Drain and mash with a potato masher 1 cup of cooked green corn. Beat until light and add 2 eggs. Add 6 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, and ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a small skillet. When it is very hot add the batter by the tablespoonful. Permit the bottom of the cakes to brown, reverse them and brown the other side. Serve them at once. For best results make the batter immediately before using it, or use a double action baking powder.

Father of Six, Who Has Two Sons in Army, And Whose Wife Would Welcome More Babies, Voices His Reaction to "A. N. W.'s" Letter

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The writer of this letter is a professional engineer, who volunteered for active service on the first day of the first World War, and again volunteered on the first day of this war. The girl to whom he became engaged just three weeks before he entered the armed forces in the first war did him the honor to embrace his faith and wait long years until he returned to marry her after the armistice. Now, they have been happily married for 24 years; and even after bringing six splendid children into the world, she is still eager to have more. Our eldest son volunteered for service with the Marines six months before Pearl Harbor and is now on active duty in the South Pacific. The second boy is now serving as a volunteer in the Army Air Corps; and the youngest is eager to go, at the tender age of 15.

This introduction is preliminary to answering your adolescent-type correspondent of August 24, who signs herself "Another Navy Wife." She goes on record as thanking God that her husband loves her far too deeply ever to ask her to endure pregnancy and childbirth; and expresses burning anger toward you for having implied in your column of August 8 that a man has any justification for expecting the wife of his bosom to take up this "burden." Her dissertation is so moronic and pathetically self-revealing,—as the defensive statement of a selfish, shallow young woman,—that one hesitates to take her letter seriously. On the other hand, for the sake of marriage in general, it should be answered in no uncertain terms. She may be one of the highest honor graduates of one of our leading universities, as claimed; and a former high school teacher whose pupils adored her delightful personality and superficial charm; but she is certainly not a normal human being.

Calls Childless Union Travesty on Marriage

Weakness of character, acute neurosis and emotional instability are quite evident in her representations of wifely "unselfishness,"—based solely on the grounds that she magnanimously gave up her childhood home and associations for the first time in her life, to marry and be with the man she loves. From the viewpoint of a man like myself, who has known true marriage, her marriage, in the hollow form she seems to enjoy, is a disgrace and an insult to the man whose good name she bears, regardless of his asserted willingness to submit to her preference. There can be no enduring satisfaction to either party in the relationship which she so complacently describes; and little to restrain her husband from seeking similar relaxation or greater happiness elsewhere.

Such limited experience and such adolescent demonstrations of affection may satisfy her innocent young victim for a time; but he will undoubtedly meet in the course of his travels around the world many women of equal or superior charm, and far greater understanding of the richer aspects of married love and companionship. And when he begins to realize how much he has missed in this futile, unhallowed contract,—which they abandoned the religion of their forefathers to "enjoy,"—what then? Any woman worthy of the name, who loves her husband, considers it a privilege to bear and rear his children;—and especially in the situation outlined by your correspondent, where the man is staking his very life to make a safe world for present and future generations. And should his life be lost in that effort, she will have the infinite consolation of their child, to give meaning to her existence and afford increasing recompense for all suffering and sacrifice incident to motherhood.

More on the Subject Of "Idiotic Drooling"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: "Another Navy Wife" gave us all a great treat in setting forth so fully her revulsion to babies. There is nothing more refreshing than a well-written letter prepared with care by an honor student of one of our great universities! She has indeed been very brave to come to this lonely city to be with her husband. Leaving one's childhood home and associations at the age of perhaps 35 is truly indicative of great courage!

It is unfortunate, however, that this dear "Navy Wife's" mother did not have the advantage of so fine an education;—so that she could have learned what a waste of time it would be to produce an "idiotically drooling" baby: one who is still drooling idiotically at this late date. One would think that so brilliant a scholar and teacher would realize that she is in immediate need of psychiatric service. She reminds us of the apocryphal story of the fond mother who critically noted, as the parade marched by: "Everybody's out of step but Johnny."

NORMAL COUPLE.

Child Gives War Prisoner Extra Incentive to Live

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the information of "Another Navy Wife," I want to say: The father of my 3-year-old daughter is a prisoner in the Philippines. He has not seen her or me since she was 8 months old. For months after the fall of Corredigor, we did not know whether he was dead or alive. During that time, my greatest comfort was the knowledge that if he were dead, much of him still lived on in his child, and through her I could yet try to bring his ideals to fulfillment. In December, we learned that he was alive and a prisoner. And still, my greatest comfort is in knowing that his desire to return to his child and me can best sustain him through long months of waiting. I count it lucky for me that he has that extra incentive of the child to live for.

Unlike "A. N. W.," I am not an honor graduate of a great university. And still more unlike her, I have been through all the "horrors" of childbirth,—from which I emerged feeling and looking better than ever before in my life. I am awakened in the night by a child's hand whanging the side of the bed; and sometimes by the giggle of a child with a funny dream to tell. I am harassed by childish questions. My fingernails don't stay polished, somehow. My nose shines. My nice white shoes get stepped on. But, you know, I am thrilled by the fact that the manly author of all this trouble wanted me to be the mother of his children! He is a fine fellow. I feel honored.

In times like these, men going out to fight and perhaps to die like to feel that they are leaving somebody of their very own to live after them. Of course, in the case of "A. N. W.'s" husband, one can understand that he wouldn't mind leaving nothing,—and I do mean nothing,—behind him. He has my deepest sympathy, poor chap.

Pictures for Pleasure

Americans are buying pictures again, say those who have them to sell. Reasons given range from the fact that people are staying home more and therefore find pleasure once more in having pictures to look at—to the shortage of heavier merchandise and the usefulness of pictures in freshening up drooping rooms. Then, too, 'tis said that war brides buy pictures to make furnished rooms or apartments seem more like home, for pictures are more packable than furniture. Another reason is that more people have more money to spend for "extras," whereas in other times the budget often gave out before the question of pictures came in.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

There is a tendency among young mothers to say comfortably, once they have realized their mistakes of feeding or treatment, "Well, just start from scratch and do things differently."

It would be splendid if one could erase one's mistakes in one grand sweep and never be bothered by them again. But the influence on a child's disposition of severe punishment, or on his physical self of wrong feeding methodz or of habits which have become established cannot be wiped away instantly. The mother who thinks they can is sure to be discouraged when the new things she has espoused, the new foods she has introduced, the new methods of disrupting the habits do not work overnight. How could they?

Nothing in life is magical. Each thing is attached irrevocably to what has gone before. It may take weeks to break a habit that has gone unchecked for years. It will certainly take weeks to see any appreciable influence of new methods of treatment or feeding.

Let's illustrate with just one habit, that of feeding the child old enough to feed himself. The mother has a lot of plausible reasons for this. The baby feeds himself so messily. He won't eat all the food that is put before him unless she feeds him. He takes too long to eat his meal.

These excuses may seem valid to the mother, but they really prevent the baby from learning to be skillful enough so that he isn't slow and sloppy. And there may be good reasons why he would be a better eater if he were'nt forced to eat every mouthful put in front of him. Wood eaten with a relish is better than food eaten just because it is easier to eat than to refuse.

One fine day the mother may decide to rectify her errors and let baby feed himself. She is going to turn over a new leaf. By this time the child is uninterested in the job. He enjoys being wheedled and waited upon.

New methods may not "take" immediately. The child has to be led, not driven, to accept them. Even a few spoonfuls taken independently at each meal may be looked upon as success, if always there is the encouragement to take more and more before mother finishes the job for him.

When something new does not work, don't discard it in disgust but keep on. If what you do is right, the chances are that eventually it will work successfully.

Our leaflet, "Teaching the Use of Cup and Spoon," will be helpful to mothers whose babies have reached the self-feeding stage. Send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Baby-Buggy Shopping

The peddler or the tamale man who used an old baby buggy for his cart had a pretty good idea, at that—as many dignified citizens are discovering in this carry-your-own-packages era. Baby buggies are doing double duty for shopping, as well as airing the baby. And a new all-wood cart is speically designed for this dual role.

Upper Arm Muscles Need Toning

By Ida Jean Kain

No woman ever wanted bulging biceps, but she doesn't care for sagging triceps. Hanging flesh on the back of the upper arm is as dating as a grandchild.

It is a funny thing about this part of the arm. You work with your hands and arms all day, but practically all your work is done with the forearms. You can prove it for yourself. Pick up a fairly heavy book in one hand and use the other hand as a feeler. You will find that the muscles doing the work are in the forearm—the biceps. Keep the book in your hand and feel the muscles in the back of the upper arm. They will be as slack as if they were on vacation.

Now that most of you are getting into work that puts these upper arm muscles on the job, you are concerned about being able to hold out as well as keeping your arms shapely. You can't just take or leave exercise. You have to have it.

To test your arm strength, lie face downward on the floor with palms down on floor about chest level and slowly raise yourself up off the floor until your body is in a straight line from heels to head, elbows straight, hold, and lower. If you can't make it, your arms are weak, and probably flabby looking.

When it comes to exercise, there is a special technique for these muscles. To forcibly contract them, the arms must be held at shoulder level, or used in thrusting movements. This set answers the purpose.

Position: Stand erect in good posture, arms straight out at the sides, shoulder height, head erect.

Movement: Keep the elbows straight and move the arms in small backward circles. Keeping the circles small makes the triceps work harder. Wide circles move the shoulder muscles. Continue for 20 counts.

Position: Stand erect, this time with shoulders bent and out at the sides in line with the shoulders.

Movement: Rest fingers on shoulders, then fling arms straight out at sides, back to shoulders, and repeat, 30 times.

Position: Standing erect, arms out at sides, elbows straight and fists clenched.

Movement: Shake the arms vigorously at shoulder level.

If you don't like routines like these, you can get your workouts with a punching bag or medicine ball, or, you might go out for archery. Any one of the three will give you stronger and lovelier arms.

We Owe Much to Pioneer Chemist

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

IN LOOKING over a druggist's shelves idly the other day the thought occurred to me how many products we use in treatment are not, in the strict sense, natural products at all. In the old days the medicines used were found in nature—the leaves of plants, the minerals in the earth.

Nowadays we don't wait for nature to produce a useful medicine—we synthesize it in a chemical laboratory. Thus we got all the new wonder-working drugs used against infections—the sulfa drugs. Novocaine, which dentists use; aspirin, which you feel perfectly competent to use on yourself, and atabrine, the substitute for quinine in the treatment of malaria, which is breaking up the Jap's happy little dream of a monopoly, are all examples of modern synthetic chemistry.

My memory wandered back to the young man who was responsible for all this wonder-working—Freidrich Wohler, born in the ancient city of Frankfort in 1800. Even as a very young man he displayed an unusual gift for chemistry and was accepted as a pupil by the great Swedish chemist, Berzelius.

At that time chemistry was permeated with a doctrine at which we can afford to laugh now. It was the concept of "vital force." Vital force was a kind of curious, indescribable force in nature which was able to create minerals in the rocks, and salts, and the extracts in plants, but which man could never hope to control or imitate.

In short, no chemist should waste his time trying to synthesize anything—to make a new chemical out of two others. That was nature's business and required the action of the vital force. You could analyze things—break down nature's work into its component parts. That had been done. But you couldn't build anything up.

Somehow young Wohler did not believe that. When he went to Berlin and got a laboratory of his own he began to hammer on the question of synthesis.

One chemical fascinated him—cyanic acid and its compounds. It contained nitrogen, which is universally distributed in the products of nature. And after endless experiments, one day in 1823 he was working with ammonium sulfocyanate and he obtained a new compound which turned out to be urea. Here was news—the vital-force concept knocked into a cocked hat. Here was a substance that had never been encountered except when it was manufactured by a kidney, and Wohler had produced it from an inorganic salt, by heat and manipulation and no kidney involved at all.

It was revolutionary and it founded modern synthetic chemistry.

Wohler was a great self-critic. He told an allegory that the Goddess of Truth was in her house and one day came a great knocking on the door, but she said "Let them wait; they can knock again." Then suddenly the knocking stopped and the knocker passed on. She went to the window and said "Oh! It is that lazy fellow, Wohler. He richly deserves his failure, since he cared so little to be let in."

Potato Chips on Going-Up Price List

Potato chips are going to cost more. To encourage their production, the Office of Price Administration is allowing the usual 5 cent package to be reduced in size from 1 ounce to three-quarter ounce. Other sizes will cost as follows: 1¾ ounces, 10 cents; 2¾ ounces, 15 cents; 4 ounces, 20 cents; 5¼ ounces, 25 cents, and 6¾ ounces, 30 cents. The ceiling price must be on the package.

If you feel you can't afford to buy your potato chips, why not make them? The Government has been asking us to use potatoes, so this is just another way to utilize the spud.

You will find if you use the following recipe that these crisp bits which are grand for serving with drinks, at outdoor meals or for home meals, are easy to make.

POTATO CHIPS

Wash and pare potatoes. Shave into very thin slices. Soak the potato slices in ice water for about 1 hour, then drain and dry on a towel. Fry in deep hot fat, a few slices at a time until they are light brown, keeping them in motion with a skimmer. Lay on soft paper to drain. Sprinkle lightly with salt.

Toast Cubes Make Quick Breakfast

"Served according to taste"—that's the beauty of a wake-up bowlful of toasted bread cubes and milk, for it offers literally dozens of flavor variations. If family preferences vary, it's easy to please all—just toast for each one the type of bread he likes best . . . whole wheat, cracked wheat, enriched white bread, raisin bread, or rye.

And that isn't the only trick you can have up your sleeve! The bread may be buttered after toasting, or served crunchy and dry. The toast cubes may be mixed with fresh berries or cut-up peaches . . . with raisins, cut-up dates or figs, or with stewed prunes (and plenty of rich prune juice!).

Where Is Women's Place?

A MAN versus woman issue seems to be in the making. More and more discussion is heard as to whether or not women should relinquish industrial jobs to men after the war.

Convincing arguments were given on both sides of this question by the two women who debated it last week on Town Meeting of the Air. Mrs. Daisy Simons Wadsworth of New York City's Children's Welfare Service argued that woman's role in society primarily revolves about the home, that she can render her best service there, and that she should return to this field when industry's special need of her is ended.

Mrs. Paul Douglas of the International Relations Center of Chicago, countered with, "You can't move backward into the future." Women are people, she maintained, not a group to be treated any special way. Each case involving a woman's job should be decided on its merits. No one can arbitrarily say who can work in a democracy.

New Education For Girls Advised

While it was repeatedly brought out in the discussion that the Selective Service Act provides that the men drafted shall have their jobs back if they want them, there seemed to be a general feeling that the question went deeper than this. What is to be the economic and social relationship between American men and women in the future? Is the present trend of women out of the home to continue? Or is there to be a shift of emphasis toward women's greater self expression in home and family life, such as is now taking place in Russia?

Mrs. Wadsworth thought there should be a change of emphasis, that the educational system should be overhauled to prepare girls more definitely for parenthood and home life. The school, the press, the radio, the pulpit, the Nation, she thought, should seek to convince women they should return to the home, not only to preserve it, but to find their own fullest self expression.

"But what about the woman who doesn't have a home?" asked a member of the audience. "What about the woman who must work to help meet home expenses?"

Society should see to it there is sufficient income in the home that the mother doesn't have to work, replied Mrs. Wadsworth. And if a women with children is dependent upon herself, society should provide her the means to stay at home.

NO ONE has asked the author of this column to judge this debate. But this being a free country, etc., here is one citizen's opinion!

Servicemen, having been asked to make the greatest of all sacrifices, should have their jobs back, or priority in other jobs. Beyond this, the issue necessarily, in a democracy, must be determined on individual fitness rather than sex.

A great many women, especially in the heavy industries, will be glad to return home because of the strain their employment has made on their strength, which is considerably less than men's. Also a great many women even in the light industries will have found that running a home and a full-time job is too much for them

Employers Will Prefer Men

Employers in industry will give men preference in hiring because they are stronger, easier to "handle" and require less supervision than women.

Any wholesale forced return of women to the home would be a dangerous move toward fascism, and would work a great injustice on the millions of women who must work to support themselves and dependents.

The general movement of women into the professions and pursuits for which they have special aptitudes cannot be stopped because it is a part of the drift of special change and technical advance.

However, more emphasis should be put on woman's contribution to society as a parent and homemaker. Schools should train girls more definitely for this role. The war has revealed the shocking lack of knowledge of nutrition especially among wives in the low income groups. Most women need a great deal more psychological training for the rearing of children. An "Improve the Home Movement" on a national scale is badly needed.

If after the war we have an expanding economy, no mass unemployment, and with men wage earners receiving enough to maintain their families comfortably, the problem of woman's return to the home will largely take care of itself.

For Beauty's Sake

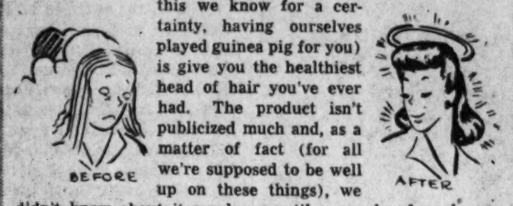
By Margaret George

They don't make any preposterous claims for this hair treatment. They don't say it will make hair grow on balding heads or that it'll restore color to gray hair (even though on occasion it has been known to do both).



What it will do (and this we know for a certainty, having ourselves played guinea pig for you) is give you the healthiest head of hair you've ever had. The product isn't publicized much and, as a matter of fact (for all we're supposed to be well up on these things), we didn't know about it oursleves until a couple of weeks ago when a friend of ours took off her hat.

Her hair had never been anything remarkable—on the dull and limp side for all the care she gave it. Well—this crop she was sporting was alive and shiny. It looked as if she'd quickly brushed her hair with a hunk of sun.

Figuratively, she had—"another sun" is the literal translation of the product she'd been using.

It's been available for many years in salons and also for home treatments. A scientifically accepted preparation which consists of a scalp-nourishing extract and a hair-bath, the fluid used for treating the scalp comes in two strengths: single strength, made up of the pituitary glandular fluid taken from sheep which is used for normal heads to encourage a more luxuriant growth of hair as well as conditioning the scalp; and triple strength, much more active and stimulating, which contains a triple quantity of the pituitary fluid together with a hormone extract—beneficial for promoting hair growth and helping to stop falling hair.

The hair bath, to be used in conjunction with the treatment (or for anbody who doesn't like a soap shampoo), comes in powder form and is made up of things like egg white, pituitary fluid and citric acid.

You dissolve it in hot water and use it much as you would a liquid shampoo. It's wonderful stuff—never have you heard your hair squeak so with cleanliness.

After an introductory treatment at the salon (about $1.50) you can apply the treatment at home. Single-strength kits are available for home use in one-week up to 12-week sizes (one-week size is about $1.75 and the 12-week size is about $18). Triple strength is available in the same-sized packages for nearly tripled amounts. The soapless hair wash is available in packages of six for about $3.

Swamped as we are with all manner of marvelous preparations, you can take our word for it that when we give this much space to anything, it's got to be really good.

Leesburg's Servicemen Home on Leave

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 28.—Late summer vacations have taken many Leesburg residents to points far distant, while furloughs during the weekend brought many of the younger group of servicemen to town.

Mrs. Coleman C. Gore left this week for a 10-day airplane trip in the Middle West and South. She will visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Smith, in Tulsa, Okla.; her nephew, Capt. James Grafton Gore, USAAF, in Dallas, Tex., and her sister, Mrs. Lora Freeman, in Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Stirling Harrison and her daughters, the Misses Hester Anne and Nancy Mills Luke, are spending a week at Rehoboth Beach, Del. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Titus and children are spending their vacation at a camp near Covington, Va. The Misses Nancy Bradfield and Ethel Littlejohn are spending a week at Virginia Beach. Mrs. Oden Semones is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Clark Semones in Richmond, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Semones in Pulaski, Va.

Naval Aviation Cadet Rhea Adams is spending a two-day furlough with his mother, Mrs. Sackett Adams. He has just completed his training at Memphis, Tenn., and will go to the Pensacola Naval Air Base, Fla. Pvts. A. S. Jenkins, jr., and Millard E. Rives, ASTP, who are stationed at Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, spent the weekend at their homes in Leesburg. Private Jenkins had as his guest Pvt. Bill Delaney, also of Randolph-Macon. Pfc. Harry Wynkoop, USAAC, Fort Mabrey Field, Tallahassee, Fla., is spending 10 days at his home here. Pfc. Randolph Jackson of the Richmond Medical College is spending a furlough with his mother, Mrs. Daisy Jackson. Capt. William O. Bailey, Medical Division, Camp Lee, spent the weekend at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. Otis Bailey. Also with the Baileys for the weekend was their daughter, Miss Mary Lil Bailey of Washington. Ensign William F. Rust, Mrs. Rust and their small child of Washington were weekend guests of Mrs. William F. Rust.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Daniel of Charlotte, N. C., are the guests of the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. John A. Gibson. Mr. and Mrs. Murray Dyer of New York will spend the weekend with Mrs. Dyer's sister, Miss Christine Wildman, who recently returned from a visit with Mrs. Mary Gray Lewis at Lake Onewa, Me. Mrs. Walter Harrison and Miss Virginia Bowie of Washington spent the weekend with the Misses Marie and Rebecca Harrison. Mrs. John Moore and son of Arlington were the weekend guests of Mrs. William Bodmer. Miss Avis Clemens of Madison College, Harrisonburg, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Clemens. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Briggs of Princeton, N. J., have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carter. Mrs. Milton E. Ailes, Miss Ailes and Milton E. Ailes 3d of Washington are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Wilmer.

MRS. ALEXANDER H. LEATHERWOOD

Miss Jacqueline Crocker Becomes Bride of Corpl. A. H. Leatherwood at Afternoon Rites

Now on their wedding trip to Detroit, Mich., and Canada, are Corpl. and Mrs. Alexander H. Leatherwood, jr., whose marriage took place in Arlington, Va., last week.

The former Miss Jacqueline Crocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Davy Crocker, and Corporal Leatherwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Leatherwood of Arlington, were married at the Westover Baptist Church in Arlington with the Rev. Hardison officiating at the 4 o'clock afternoon ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white satin, fashioned with a tight bodice and full skirt of tulle. Her tulle veil was held to her hair by a satin coronet trimmed with pearls and she carried gardenias and roses.

Miss Jean Mobberly was the maid of honor and only attendant and was gowned in blue taffeta and tulle and carried pink rosebuds.

Glenn Smith of Arlington was the best man and the ushers were Staff Sergt. George Skonce of Washington and Sergt. Kola Jajack also of this city.

Ensign Schuller, Glamour-Lured as Any Girl, Now Buys Pumps, Drills and Like for Uncle Sam

Gets Things Done In Record Time

By Genevieve Reynolds

Glamour is where you find it. At least, that is the experience of peppy Ensign Margaret Schuller of the Navy. Instead of buying caviar, steaks and pineapple — "bewitching" evening dresses or the latest in sportswear for milady, she's purchasing pumps, drills, screws and machinery parts for Uncle Sam's Navy.

A food buyer for John L. Wanamaker in New York and Philadelphia, Ensign Schuller is on duration leave where she's now laboring in the Emergency Purchase Division, Bureau of Supplies and Accounts of the United States Navy. She took a short fling at buying candy for 26 stores. Later she bought—she didn't say what—for Macy's and Bamberger's in Newark, N. J.

Exciting Job

Here is an exciting and responsible job. A battle-damaged ship is coming into port. Immediately there is a hurry call for repair parts. There isn't time to wait. As soon as word reaches here she's on the telephone heckling manufacturers, arranging immediate delivery. Needless to say, she gets things done—and quickly.

ENSIGN MARGARET SCHULLER

One week she might be planning supplies for an island soon to be invaded by our armed forces. In the spring she sent pumps to help raise the Normandie from the mire and water in New York harbor. Only recently she bought an automobile to be sent to Egypt. Who knows? Tomorrow she might be buying or ordering mosquito netting, more pumps or drills.

Gives Parties That Are Famous in Service Set

"I have to laugh," said Ensign Schuller, "when I think of all the glamour magazines and catalogues I used to pore over—hair-dos, Paris frocks, etc. Now my fan mail consists of catalogues of machinery parts . . . more exciting, when you get the hang of it, and equally as glamorous."

Wellesley Graduate

A native of Montclair, N. J., alert, dynamic Ensign Schuller was graduated from Wellesley College in 1933. Gay, the life of the party, she keeps open house for her many friends. Her lobster and steak parties are famous among the men and women in the service. Often the uniformed men help her to prepare the informal meals. She says that they love digging food out of the ice box to eat or puttering around in the kitchen.

One of the originators of the victory-garden idea for Navy gardeners, she says that the corn between Temporary I and J is 15 feet high. Also, there are plenty of tomatoes, beans, etc. Ensign Schuller also has a victory garden in the yard behind her apartment.

United War Relief Center Is Moving to New Quarters

New headquarters, new tasks, and renewed enthusiasms are prominent factors in the rising barometer of interest in foreign war relief activities.

On Wednesday, September 1, the four foreign war relief agencies which combine forces to form the United War Relief Center (formerly at 1218 Connecticut ave.) will be "open for business" at a new location—1528 Connecticut ave. in the block just north of Dupont Circle—according to an announcement made today by Dr. Paul F. Douglass, chairman of the Center.

Greek War Relief, Russia War Relief, United China Relief, and the Queen Wilhelmina Fund, all member agencies of the Community War Fund, will continue their four-country educational and relief program at the new address. Colonel Julius I. Peyser, treasurer of the Center, has taken leadership in establishing the organizations at the new headquarters. A formal opening will be held later in September.

For volunteers associated with these organizations, the fall calendar ahead contains two important "musts." One is participation in the Community War Fund campaign. The other is a renewal of appeals for clothing to be sent to war zone sufferers.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman upon her return to Washington from a visit with members of her family in Vineyard Haven, Mass., will make the enlistment of volunteers in an intensified Russian War Relief clothing drive one of her major activities.

The wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, Mme. Loudon, whose return is also anticipated in September, will then resume active leadership in the "clothing for Holland" drive which has been gaining momentum during her absence through the faithful efforts of members of the Queen Wilhelmina Fund committee.

The rising hope for liberation of the populations in Greece and Holland is responsible for much of the marked uptrend in donations of good used clothing through the foreign war relief organizations.

Achilles Catsonis, regional director for the Greek War Relief Association here, says that members of the Washington committee are now laying the basis for participation in the Nation-wide goal to collect 20 million garments and articles of bedclothing for shipment to Greece.

Appeals for clothing are coming more frequently from Greece at this time than appeals for food.

Fight Talk

I know a young man, 19 years old, who has a chronic and serious heart trouble. It was caused by a childhood illness, and he has had it since he was 8, but they told him that it was getting better, and that he might eventually grow out of it; and so, on the Monday after Pearl Harbor, he went striding into an enlistment office, just like anybody else. He tried the Marines first, and was turned down; then he tried the Navy; then he tried the Army. Everybody turned him down—on account of the heart condition. Finally the dratt board looked him over (he had hoped that they might slide him through, having heard so many stories of such cases)—but no again. The heart made him 4-F.

He was in college at the time, but he refused to stay in college, feeling that he must do something more useful than just educate himself. To all adult suggestions that we might NEED some educated men after the war was over (he had made a brilliant record) he turned deaf ears. He went to work in a glider factory by day; and in the evenings, he studies Japanese. On Friday and Saturday nights, and on Sunday afternoons, he works as a bus boy in a servicemen's canteen in the city where he lives.

Well, so that's the young man's story, and I don't mean it's a unique one. I know of other cases which are similar, and so do you. I only mean that it seems too bad that every now and then (in fact, oftener than you'd believe it could happen, in this Selective Service war) some incredible fool of a woman—some long-nosed, hawk-like, pouncing, pitiless busybody of a woman—comes up to this boy on the street and says sharply, "Well, young man! And why aren't YOU in uniform?"

Sometimes she also says, "A big strong fellow like you—you ought to be ashamed."

(Hey, just a minute, lady! WHO ought to be ashamed? The young man has an ailing heart—but there's no reason you should try to break it.)

CHANGING THE SUBJECT DRASTICALLY, here are some little wartime smiles I've been collecting. One of them, for instance, dates all the way back to last year, when the Bataan struggle was at its height—and when a charming lady of my acquaintance remarked to her husband that it was bad enough for MacArthur's men to be bombed and fired on, night and day, without their having to get into those fox-holes where they might be bitten, too.

And there was the incident which took place recently on a train coming up from Florida, when a group of waggish sailors, passing through a crowded day coach, beheld a WAAC asleep in her seat on one side of the car and a soldier asleep just across the aisle. It occurred to the sailors to reverse the insignia on the uniforms of the two sleepers, and this they did very carefully — waking neither sleeper in the process. They then sat down nearby to await developments, and to their enormous glee, neither of the victims noticed the change when they did wake up, but got off the train serenely at the next station, which was Washington—the WAAC with infantry insignia on her lapels, and the soldier replete with the little gold heads of Pallas Athene.

It seems that even civilians have their moments. The other day on the street I saw two genial drunks get down on their hands and knees on the sidewalk and bark loudly into the small pop-eyed face of a Pekingese on a leash, who shrank from them in terror and didn't even bark back. . . . And there was the exclamation emitted by a Helen Hopkinson dowager at sight of her first PT boat, which was rushing down the Hudson River. Cried the dowager excitedly, "Oh, look at the little boatie going faster than it can!" . . . And there's the apocryphal anecdote now being circulated about the two ladies who lived in adjoining penthouses, and who both had victory gardens planted on their terraces. "What are you growing in your victory garden?" one of them called across to the other one day. "Oh, just the bare necessities," the other replied. "Mint and marijuana."

All right, let's get back to the true ones. With my own eyes I saw a copy of "Lady Chatterley's Lover" in the soldiers' library at Fort Monmouth—among the books donated by civilians—and furthermore the donor had written an inscription on the flyleaf, in a round girlish hand. "To the Army," said the inscription. "From Alice Mae Blank, 218½ Main Street," with the name of the town and the State.

Theatre Guild Begins New Season With Bonus Play

Theatre Arts Magazine Makes Offer to Soldier Groups; 'TITA' Breaks Another Record

By Marjorie Kelly

The Theatre Guild on Monday, September 13, will bring "Dark Eyes" to the National Theater as a "dividend" play. This is highly unusual, inasmuch as the guild's season of regular subscription plays does not start until October so that members get a bonus before the regular series even begins.

The exuberant Jed Harris comedy, written in collaboration by Elena Miramova and Eugenie Leontovich, features Miss Miramova, Tamara Geva, and Ludmilla Toretzka in the leading roles. In order to get seats at all comparable to their customary ones, members must order them before September 6, because they will be given preference in assigning seats only until then. And in order to get them at subscription rates at all, they must be ordered before Monday, September 13, the opening date.

Theatre Arts Magazine in its current (September) issue has made an unusual and most practical offer to members of the armed forces. It has printed in this issue five short scripts that may be performed by soldiers, sailors or marines royalty free and with no time-and-effort-wasting special clearance or red tape necessary. All that the group need do to secure the plays is to get hold of a copy of the magazine.

Any nonmilitary group, amateur or profesisonal, who wish to produce the plays must get permission from the copyright owners.

The scripts, all but one of which were written especially for soldier production, include Moss Hart's and George S. Kaufman's skit, "Dream On, Soldier;" Lieut. Ralph Nelson's second prize winner in the John Golden soldier play contest, "Mail Call;" Robert Ardrey's "God and Texas;" Ranald MacDougall's radio play, "The Death of Aunt Aggie," and Owen Dodson's "Everybody Join Hands," a choral drama with Free China as its theme. This is the first printing of each of the scripts.

The editors of Theatre Arts consider justifiably that this is the best answer they could make to the innumerable letters they receive asking "Where can we get good material for production by soldiers in our camp theater, or barracks or dayroom or outdoor space?"

Century-Old Jargon Pops Up at Keith's

The rhyming slang in "Mr. Lucky" the Cary Grant starrer presently at RKO-Keith's is not, Mr. Hardie Meakin of that theater informs me, a new form of jitterbug lingo. Actually it originated almost a century ago among street patterers in England as a means of talking to each other in a secret tongue. In certain sections of England and Australia even today it is quite readily understood.

"Get out your best fiddle-and-flute, shine your ones-and-twos, put on your tit-for-tat and take your briny-marlin to the movies tonight," is a good sample.

Rhyming slang is not founded on allegory, although many of its phrases, such as "roses red" for bed, and "weeping willow" for pillow, undoubtedly stem from a poetic source.

From its beginning on English streets, rhyming slang deteriorated into prison language, then was carried into Australia by prisoners sent to the penal colonies there.. The famous Sidney Ducks band of cutthroats took it from there to the Barbary Coast, where it remained in vogue for some time. Today it is still popular in Australia, and occasionally pops up in certain sections of America's underworld.

A few of the expressions, such as "storm-and-strife" for wife, and "sugar and honey" for money, are frequently heard in current American slang. And, whether you like it or not, Mr. Grant's latest is very likely to add a good many more such to the vocabularies of America's young.

Over at the Earle Theater last week they were turning handsprings of delight over the B. O. receipts of "This Is the Army," or so I was told. What acrobatics go on this week has not been revealed, but the receipts are something to turn triple cartwheels over, for they've broken, for the second time, an 18-year record. Second week's grosses are generally nothing to shout about, but "This Is the Army" topped all first week grosses to date in its second week at the Earle. A showman's dream, this Army show. The Earle's experience with it is typical of reports coming in from all over the country, to the great gratification, not only of theater owners, but of officials of Army Emergency Relief, since all profits from the venture go to that fund.

It ought to be interesting to see singer Bibi Osterwald in the role of Mary, the drunkard's chee-ild, in the Willard Roof's production of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," which opens tonight. As Mary, it falls to Bibi's lot to utter the deathless words, "Father, dear father, come home with me now." Bibi's talents, thus far this year, have been mostly lavished upon small soubrette parts and entr'acte songs and her admirers (count me in) will be curious to see what she does with this. Others in the cast of the diatribe against drink include Dick Midgely, Ted Tiller, Mary Jane Kersey, Natalie Core, Louise Kelley and Kyle Thomas, formerly of the Catholic University group.

'Lucky Partners' Revived at Pix

The Pix Theater this week is playing a revival of the comedy "Lucky Partners," starring Ginger Rogers and Ronald Coleman, together with "Mexican Spitfire's Blessed Event" the most recent in a series of farces starring Leon Errol and Lupe Velez.

"Lucky Partners" originated in a Sacha Guitry play. It is a delightful adventure in the absurd. It is the outcome of rebellious speculations people have when life around seems laid out in frightfully exact patterns with edges too conventionally trimmed.

Such speculations vary with the mood and imagination of the speculator. One person may sit on a park bench and wonder what would happen if he put out his foot and tripped a passerby. Another might speculate on the consequences of picking up two red apples from the corner fruit stand and walking away without paying for them.

Still another might do what the artist David, played by Ronald Coleman, does in this movie. He speculates on what would happen if a man should take a girl on an impersonal trip to see the world before she marries and settles down to a life in Poughkeepsie with another man.

The opportunity to try out his speculation presents itself when Ginger Rogers happens along. She is Jean, a girl with a yen for playing sweepstakes.

Jean has a hunch that the horse will win if David will buy half her sweepstakes ticket. David buys it on condition that upon winning she will take this impersonal trip on which he has been speculating, before she settles down to marrying a certain stuffy bourgeois insurance salesman.

Considerable incident ensues including the winning of $3000. Jean and David start on their trip. Freddie, the prospective husband, begins to doubt the professed platonic quality of their relationship and pursues them to their first stop at a Niagara Falls hotel.

More incident piles up until the three end in a courtroom. A delightful old judge then becomes the figure around which revolves one of the best scenes in the movie.

The story has an element of James Barrie in it and of a modified Gilbert and Sullivan without the music. It is fanciful and delicate and the comedy is charming. It is the way you'd like things to happen and they very seldom do.

The picture settings are appropriate to the story. The first half of the scenes are laid on a crooked little city side street. There is a bookshop owned by Jean and her Aunt. There is a funny cafe with checkered tablecloths owned by Nick No. 1 and Nick No. 2. And there is David's studio on the second floor of a brownstone front. The last half of the picture's scenes are laid in a Niagara Falls hotel and garden.

It was a mistake to bill "Mexican Spitfire's Blessed Event" with "Lucky Partners."

This one of the series of "Mexican Spitfire" movies starring Lupe Velez and Leon Errel is a slack-stick farce containing all the time-worn comic devices. There is one man dressing up like another and running in and out of bedrom doors. There are nerve-racking repeated interruptions every time the rich old man gets ready to sign on the dotted line. The devices soon cease to be funny, and the picture is persistently compared in the mind of the audience with the really amusing comedy "Lucky Partners."

Musical Punster

Pianist Tommy Johnson is one of Dick Midgley's principal assets in his Willard Roof company, which tonight begins a revival of "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Typical Johnson sallies are "My Hero," to introduce the leading man, "The Wreck of the Old 97" as the express train bears down on the hapless heroine tied to the tracks and "Deep Purple" as a murderer argues with his accomplice over whether the victim's face is turning purple or heliotrope as he dies. Tommy's accompaniment is never twice the same, and actors have been known to almost blow their lines when Tommy thought of a new one

The Kimbrough Poise

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 29. — Louise Allbritton and Robert Paige will take off for their first look at the former gay white way on September 8, when their "Hired Wife" opens. On their return they'll team again in "Her Primitive Man." I'm wondering whether there'll be any primitive left in Bob after a New York jaunt! . . . Andy Stone saw John Calvert do his act at the Masquers Club for servicemen. It gave him an idea, so he started rewriting his next picture, which has six leading ladies and a gent for each—one a hypnotist. He wants John to play the hypnotist and, when the picture's finished, make personal appearances with it. Sounds like mighty fine showmanship to me. In the meantime, two top producers want to test the gentlemen . . . Fibber McGee's "Mrs. Uppington" is making hay while the sun shines. The day she finished "Standing Room Only," Republic called her for "O, My Darling Clementine."

The Wrong House

Emily Kimbrough slays me. She was telling about visiting the late Otis Skinners at their country home some years back, and as usual, forgot their address but knew the general direction of the place. She got caught in a rainstorm, drove up in front of an imposing estate, and said to the butler. "I'm Emily Kimbruogh. I'm expected. Would you mind showing me to my room right away. I must have a shower." He took her bags and showed her up to a room where a maid was waiting. She said, "please unpack me while I have a shower. By the way, where is it?" The maid looked startled, but pointed anyway. Emily came out wrapped in a towel, and there was the maid standing beside her unopened bags. Said the maid, "are you sure you're expected, madame?" "But of course! the Skinners are waiting for me." "That may be," replied the maid, "but this happens to be the home of J. Pierpont Morgan."

He'll Learn Now!

Would you believe Eddie Cantor in his 35 years on the stage never learned to dance? He told me so himself. He's faked it, but when it came to the important dancing, somebody else did it. Now in "Show Business" he'll do a dancing sequence with George Murphy, and not to be outdone by George, who's mighty nimble on his feet, the great Cantor has been taking lessons like mad from Johnny Boyle

Trans-Lux

The principal item on this week's bill at the newsreel theater is the March of Time, "And Then Japan," the title of which refers to the settled United Nations policy that we will defeat Hitler first and then concentrate on our enemy to the west.

As former Ambassador to Japan Joseph C. Grew says in the course of the film, we must not take this to mean that Japan is the less formidable foe. She is more powerful and more inexorably determined to win than most of us realize, and it is important to understand her, what her resources are, how she fights and what she is fighting for. This film tries to give some idea of these things. Though it is, of course, too short to more than begin the task, the film's warning is impressive. A captured Jap film gives evidence of one reason why the Japanese have not been able to defeat China, as it shows Jap soldiers struggling along muddy roads in ankle deep mud, and trucks bogged down, unable to proceed further.

A third short, "Smashing the Japs" shows night and day bombardment by sea and air of Nipponse strongholds. After having seen Walt Disney's significant "Victory Through Air Power" it is interesting to see in this film the defeat of a Jap warship by an American bombing plane—to watch the battleship twisting and turning in the water, trying to evade the bombs, and finally demolished completely.

Other news short show the British Eighth Army entering Catania, demonstration by the Army of the new flame thrower, a terrifying weapon, the all-colored U. S. Army corps of fighter pilots in action, the bombing raids that ended Hamburg's usefulness to Germany as a war center, and the bill is rounded out by a color "Cartune," "Ration Bored," an amusing Pete Smith specialty, "Wild Horses," and one of John Nesbitt's original and interesting Passing Parade series entitled "That's Why I Left You."

LEONARD LYONS

A Caldwell Potpouri

Not every American who went to Europe during the years immediately preceding the outbreak of World War II could be classified as a solid citizen. The shock of my life came to me in Prague in the summer of 1938, when I ran into a native son of Worcester, Mass., who was serving an eager apprenticeship under Hitler's ace softener-up-of-foreign countries.

This Nazi field manager had at that time successfully engineered the fall of Austria and had Czechoslovakia holding its breath to break the fall it was about to take. Hitler's man, who scorned rubber heels because they were soft like a democracy, went from Czechoslovakia to Poland, from Poland to France.

Each country went to pieces according to schedule. The American apprentice, under such expert instruction, soon completed his training and was hustled back to the United States.

It was expected that in the year 1941 this soft democracy would go the way of all Hitler-softened nations. The Worcester boy failed, in this land of unlimited opportunity, to make good. America today is as tough as a keg of Vermont nails.

One of the embarrassing moments of my life occurred at the French-Spanish border during the Spanish Civil War. On my way out of Spain I was ordered to explain the meaning of a clipping from "Variety" which I had on me. The reason I was carrying it was because I had been trying for a couple of weeks to make heads or tails of it myself.

It was, as I recall now, a short squib about audience reaction to a vaudeville act that had played at a night club in Cleveland. The clipping related the fact that a fight broke out in the club; the police raided the joint; but the song-and-dance team refused to leave the floor before finishing the act.

When I failed to translate all this into acceptable Spanish, I was ordered to leave the clipping and sign my name to a paper that, it seemed to me, automatically implicated me in every night club riot that might take place in Spain to the end of time.

The cost of a simple item of living in America nowadays can bounce against the ceiling with a resounding thud. On three widely separated dates in 1938 in Germany I paid $7.50, American money, for a dish of ham and eggs and a cup of coffee. And in Vienna, during the same period, I paid the same sum for a dish of eggs without ham.

In the spring of 1941 in Russia, before the start of the German-Soviet War, an order of ham and eggs would bring you five eggs in Moscow and Leningrad, six eggs in Rostov and Tiflis. If you insisted on having the American standardized number of two, you were considered a Menshevik (little), and not a Bolshevik (big).

In 1938 several commercial transport planes flying international routes that passed over German territory never reached their destinations. The mysterious disappearance of these planes has never been satisfactorily explained.

One of the things the Russians have never been able to understand about the wounded German prisoners taken during the past two years is why they protest so strongly against blood transfusions. Russian surgeons often tell the Germans that their lives can be saved only by a transfusion, but a great many evidently prefer death rather than face the possibility of living with "non-Aryon" blood in their veins. The Russians do not guarantee the transfused blood to be pure "Aryan" but, after persuasive efforts have failed, they do not force the Germans to undergo the transfusion. This uncompromising Nazi attitude among German wounded has cost many, many lives.

The London black money market has always been a more trustworthy divinator than palmreaders or fortune tellers. During the prewar period between 1936 and 1939 the currency of every continental European country, including Germany, was at one period or another being offered at discounts ranging from 80 to 25 per cent below internal and foreign exchange rates.

She's Frankly Proud Over Husband's Post But His Elevation Doesn't Surprise Her

Lady Mountbatten Kept Busy With War Work at Home

By Barbara Wace

London, Aug. 28 (AP).—It was the cook's day off out at the Mountbatten's little London house.

The ample but deaf housemaid was preoccupied in the kitchen and Lady Mountbatten was deep in details of her wartime job as superintendent of the St. Johns' Ambulance Nursing Brigade.

A succession of bangs on the door aroused the maid who led the way to the downstairs office, where Lady Mountbatten was seated at her desk, wearing the dark blue uniform of her organization.

She was frankly proud over the choice of her husband as Allied supreme commander in Southeast Asia but said "it dodn't really come as a surprise, for after 20 years of being a sailor's wife you get used to surprises."

A gay, vital woman, once headlined as Britain's richest, Lady Mountbatten talked enthusiastically of her handsome husband's work and her own. She is a tall blonde, spirited conversationalist and, at the age of 42, she retains much that is reminiscent of a slender-faced girl in a big round hat who looked a bit like one of D. W. Griffith's silent movie heroines.

Her amiable talk was interrupted by the butcher who rapped at the front door and tried loudly to make the maid understand about the week's rations.

"She's been with the family since 1912," Lady Mountbatten explained, "deaf as a post but she's wonderful."

After the butcher and the maid came to an agreement, two Sealyhams romped excitedly into the room and she was hard put to it to guard her precious silk stockings.

Can Take Opulence Or Leave It

She is the kind of woman who can take opulence or leave it.

She once lived in a $350 a week flat with seven bathrooms, two elevators and a private movie room. She also rode a tramp steamer from Tahiti through the South Seas.

Before the war the Mountbattens lived in one of London's few penthouses. It was bombed early in the blitz. They moved to a house in Mayfair and were bombed out again.

Now they have a small unpretentious house off Belgrave square—hoping the third time will be the charm.

Most of their works of art and furniture have been moved to Broadlands, their country house in New Forest, near Romsey, which Lady Mountbatten inherited from her father, Lord Mount Temple.

On the mantlepiece of her office are three small photographs—Lord Louis in uniform, the Duke of Windsor who was the best man at their wedding, and the late Duke of Kent with his small son on his knee.

Daughters Have Parents' Good Looks

In the adjoining dining room are two oil paintings of the Mountbattens' two daughters, Patricia, 17, and Pamela, 13, done some time ago by a French artist, and a more recent one of patricia.

Both have their parents' extreme good looks and Patricia is tall and slim like her mother.

Both of the girls were in the United States during part of the war as guests of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt at her Fifth Avenue Mansion. Lord and Lady Mountbatten have been frequent guests there.

"Patricia is very sensible when she is in the United States," said Lady Mountbatten. "She went off during her vacations and saw as much of the country as she could by bus.

"Traveling like that is the only way to see places and I encouraged her to go. She got as far West as Colorado and went down South too. Pamela was too young to go around like that by herself."

World-Wide Traveler Mostly in Cargo Boats

A traveler herself, Lady Mountbatten has been over most of the world—not in luxury trains or ships, but mostly in cargo boats.

She went up and down India, Mexico, Palestine and Persia. For three months she rode a tramp steamer through the South Seas, and if it were not for war work at home she would like to be with Lord Louis.

"The St. John's Ambulance Corps and the Red Cross, with which it is affiliated for the duration, have a big program going, and my job is here," Lady Mountbatten said.

St. John's is a voluntary organization which does numerous jobs in civil defense, such as running first-aid posts in air-raid shelters and providing crews for ambulances.

Doesn't Talk of Her "Blitz" Work

"Ninety per cent of our staff are women who do their bit after working eight or nine hours in an office or factory," she explained. "I hadn't qualified fully before the war, but now I've taken all the examinations and passed all tests."

Lady Mountbatten did not talk of the work she did during the blitz, when she had charge of ambulance crews. Over debris in Lambeth, Stepney and Lewisham, she went from one shelter to another when bombs were falling. Once a shelter took a direct hit less than 60 seconds after she had left.

LADY MOUNTBATTEN

Like her father, Patricia is in the navy as a member of the WRENS. "She has been in only four months," said her mother, "but she loves it." She is specializing in signaling. She gets up to London occasionally on her day off.

Made "Thank You" Tour for Red Cross

The granddaughter of the fabulously rich Sir Ernest Cassel and godchild of the late King Edward VII, Lady Mountbatten is the former Edwina Ashley.

She is said to have inherited 24 million dollars from her father and grandfather.

In peacetime she summers at Classiebawn Castle in County Sligo opposite the Blue Donegal Mountains.

"I went there the other day," she said. "I was on a tour of inspection of our activities in Northern Ireland. I got down there somehow by train, bus and bicycle.

"I stayed in a tiny hotel in the village of Mullagmore and admired the bath they had put in since I was last there. But nobody has ever used it because the water system doesn't work."

In 1941 she made a "thank you" tour for the Red Cross, traveling from New York to San Francisco, speaking at sewing bees, socials and other gatherings and telling just how grateful Britain was, using gifts sent over by the Americas.

Last February she was made a commander of the British empire for her work in civil defense.

Miss Coman Sets Date of Her Wedding

September 11 is the date set by Miss Dorothy Coman, daughter of Capt. Vaughn Coman, USN, and Mrs. Coman, as the day of her wedding to Robert Hicks.

The ceremony, which will take place at 5:30 in the afternoon, will be followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's parents, 2724 34th st. Dr. Charles T. Warner will officiate.

Mrs. Ann Meem McLean will be matron of honor for Miss Coman, and bridesmaids will be Miss Eleanor Meem, Miss Florence King, daughter of Admiral Ernest J. King; Mrs. Oscar Douglas and Miss Paula Vogelsang of New York.

Melville Hicks will be best man for his brother, and the ushers will include Lieut. E. A. Bartlett, Capt. E. W. Rivers, Capt. C. A. Jamison and Maj. Eric Wood, all of the Marine Corps, and Lieut. Comdr. E. G. Friedrich of the U. S. Navy. Lieut. Col. Norman Hussa was scheduled to be an usher, but military orders whisked him out of the country too soon.

A number of parties have been scheduled to fete the young couple. One, which took place last evening, was given by Mrs. Oscar Douglas at the Chevy Chase home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Emmett Quirk.

Still another party on the docket is one to be given by Miss Virginia Duncan and Miss Courtney Prettyman at Kenwood, Md., on Thursday evening. Miss Florence King also will entertain for the couple on the evening preceding the wedding.

Miss Coman attended Miss Madeira's School here and Wellesley. Mr. Hicks was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and Fordham Law School. He has been head of the FBI school at the Marine base at Quantico, Va., and has just been ordered back to duty in Washington.

Albert S. Crockett Arrives in Capital

Albert Stevens Crockett of New York, author and veteran foreign correspondent, has arrived at the Shoreham after visits to relatives and friends in southern Maryland and Virginia.

The bride-to-be was born and educated in Europe where she graduated from Chateau Brillantmont, Switzerland, in 1939. She made her debut at a court ball in Stockholm, later making her American debut at Bar Harbor, Me. After spending two winters studying music and Italian in Boston, she has been doing research work at the Office of Strategic Services here for the last 18 months.

Lieutenant Stromholt left last Christmas after a year's stay in this country and has just returned on a brief "special mission."

Ceremony Takes Place in Tennessee

Of wide interest in Washington was the wedding that took place yesterday in Clarksville, Tenn., when Miss Mary Hannah Payne Claxton, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Philander P. Claxton, became the bride of Lieut. Henry Maurice Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Pierce of East Falls Church, Va. The Rev. J. Earl Gilbreath, and the Rev. John Baggett officiated at the 8 o'clock evening ceremony at the Trinity Episcopal Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in her mother's wedding gown of white satin and lace, fashioned with rosepoint lace and panels down the front of the skirt and appliqued on the bodice. Her tulle veil was held to her hair by a coronet of rosepoint and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

Mrs. Neville Sloan was the matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Alice Lee Pierce, Miss Norma Meriwether and Miss Dorothy Gholson.

Lieut. Stewart Pierce was best man for his brother and the ushers were fellow officers of the Twelfth Armored Division, of which the bridegroom is a member.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

MRS. HENRY MAURICE PIERCE

After a honeymoon trip to Washington and New York, the bride will return to the home of her parents, and the bridegroom will rejoin his regiment on maneuvers.

The bride attended the Austin Peay State College, Vanderbilt and Peabody College, and the bridegroom was graduated from George Washington University.

Jenkins-Barnes Nuptials Take Place

The Baptist Church of Chapel Hill, N. C., was the scene of the marriage of Miss Edna Barnes to Ensign Hugh Powell Jenkins, jr., USNR, last week. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. K. Barnett. The bride was dressed in a blue traveling dress with matching accessories. She is the daughter of Mrs. Nettie Davies Barnes, and formerly attended the North Carolina College for Women at Greensboro and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. H. P. Jenkins, examiner with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Mrs. Jenkins. He attended the University of North Carolina, where, on June 1, 1943, he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Science in Chemistry, after which he reported for active duty in the United States Navy at Fort Schuyler, N. Y. Ensign Jenkins is a member of Alpha Chi Sigma Fraternity.

Ensign and Mrs. Jenkins are spending their honeymoon in North Carolina and Virginia, and after September 3 will be at home at 4425 49th st.

Soldier Brings Word From India Within 72 Hours

Winchester, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Hardy Wright, public welfare director here, told today of a greeting from a Red Cross field director friend in India delivered to her by a wounded soldier.

She was on special duty at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, Mrs. Wright, said, and was inclined to suspect the soldier of being delirious, especially when he said of her friend:

"I was talking with her in India just 72 hours ago."

The soldier was speaking straight, however. He and a number of wounded comrades had made the 10,000-mile trip by plane, making only three stops en route. They were wounded somewhere in the Middle East.

Labor Shortage Forces Preventorium to Close

Claiborne, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—The Maryland Tuberculosis Association's "miracle house" preventorium was closed today, earlier than usual, because of difficulty in obtaining enough help to operate, William B. Matthews, managing director, said.

He announced the season was curtailed this year and that only 50 instead of the 100 children normally admitted were housed, both because of the labor situation.

LEGAL NOTICES 4

LET'S START FROM THE BEGINNING, KENT. WE KNOW FOR A FACT THAT LOIS HASN'T REPORTED FOR WORK AND—
—AND WHEN I PHONED HER APARTMENT, A MAN WITH A LISP TOLD ME THERE WAS NO LOIS LANE THERE!
THE PUZZLING THING IS THAT PHONE COMPANY RECORDS SHOW THAT THE PHONE HAS BEEN LISTED IN THE NAME OF EVAN DOUT FOR FIVE YEARS AND NOBODY IN THE APARTMENT BUILDING HAS EVER HEARD OF LOIS!
SO THEN YOU RUN A STORY IN THE PAPER ABOUT LOIS' DISAPPEARANCE—AND YOU CLAIM THE MAN WITH THE LISP PHONES TO WARN YOU TO DESIST, CLARK. I THINK YOU NEED A VACATION—OR PERHAPS YOU SHOULD SEE A PSYCHIATRIST...
WHITE APPARENTLY THINKS I'M OUT OF MY MIND—AND PERHAPS HE'S RIGHT! BUT THAT STILL DOESN'T EXPLAIN LOIS' DISAPPEARANCE—I'VE GOT TO TALK TO THIS MAN WITH THE LISP!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY, NAVAL AVIATION WAS BORN IN AMERICA . . . UNDER THE GUIDANCE OF ADMIRAL GEORGE DEWEY, HERO OF MANILA . . . AND WITH THE OFFICIAL APPROVAL OF THE ACTING SECRETARY OF THE NAVY, A MAN WHO WAS DESTINED TO BECOME AMERICA'S LEADER IN THE SECOND WORLD WAR, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT . . . THUS TODAY WE HONOR THE FOUNDERS, THE OFFICERS AND THE PERSONNEL OF AMERICA'S MIGHTY NAVAL AIR FORCE, ON ITS THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY . . . AND PLEDGE OURSELVES TO ITS FULL SUPPORT THRU OUR CONTINUING PURCHASES OF WAR SAVINGS BONDS AND STAMPS.

A NAVY FLIER'S CREED

- I am a United States Navy flier.
- My countrymen built the best airplane in the world and entrusted it to me.
- They trained me to fly it. I will use it to the absolute limit of my power.
- With my fellow-pilots, air crews and deck crew, my plane and I will do anything necessary to carry out our tremendous responsibilities. I will always remember we are part of an unbeatable combat team . . . the United States Navy.
- When the going is fast and rough, I will not falter. I will be uncompromising in every blow I strike. I will be humble in victory.
- I am a United States Navy flier. I have dedicated myself to my country, with its many millions of all races, colors and creeds. They and their way of life are worthy of my greatest protective effort.
- I ask the help of God in making that effort great enough.
